Laotian antagonism mounts against U.S.

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Students moved against three U.S. government facilities Saturday in a resurgence of anti-American activity, and the pro-Communist Pathet Lao demanded that the United States withdraw all military personnel and cease alleged spying in Laos.

A Swedish employe of the embassy's general services department, which provides building maintenance, was reported being detained in one of the student-occupied U.S. compounds.

In a six-page declaration the Pathet Lao central committee called on the United States "to remove its military personnel, totally dissolve its espionage organizations in Laos, like the CIA, and at the same time ... contribute to healing the wounds of war."

The U.S. Embassy has denied charges of American espionage in Laos and said Saturday that only two U.S. military men were still working in the embassy's defense attache office, down from 30 two months ago.

Several dozen young demonstrators stationed themselves early Saturday without resistance in the compound of the embassy's general services department and an adjacent and now vacant American housing area known as "Silver City." They also forced the closing of the U.S. Information Service library in downtown Vientiane.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the demonstrators "picked up" Sven Bergen, an employe of the general services organization, and took him inside the service compound.

Pathet Lao policemen took up positions inside Silver City and the general services compound and appeared to be helping the demonstrators. But it was not clear whether the students were acting on their own initiative or on orders from the Pathet Lao leadership.

Posters warning the Americans and the Central Intelligence Agency to get out of Laos were plastered on the walls of both compounds and on the information service library, where several students and Pathet Lao soldiers were on guard.

Pathet Lao Economics Minister Soth Pethrasy claimed at the news conference that the demonstrations were staged by employers with American organizations who were asking for "justice." But newsmen could not find evidence that workers for the departments were involved.

The incidents were the latest in a two-month series of demonstrations and building occupations that have resulted in the closing of the once-vast U.S. aid mission here.

Sweet and sickening contest

Eleven contestants sat down Saturday night at Dairy Queen to test their ability at devouring banana splits. They had 30 minutes to eat as many splits as they could. At left, second place winner, Thomas White, 2301 North Woodlawn, attempts to keep down six splits. Meanwhile, at right, first place winner, DeWayne Stratman, 1317 East 16th, works on his seventh split to win the contest and $50. Stratmen will represent Sedalia in Kansas City on Friday in the state competition. (Democrat-Capital Photos by Bill Zieres)

New Delhi blaze blamed on political opposition

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Fire destroyed part of a building housing the national radio and television headquarters Saturday, and police blamed it on saboteurs working against Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Smoke and flames billowed from the three-story structure for four hours until the fire was brought under control. No casualties were reported.

Police armed with rifles and staves held back hundreds of persons who converged on the broadcasting complex.

The official radio blamed the fire on the opposition political parties and quoted police as saying they believed the fire was caused by "an act of sabotage in pursuance of the plans which have been prepared by the opposition parties for launching an offensive against the government" on Sunday.

The radio was referring to an opposition plan for a "nationwide struggle" beginning Sunday to force Mrs. Gandhi to resign following her conviction for corrupt electoral practices.

Although the opposition parties said they initially planned only rallies and demonstrations against Mrs. Gandhi's rule, the government has claimed that serious internal disturbances were the real objective.

The government declared a national emergency on Thursday because of the threatened agitation and arrested more than 900 persons, including the leaders of the four major nonCommunist parties.

For the first day since the emergency was imposed, the government did not have a news briefing on the general situation. It previously has claimed there was general calm despite scattered public protests and partial general strikes in at least four of the country's 21 states.

The fire at broadcasting headquarters was the first major violence acknowledged by the government since the emergency began. The government's censorship office asked The Associated Press to withdraw its first report on the blaze, but then dropped its ban on the story after the government radio broadcast its report of the fire.

According to the radio, the blaze erupted in the basement of the building and spread to one of the television studios. Broadcasts were not affected, since the transmitters are located elsewhere.

Opposition parties have consistently accused the networks of giving unbalanced coverage in favor of the government and devoting little time on the air to matters detrimental to the ruling Congress party.

Sedalia hosts Good Sams

They travel the camper's circuit. Today the Missouri State Fairgrounds; tomorrow the Ozarks; the next day — who knows.

"We don't have any set plans," says John Fulton, Lexington, Ky. "We just travel."

They came to campgrounds in large, glittering buses or pint-sized trucks to meet people, exchange ideas and talk about their experiences. They are retired U.S. Navy captains, machinists, employes from state road departments, interior decorators. And they travel wherever they wish, visiting past acquaintances, family, or just seeing the country.

But last week, over 300 campers turned their trucks or buses in the direction of the Missouri State Fairgrounds for the Good Sam Club's Missouri state convention on the campgrounds this week.

The schedule of events wasn't large: bingo games, horseshow pitches, music, dancing and arts and crafts displays. But the campers say they have a common bond. "We're here to relax and have some fun," was the common expression.

According to club state director Bob Brown, Kansas City, the Sedalia location was chosen for the last three years "because it's the only place in the state large enough to hold so many truck campers. And there's also adequate water and electric hookups."

Bob and Marion Mowen, Port Charlotte, Fla., however, didn't drive their large camper bus to Missouri just for the convention. Semi-retired interior decorators, they were here to visit friends in Mountain Grove and take in the Ozark sites.

"It's been so hot the past couple of days, though, we were ready to turn back home," commented Mowen.

Retired U.S. Navy captain Vern Smith and his wife, San Diego, Calif., also "just stopped by."

"This is our vacation," remarked Smith. "We've traveled thousands of miles within the last two weeks. And we've planned a three-month trip throughout the United States and Canada."

Although the campers say they generally don't travel in groups, three Good Sam travelers from Arizona have been meeting every few days at specified points.

"We're really not traveling together," said Mel Yahnke, Sedona, Ariz. "We don't travel in caravans. We just see what we want to and then meet together in the evenings."

Mrs. Mowen, however, briefly summed up her idea on the Good Sam convention. "We take about three months each summer to go camping. When you attend these conventions you get to meet all kinds of people. You actually get to see what America is really made of."

Man arrested for FBI shootings

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (AP) — The South Dakota Highway Patrol arrested on Saturday one of the men named in federal warrants carried by two FBI agents shot to death on the Pine Ridge Indian reservation, authorities announced.

Tom Coll, an FBI spokesman, said Herman Thunder Hawk, one of four persons for whom agents Ronald A. Williams and Jack R. Coler had warrants, was arrested Saturday afternoon.

But Coll would not say if Thunder Hawk was one of the 16 Indians sought by more than 200 law enforcement officers combing the rugged Indian reservation since Thursday, when Williams and Coler were shot outside a farmhouse where they had gone to serve the warrants.

Authorities, using armored personnel carriers and helicopters, continued their search Saturday.

Thunder Hawk, Teddy Paul Pourier, Robert Horse and James Eagle were named in warrants obtained after an incident last Monday in which a man and his son allegedly were held against their will. Pourier was arrested Thursday at his home, away from the shooting site.

Meanwhile, American Indian Movement leader Dennis Banks met with the secretary of the Oglala Sioux tribe, Toby Eagle Bull, to discuss a possible meeting with authorities. Eagle Bull said he hoped such a meeting might result in terms for surrender of the suspects in exchange for the removal of federal agents from the reservation.

The FBI also revealed Saturday it has tentatively identified some of the suspects in the deaths of Williams and Coler and has recovered a number of weapons from the house.

"We do have a pretty good indication of the identities of some of those people and are proceeding on that basis," said Coll.

Coll said an unspecified number of automatic weapons and explosive devices, and a large amount of ammunition, were recovered from the house where the suspects fought an hours-long gun battle with federal agents following the gunning down of the two FBI agents.

Coll declined to say what types of automatic weapons were recovered and would offer no information about the nature of the explosive devices.

Coll said agents recovered the paraphernalia when they secured the house early Friday after the occupants had slipped away under cover of darkness.

One Indian, identified by the FBI as Joe Roberts, 20, of Oglala, also died in the exchange of gunfire. The FBI said he was wearing the coat of one of the dead agents when his body was found.

Coll said the main thrust of the search continues to be in the area where the gun battle occurred, but he said the investigation also is being actively pursued in areas off the reservation through coordination with other law enforcement agencies.

"The longer the search continues, the more diminished the chances are that they are on the reservation," he said.

The fatigue-clad agents are using a light observation airplane and a helicopter in their search of the 2.7 million-acre reservation. They are armed with automatic weapons. Coll also said two armored personnel carriers were brought to the reservation to aid in the search.

Supreme Court adjourns; no rule on death penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court adjourns for the summer Monday after acting on the rights of public school students and mental patients but failing to rule on such issues as the death penalty.

Except for a few weeks, the court has been short one member on the bench since Justice William O. Douglas suffered a stroke on Dec. 31. However, of the 129 full-scale opinions handed down by the court, he took part in all but 17.

There was at least one indication that his illness may have deadlocked the court on some issues.

Before Douglas's stroke, the court decided six cases by 5-4 margins in which he was in the majority. After he was stricken it handed down only one 5-4 decision with Douglas on the prevailing side.

Seven times, however, the court ordered attorneys to come back next term and present new arguments on cases they have already heard. It will be the most cases reargued since 1969.

Among the cases set for reargument is a challenge to the constitutionality of the death penalty. Douglas was in the majority in a 5-4 vote in 1972 striking down the capital punishment laws then on the books.

Since he heard arguments on the new cases, he was presumably prepared to vote on it. The court may have decided to take a broader look at the question and consider accepting one or more of the 22 other death penalty appeals it has been asked to hear.

Other issues slated to be reargued involve protection of minority rights in redistricting cases, the right to counsel in summary courts martial and whether resident aliens can be barred from government jobs.

Among cases which it did decide, the court showed a trend toward further curtailing, or at least refusing to expand, the power of federal judges to act on behalf of citizens who argue their rights are threatened.

The justices also told federal courts to keep their hands off of court martial proceedings except in very unusual circumstances.

The court waded for the first time into the growing area of constitutional rights for public school students with 5-4 rulings which held:

—Students suspended from school for 10 days or less must be given at least an informal hearing, usually before being sent home.

Ann Landers

Smoker lost voice because of habit

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you said, "I hope I'm not boring my readers to death with so many anti-cigaret letters."

Please don't give up the fight, Ann. People listen to you and we need all the help we can get to educate the public. I hope you'll print one more letter from a member of the "Lost Chord Club." Here it is:

Dear Friends: I was a resident of Chattanooga for over 50 years. My name is Ray Callaway. I was a heavy smoker for 30 years and am now a member of the "Lost Chord Club." Anyone who wants to join can try for membership. The best way is to start smoking when you are young and keep at it — increasing the number of cigarets until you are really way up there.

I was checked out at M. D. Anderson University of Texas Hospital in Houston. They told me my vocal chords and voice box, plus two malignant tumors had to be removed. That was in January of '75.

Since then I have undergone a laryngectomy. I couldn't even spell it and I'd had two years of college. What it means is the removal of the vocal chords and voice box and you have to breath through an opening in the neck.

I attended a "Lost Chord" meeting in March and there were 13 laryngectomees around the table. Twelve of us had been heavy smokers. Only one had been an abstainer.

If a single person who reads this letter has sense enough to quit smoking cigarets before it's too late, I'll have done some good in life. — Ray Callaway.

Dear Ray: Millions of people read your letter today. I'm sure, somewhere, somehow, you got through to somebody. Thanks for telling your story.

Dear Ann Landers: This is a petty gripe compared with the load of serious problems that face you daily, but it's driving me nuts.

My aunt (a dear woman in her 60s) sends cards and gifts to our little girl (age four) addressed to "Mistress Mary Smith." I dislike such fancy, uppity-sounding "titles" but don't want to offend my sweet aunt.

Will you comment, please: Auntie is a daily reader and will surely recognize herself. Thanks for doing my dirty work. — U-No-Hoo

Dear U: Why be annoyed? The poor woman is ignorant. She obviously believes "Mistress" is the female counterpart for "Master" — which it isn't. The next time you see Auntie take out a dictionary and point out the definition of "Mistress." You can both have a good laugh and that will be the end of it.

Dear Ann: Last night my husband and I went to a dinner party in the home of people we know casually through Jim's work. After dinner the hostess brought out their "hobby" — a collection of low-down pornography. It showed group sex of every type and I was mortified. I left the room but Jim stayed and couldn't get enough of it.

On the way home I told him I never wanted to see those people again. He said I was "square" and added, "When in Rome you do as the Romans do." Am I wrong? — Alice

Dear Alice: It depends on what the Romans are doing. If it doesn't happen to be your cup of tea, you don't do it. I'm with you, dearie. ———

Stranded sailors by-passed by ships

MIAMI (AP) — "We talked about anything ... everything but 'Jaws,'" says one of four men who spent 18 hours floating and swimming in the ocean after their sailboat capsized.

Steve Woodbrey, 22, was fishing with three other Fort Lauderdale, Fla., men Thursday when their 25-foot sloop ran into a sudden storm about five miles from shore. He said they hung on to the capsized vessel's hull for 90 minutes, but were passed by at least four ships which refused to stop.

"We screamed for help and waved life jackets," Woodbrey recalled Friday. But he said the only reaction came when sailors on a freighter waved back.

"We decided to swim to shore for help because we couldn't get help otherwise," said Arnold Walton, 19, another member of the quartet.

They put on their life preservers, and tried to make it to shore, but the current kept pushing them back.

"We got within a half mile of shore," Walton said. "We swam for 12 hours and gave it everything we had, but we couldn't do it."

"I said 'Hey, we're close. We're close,'" said Gary Turpen, 22, another member of the ill-fated fishing trip. "I kept saying, 'Aren't we there yet?'"

Dave McConnell, the fourth member of the group, said he was concerned about sharks, the subject of a recently released movie 'Jaws' about shark attacks on swimmers in Long Island, N.Y., waters.

"I kept thinking, this is the Devil's (Bermuda) Triangle," McConnell said. "We're shark bait."

They ended up sleeping in the flimsy life preservers. Walton said he was awakened in the morning by a leaping fish. But he said they never saw any sharks.

Finally, the Coast Guard, which had been called by Woodbrey's worried wife, spotted the abandoned boat off Boca Raton. A Coast Guard plane found the men about 10 miles south, and they were picked up by a helicopter.

"Thanks to you I get to see my 23rd birthday," Woodbrey told the helicopter pilot. "I was beginning to wonder."

Lofty bike

Tracy Penfield, 19, says there just aren't enough bike racks in Salt Lake City. When she chained her bike to a lamp post to go to work at a downtown clothing store, workers on the Main Street beautification project moved the locked bike farther up the post to preserve fresh concrete. When Miss Penfield came back out she said, "At first I couldn't see it."

Life prison term possible for soldier

JUNCTION CITY, Kan. (AP) — A 27-year-old Ft. Riley, Kan., communications sergeant was convicted Friday of kidnaping a state park rangerette, then raping and stabbing her to death.

The sentencing of Frank J. Pencek, 27, who faces a maximum penalty of life in prison on each of the three charges, was set for July 11. The jury made no recommendation of sentence.

The only point of issue in the four-day trial was Pencek's sanity. He had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. The jury rejected his plea. Pencek, of Bellows Falls, Vt., is married and has two children.

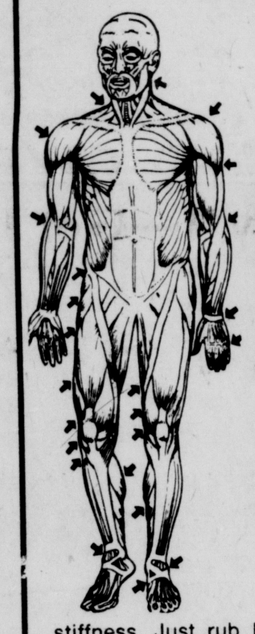

He admitted the abduction and stabbing of Elizabeth Bush, a 20-year-old Kansas State University student. She disappeared May 17, 1974, from the state park toll booth at Milford Lake northwest of Junction City. Her body was found two days later about 35 miles away near Alma, Kan.

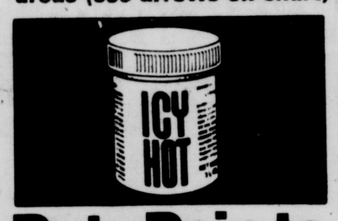

A defense psychiatrist and psychologist testified that in their opinions Pencek was not legally sane at the time of the girl's death. A prosecution psychiatrist testified to the contrary.

Pencek showed no emotion at the verdict. His bond remains at $155,000. He has been in jail since May 20. George Scott, public defender representing Pencek, said he would file the usual post-trial motions at the July 11 sentencing.

Time has been good to Italy's Communist Party

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — When parts of Europe fell prey to communism after the devastation of World War II, Italy remained tied to the West. Its Communists stood anxious for power, but vowed they didn't want it through the force of arms.

Power should come to them, they said, only through the ballot box.

"Siamo Italiani" — "we are Italians" — party boss Palmiro Togliatti used to say, his fiery piazza oratory falling short of espousing a revolt. Even Stalin once remarked about Togliatti, a Moscow-trained theoretician: "Togliatti will never start a revolution. Look at him! He is a lawyer, a professor."

Although lawyer-professor Togliatti failed as a revolutionary, he also triggered a methodical drive for power for il Partito Comunista Italiano, the PCI.

Eleven years after his death, Togliatti's party is now knocking on the door of government.

In stunning gains during nationwide local elections last week, the Communist party received a third of the votes compared to a quarter in elections only three years ago. It already is the top party in Rome, the capital and the See of Pope Paul VI; in Turin, the automobile center of the nation; in Milan, Italy's second largest city and its commercial hub, and in other urban centers including Naples, Genoa, Florence, Venice and Bologna.

It has wrested control, along with other Marxist parties, of four of Italy's 20 state legislatures, putting more than 20 per cent of Italy's 55 million people under Communist-led local administrations.

Why this Communist surge in a Roman Catholic nation here the church-supported party, the Christian Democrats, came close to winning almost 50 per cent of the votes in multiparty elections 28 years ago?

Part of the Communist party's success, political analysts say, lies in the protest of inflation-beset voters against ruling anti-Communist alliances headed by the Christian Democrats. They have taken Italy from its postwar chaos to "il boom" in the 1950s and 60s — and back to the verge of bankruptcy and an inflation rate of 20 per cent.

A housewife in a two-car family explained outside a Roman supermarket why she switched to the Communists: "I just dropped 10,000 lire (about $16) in the supermarket and what I bought is enough only for a dinner for four."

PCI supporters say the party has convinced many, even anti-Communists, that it is a national and democratic party, willing to tolerate other parties and not a conspiratorial organization subservient to Moscow or Peking. It assailed the Soviet Union for leading the invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 and now criticizes Portuguese comrades, accusing them of intemperance.

But some of Italy's Western allies, particularly the United States, have not been swayed, although the PCI has dropped its public opposition to the European Common Market, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and its military bases. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger viewed the Communist gains as strengthening Italy's "nondemocratic forces." West German President Walter Scheel expressed his concern and even officials of Britain's Labor party said they were deeply worried over Communist gains.

The United States views the Italian Communist party, largest in the West, as still tied to international communism, supporting the Kremlin on most issues. It foresees trouble if the party enters national government and questions the ability of its moderate leaders to control the Communist masses.

One of the keys to the party's success is that it is a disciplined machine. Each election success only brings on a strengthened recruiting campaign.

Factories and tiny neighborhoods have cells. Young Communists are more active in schools than the youth of other parties.

"Our party cares," says a 44-year-old carpenter and card-carrying member in Rome. "When you go to a branch you feel the camaraderie. It's the only party which tries to help its members."

If it's caring, the party is also demanding in both dues and duties.

It collects 7,000 lire (about $12) for enrollment and solicits a day's pay every year from its cadre and two-thirds of a Communist deputy's or senator's monthly salary of about $1,600.

It also requires its members to be good "compagni," or comrades. The compagni should attend — and many do — political meetings held usually once a week. When called, they should flock to the piazza for rallies.

"Sure, it takes a lot of time," says Luigi Turriello, a comrade from a Milan suburb. "But you have to sacrifice for a better tomorrow for myself and my children."

The PCI has attracted more than 1.5 million card-carrying members, mostly the poor and the jobless. Its backers in the intelligensia include film director Pier Paolo Passolini, author Alberto Moravia and sculptor Giacomo Manzu.

It walks a cautious line to capture the Catholic vote.

The party requires of its members only to adhere to its political program, not necessarily to the Marxist philosophy of materialism. The wife of Enrico Berlinguer, the current party chief, is a regular churchgoer and one of his daughters attended a convent school. Since the reign of Pope John XXIII, the Roman Catholic Church no longer considers Communist voters excommunicated.

Under Berlinguer, a 53-year-old Sardinian considered more pragmatic and patient than Togliatti, the party is seeking a cordial detente with the Vatican. At the same time, it has kept abreast of new secular thought in Italy, and it championed last year's successful drive to keep divorce a civil right, although it is more cautious on the move to legalize abortion.

This year it spearheaded the lowering of the voting age from 21 to 18 and emerged as the chief beneficiary of over two million new votes. Students in Italy traditionally ally themselves to leftist causes and the scarcity of schools, coupled with unemployment for the graduates, turned their frustration into Communist gains.

Ironically, as it gains in strength and stature, the party's image softens. Although suspected by some for tolerating violence, it spends much of its time denouncing it. The party makes hay of right-wing terror squads and attributes leftist violence to the extreme fringes not connected with the party.

The party espouses no drastic nationalizations, confining its program to more efficient administration of already nationalized industries ranging from transportation to communications.

In areas it controls — the "red belt" now extending from the Adriatic to the French border — it has taken no repressive measures. Instead, the party has attempted to make Communist-ruled muncipalities showcases of progress. Bologna, for instance, is the only Italian city supplying a monthly bonus for the retired in the low pension bracket. The city pays their rent and sends hundreds on free vacations. Bologna's debt is minimal compared to those in Rome, Naples and Palermo.

According to analysts, the Communist party, itself stunned by the magnitude of its gains, plans no major push for an immediate formal role in the national government. It is expected to continue to expand its grassroots campaign and later push for power, first through an alliance of Marxism and Catholicism — the so-called "historical compromise."

It has already won its biggest battle: Acceptance as a respected and democratic party in the view of many Italians. "Anticommunism has failed," Berlinguer said after the elections.

DEATH NOTICES

Robert E. Kahn

Robert E. Kahn, 70, 1111 State Fair Blvd., died at 12:30 p.m. Friday at Bothwell Hospital.

He was born Sept. 23, 1904, in Sedalia, son of the late Arthur and Clemence Kahn. He married Eleanor Goldman, June 24, 1962, at Marshall, and she survives.

Mr. Kahn lived in Sedalia all of his life and was owner of the St. Louis Clothing Store until 1962, when he became co-owner of Burton's Ready-to-Wear.

He was educated in Sedalia and graduated from Kemper Military Academy, Boonville. He was a member of Temple Beth El and B'nai Brith. He belonged to the Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Merchants Association.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Louis (Carmen) Freudenthal, Las Cruces, N.M.; one son, Larry Goldman, Overland Park, Kan.; one daughter, Mrs. Lawrence (Marilyn) Haas, Tucson, Ariz.; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the McLaughlin Funeral Home with Rabbi Michael Zedek officiating.

Active pallbearers will be Paul Joquel, Harold Greer, Jack Alpert, Abe Silverman, J. C. Patton and Jay Lazerson. Honorary pallbearers will be Harold Silberstein, Bert Rossman, Max Walker, Phil Scissors, Ray Jiedel, Louis Isgur, Richard Goodheart and Dr. Elliot Braverman.

Burial will be in the Hebrew Union Cemetery, Sedalia.

The family will receive friends Sunday evening at the funeral home.

Jewell P. Coones

WARSAW — Jewell P. Coones, 65, died Saturday morning at the Cox Medical Hospital, Springfield, where she had been a patient for three weeks.

She was born Feb. 28, 1910, in Quincy, Mo., daughter of William and Addie Young Dietz. She was married to Norman Coones April 9, 1939. He survives of the home.

Survivors include one son, Jerry Coones, Quincy; one daughter, Mrs. Sharon Hart, Kansas City; her mother, Mrs. Addie Dietz, Quincy; three brothers, Victor Dietz, Quincy; Kenneth Dietz, Wheatland, Mo.; Dewey Dietz, state of Oregon; one sister, Mrs. Vivian Suiter, Quincy; and one granddaughter.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the Reser Funeral Chapel here.

Burial will be in the Cedar Grove Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home.

The body is at Conn Funeral Home, Tipton, where funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Commission proposes foreign policy change

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special commission Saturday proposed sweeping changes in the nation's foreign policy bureaucracy and suggested that future secretaries of state not double as the president's national security adviser.

While avoiding saying that Henry A. Kissinger should give up one of his posts, the commission said that "over the long term, the direction of the National Security Council staff should normally in the future be performed by an individual with no other official responsibilities."

"The responsibilities of that assistant are heavy and important enough to require the undivided attention of even the ablest public servant," the report added.

Headed by former Ambassador Robert D. Murphy, and including among its members Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, the commission presented its report to President Ford on Friday and it was released to the public on Saturday.

Through White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, Ford immediately rejected the suggestion that his national security adviser not double as secretary of state.

Soon after Ford received the report, Nessen told newsmen the President had told him to refer them to a remark he had made in an interview earlier in the year.

Nessen quoted Ford as saying:

"Sometimes in government you get a unique individual who can very successfully handle a combination of jobs like Secretary Kissinger is doing today as both head of the National Security Council and secretary of state. If you get that kind of person you ought to take advantage of that capability, and under the circumstances' I would not recommend, nor would I want a division of, those responsibilities."

About two hours before the report went to the President, Kissinger announced his own reorganization of the State Department. The secretary established a Priorities Policy Group which had the effect of further centralizing decision making.

Murphy conceded at a press briefing that the commission's recommendations were geared more toward decentralization.

Asked if Kissinger had advised him of his plans, Murphy said, "I had not even heard about it." He said Kissinger had not seen the commission report at the time the secretary made his announcement.

The commission also came under sharp attack from one its most influential members, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., who said in comments included in the report.

"I fear that the ratio of effort to result has not been up to expectations. A surfeit of words masks an absence of clarity. Thin gruel is being served in a very thick bowl ...

"Even a cursory reading of the commission's report is likely to impress the reader with its timidity and its paucity of substance."

Murphy said he felt Mansfield's criticism was "inaccurate in many respects ... He has attended no meetings of this commission since his trip to Peking in January."

The group was established in 1972.

Murphy, an 88-year-old former diplomat, conceded that the recommendations in the intelligence area closely parallelled those of the Rockefeller Commission which investigated allegations of illegal activities by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Fairfax to head task force on corrections

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax has been named chairman of the Missouri Action Plan for Public Safety (MAPPS) Corrections Task Force.

The six MAPPS Task Forces, including community crime prevention and criminal justice information systems, will be composed of criminal justice professionals, public officials and citizens from Missouri. Their purpose is to develop plans of action for crime reduction and prevention in Missouri.

A Governor's conference to be held July 28 in Columbia, will initiate MAPPS and decide on a program for individual task forces.

Highway accident leaves Sedalian severely burned

A Sedalia man was listed in critical condition Saturday afternoon at the University of Kansas Medical Center, Kansas City, Kan., with second and third-degree burns over 80 per cent of his body, according to a hospital spokesman.

Mack Rhoads, 39, 401 West 23rd, a driver for Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., 2910 West Broadway, suffered the burns about 6 p.m. Friday when the east bound Pepsi-Cola truck he was driving collided with another truck, overturned and caught fire on Highway 52, south of Windsor.

According to the Highway Patrol the accident occurred as another east bound truck, driven by Randall Harvey, 56, Windsor, attempted to pass the Rhoads truck. The Patrol said the trucks collided, causing Rhoads to lose control of his truck which swerved off the south side of the road, overturned and caught fire.

An eyewitness to the accident, Bill Henderson, Windsor, said Rhoads was "thrown burning from the truck." Henderson said he rolled Rhoads on the ground to put out the fire.

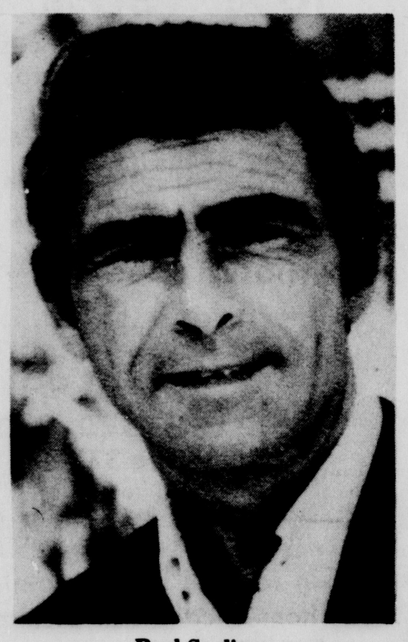

According to Henderson, the truck which allegedly caused the accident did not stop. Friday night Windsor police issued an all-points bulletin on the pick-up truck.

The Patrol learned from the Windsor police that Harvey had left the scene of the accident, but Highway Patrol district headquarters in Lee's Summit said when a trooper arrived at 7:02 p.m., Harvey had returned to the scene of the accident.

Harvey was arrested for careless and imprudent driving.

Rhoads was taken to the Golden Valley Memorial Hospital, Clinton, before he was transferred to the KU Medical Center.

Heart illness claims life of TV producer

Rod Serling

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Television writer-producer Rod Serling died Saturday, two days after undergoing open heart surgery at Strong Memorial Hospital, the hospital said. He was 50.

Serling was known as creator and host of "Twilight Zone" and "Night Gallery."

He was first hospitalized in Ithaca, N.Y., for two weeks in May after suffering what was diagnosed as a mild heart attack.

Serling was readmitted on June 6 and placed in the intensive care unit for an undisclosed illness.

Serling was one of the best known and most honored writers in television. Such plays as "Patterns" and "Requiem for a Heavyweight" were prestigious highlights of television's "Golden Age" of drama in the 1950s. They were later made into motion pictures.

July 4 traffic deaths expected higher in '75

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Fourth of July holiday period will run for 78 hours next weekend, and chances are slim Missouri can hold its traffic death toll to the 11 that were recorded last year.

In 1974, the Fourth of July was on Thursday and the tabulating period on violent deaths ran only 30 hours.

We will be closed all day Monday, June 30th because of the death of Robert Kahn.

Drugs stolen from Sedalia vet center

Two bottles of drugs and several syringes were stolen between 10 p.m. Friday and 7:59 p.m. Saturday from the Sedalia Veterinary Center, 3409 South Green Ridge Road, police said. Thieves apparently cut a screen and forced out a window on the north side of the building. Police said the value of the stolen drugs has not been determined. However, according to Dr. C. W. Monsees, they were not narcotic.

In other police news, a tape player, 25 tapes and two speakers were stolen between 8:30 p.m. Friday and 1:30 a.m. Saturday from a car owned by Larry N. Vanderpool, 1012 East Sixth. Vanderpool told police the items, valued at $320, were taken from his car while it was parked at Fifth and Engineer.

Ken S. Stoll, 710 West Third, reported to police Friday afternoon that $75 worth of tools were stolen from his pickup truck early Friday morning.

Stoll told police a $25 socket set and a $50 compression tester were stolen. The items were taken from the truck between Thursday midnight and 1 a.m. Friday, Stoll said. His truck was parked at Fourth and Missouri at the time of the reported theft, according to police.

Girls picket paintbrush contest

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP)—The girls said it wasn't fair. The mayor said it wasn't his fault. And a mother expressed confusion at the whole situation.

That's the way things went at the suddenly controversial Tom Sawyer Days Fence Painting Contest Saturday.

While boys dressed like Mark Twain's fictional character furiously raced to cover a fence with whitewash, two 10-year-old girls and their friends quietly protested with their own paintings—picket signs.

It all began when the Hannibal Jaycees refused to allow Jill Quattrocchi and Janine Range to enter the contest, which traditionally has been open only to boys 10 to 13 years old.

So Jill and Janine decided to take matters—and signs—into their own hands.

"We're not scared of bugs, frogs, dead cats or bats, we just wanna paint slats," read one placard. "Tom Sawyer liked girls, Jaycees don't," said another. "Don't give us the brush-off, give us the brush," a third demanded.

"The United States will be 200 years old next year," said Jill as she watched the competition. "It's about time we all had complete rights."

"I just wanted to enter to show the boys we could paint just as well," added Janine. "I'm not mad at the boys, just the Jaycees, but I could beat the boys anytime."

Hannibal Mayor Henry Glascock shrugged when asked about the situation. "I'd prefer the girls be allowed to enter, but it's not up to me at all."

Jaycees president Dave Ebbing said the group will consider revising the no-girl rule at its July meeting.

Protesting the painting

As would-be Tom Sawyers white wash a fence two girls protest the Hannibal Jaycees decision not to allow girls in the annual event. The Tom Sawyer Days Fence Painting contest was sponsored Saturday by the Jaycees.

Illinois man faces check charge here

An Illinois man serving a sentence in the Missouri State Penitentiary is expected to be brought to Sedalia Thursday to appear in Circuit Court.

Robert Eugene Johnson, 40, formerly of Granite City, Ill., is charged with issuing a no funds check for $40 on Aug. 14, 1974, to the Consumer's Market, 3107 West Broadway.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming filed an application for a writ of habeas corpus Friday in Circuit Court for Johnson.

On May 14 Johnson filed a motion requesting a "fast and speedy trial" within 180 days or the dismissal of the charges against him.

At the time of Johnson's preliminary hearing in the case, May 14, Fleming said Johnson was in prison for a similar check charge in Calloway County.

Donna Fargo replaces Anne Murray at fair

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — Donna Fargo will replace Anne Murray as the featured grandstand performer Aug. 21 at the Missouri State Fair in Sedalia, according to Fair director Jerry Hermann.

Hermann announced the change when it became apparent Miss Murray would not fulfill the contract her agent had signed early this spring.

Miss Fargo will appear from 6 to 9 p.m. with the Young Americans singing group. Tickets may be obtained by contacting the Missouri State Fair.

Miss Fargo, once a high school English teacher, has recently become one of the most popular female performers in country music. She writes most of her own material and has had five consecutive number-one hit records.

Her biggest hit, "Happiest Girl in the U.S.A." recently was named record of the year. Other hit songs include "Funny Face," and "Hello Little Blue Bird."

The Missouri State Fair will run Aug. 15-24.

Question

I am receiving a Social Security check each month under the special age 72 payment provision. Does this entitle me to receive a funeral benefit?

Answer

A special payment made to an uninsured individual aged 72 and over does not by itself qualify the recipient of this Social Security benefit to a lump sum death benefit. To be eligible for a death benefit a deceased worker must be insured either currently or fully under Social Security.
It is possible for a person after reaching age 72 to become eligible for a lump sum by working the required period of time under covered employment.

It's still all wrong!

The Phoenix Nest

Edited by Martin Levin

By DERECK WILLIAMSON

I don't know when I first noticed that the purple hand was wrong. It was a few years ago, before the Post Office Department handed over all its deformed hands to the new United States Postal Service.

I remember that the familiar hand was stamped on an envelope that had been returned to me for some reason. All post offices have racks of rubber hand-stamps like the one above, to inform you that postage is due, or to point out postal sins such as "Insufficient Address."

Sometimes there's a checklist below the hand — "Unclaimed," "Refused," (When did you last refuse a letter?) "No Such Street," and "No Such Number." (That last one puzzles me; what number doesn't exist?)

Sometimes the pointing hand has no message at all below it, but is used to point at something else the post office has stamped on the envelope, like "Returned For Better Address." That always struck me as snobbish.

Anyway, I found myself examining this particular purple hand, and then I tried to line up my own hand to match the post office's hand.

It was impossible!

See for yourself. First, try to arrange your knuckles and thumb as pictured. It's hard to get your thumb right, because it doesn't twist that way. And there is something wrong with the way the base of the thumb curves in the hand-stamp. But even if you do get your thumb and knuckles fixed right, there's still the matter of your own forefinger, which can't possibly be twisted so that the fingernail is on top.

After a lot of futile tugging and wrenching, I concluded that I'd have to break my index finger and give it a quarter-turn to the left in order to match it up.

Over the years I've wondered about the deformed post office hand. Who was the model? Who designed the stamp? Was his own hand deformed? Or was he right-handed, and confronted with the shaky task of drawing with his left hand while using his right as a model?

Who ordered the hand-stamps made and sent out to every post office in the country? At one time, there were more than 76,000 post offices in the United States, each with presumably at least one bad hand.

Didn't anybody notice?

Four years ago, when I heard that a semi-independent U.S. Postal Service would take over and revamp the old Post Office Department, I was encouraged. Not only would the new public corporation use modern business techniques to get my letters through, but it would design new symbols. A fancy eagle would replace the pony express rider on mailboxes and uniforms.

Surely, I reasoned, the USPS would wheel the old purple hand into the operating room and either straighten out the joints, or cut it off cleanly at the wrist and replace it with something human.

But no, the USPS took over, and used, the same rubber stamps. Some had "Returned to Sender" and some "Returned to Writer" on the palm. Some had a single stripe on the sleeve (an ensign in the postal service?) and some had a stripe and a single button at mid-cuff. But all, unfortunately, had the same old deformed fingers.

The USPS not only failed to change the stamp; they added a new and equally strange stamp of their own. It says: "Found In Supposedly Empty Equipment."

That purple statement was stamped on the back of a letter that arrived here the other day, two months after the post-marked date on the face of the envelope. Next to "Found In Supposedly Empty Equipment" was a Philadelphia postmark, indicating that the letter had been misplaced in that city. But of course the really weird part is that they have a rubber stamp for this contingency. Far out, USPS.

I believe that the creation of a nationwide deformed-hand-stamp was an important event in our nation's history. I think that this forgotten genius should be honored in our upcoming bicentennial celebrations. Our historians should make every effort to find out all they can about this unsung fellow.

Perhaps he is still around somewhere. Wouldn't it be great if he were found in supposedly empty equipment!

Some students to face higher fees at MU

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — An increase in fees for all students was rejected, but a substantial increase for medical, dental and veterinary students was approved by University of Missouri curators Friday.

The board voted 7 to 2 against the proposal of Irvin Fane, a member from Kansas City, that incidental fees be raised by $30 a semester for one school year.

This left the fee rate at $270 a semester.

The supplemental fees for medical students at Columbia and Kansas City, for dental students and Kansas City and veterinary students at Columbia were raised to $270 a semester from $70.

The supplemental fees are in addition to the incidental fees.

The curators also initiated a study of the implications arising from the fact that the university deposits most of its money with a banking system in which three members of the board have interests.

John Hall Dalton of Kennett, son of a former Missouri governor, moved up to the presidency of the board in its yearly rotation of officers.

In their final adoption of the university's budget for 1975-76, the curators approved some cutbacks which will affect operations at all four of the campuses at Columbia, Rolla, Kansas City and St. Louis.

They approved $7.7 million in budget changes to meet higher utility costs, spiraling premiums for medical malpractice insurance and the admission of the fifth class at the new medical school in Kansas City.

The new budget carries a 4.6 per cent increase in the fund from which salaries are paid.

The curators voted in May to devote any new money the university got from the state this year to salaries and wages. The amount of the increase was set at $6.3 million on Thursday when Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed the legislature's appropriation of $120.2 million back to the $119.4 million he recommended.

The university's medical schools and hospitals reported to the curators that the cost of malpractice insurance will increase by $391,820 in the year starting July 1.

The curators were told it is part of the nationwide spiral on malpractice premiums and the university will get only about half as much coverage for its 130 per cent increase in cost.

The board ordered its finance committee to study and make a recommendation next month on whether the First National Bank of St. Louis should be retained as the university's principal bank.

The First National Bank is a subsidiary of the First Union Group, a holding company which owns stock control of banks throughout Missouri.

Three members of the board — Van O. Williams of Liberty, Dr. Wallace Stacey of Independence and Rex Z. Williams of Rolla — are connected with other banks in the First Union Group.

John Hall Dalton advanced from the vice presidency to become president of the board. He succeeds John Sam Williamson of Columbia, whose term on the board expired.

Damage suit by teacher dismissed

OTTAWA, Kan. (AP) — The Franklin County District Court has dismissed a $125,000 damage suit brought by a teacher against the Wellsville school board.

An attorney for the board announced Friday in court that it would grant Mrs. Karen Clark a hearing on her dismissal. Judge Floyd Coffman then dismissed the suit as premature.

Mrs. Clark and her husband, Rick, contended they were damaged by the unjustified firing of Mrs. Clark, and forced to move. She claimed her constitutional rights had been violated by the board's decision not to renew her contract for 1975-76.

Her dismissal followed reports of differences between the board and Mrs. Clark over the sex education course she taught, and complaints about her reaction to complaints of her husband's performance as high school football coach.

Los Angeles was incorporated as a city in 1850 and is now estimated to have a population of more than 2,809,596.

Refugees try to rebuild their lives in Illinois

New girl in school

Loan, center, sits amid the clamor of the lunchroom scene on her first day of class at Carbondale's Unity Point School. Language proved no barrier to the little Vietnamese refugee as she adapted to the routine and took the school bus home alone. "Don't you worry," a school janitor told her father, "We'll take good care of her." (AP)

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — The hot winds of war finally ran out, and deposited their waifs far from home.

For America, and for this pleasant southern Illinois city of 40,000 there are once more strangers in town. And with them a test of conscience and welcome older than the Statue of Liberty.

For Sang and her family, is this finally the place where desperate choices end and hope begins?

In a sense the echoes of the holocaust and the eerie gray peace before the end are still too fresh. They almost drown out the present. And America is still too new, from the glitter of a department store to the endless choices of the supermarket. Even the imported mangoes here are a different color, and for the first time the family saw grapes growing on a vine.

But nothing of the long-term future of Sang's family of seven in America can reckon without Sang herself. She is slight, barely 5-feet, only 30 years old, but of great strength and determination.

They arrived here on a Wednesday night. By Monday her 8-year-old daughter Loan (Loh-an) was enrolled in the Unity Point Public School, picking out a newly learned "Frere Jacques" on the music teacher's piano and taking the school bus home alone. She does not speak English.

By the next Thursday, Sang herself had been accepted into Southern Illinois University, even though her Vietnamese schooling was a shade under requirements. And the day following she had a student job as a secretary.

To be sure, this could not have been done without friends. Sang's youngest brother, Trung, 21, has attended the university for three years and graduates as an engineer in December. His friends, Dr. Jared Dorn, the university's assistant director for international studies, and his wife, Minda, signed as sponsors of the family, ending the purgatory of the refugee camp.

There are no assurances that Carbondale will be paradise. Like the rest of the nation, the area suffers from the recession, although one local expert says it always has to a degree — with the ups and downs of farming, coal-mining and a current drop in enrollment at the university. Last year 104 faculty members were let go. Unemployment in general is 7½ per cent.

With considerable unused private housing, built to serve the university, the city has considered a proposal to take 2,000 of the 130,000 unclaimed refugees, provided it could get federal assistance. The town asks the ultimate question: will they be benefit or burden?

But paradise or not, Carbondale is more than Sang hoped for in the long nightmare of indecision and fear. She had worked for the Americans since 1964, lately as a personnel manager for the defense attache of the U.S. embassy. Her husband, Khuong, 37, was a civil servant. In Saigon they and their two children lived with in-laws in a 9-by-21 foot apartment, unsure of neighbors and friends, sure only of their family loyalty.

She is as fluent in English as he is shy in using the language. She has decided to take a general course in college to determine where her talents lie, rather than pick a career-oriented course. Khuong has not yet decided what he can or will do.

Whatever their roles for the time being, both seek the arms of their small children, Loan and 4-year-old daughter Oanh (Oh-an), sometimes with a hint of fun, sometimes a hint of sorrow.

Even now they share huddled secrets, bound in their native language. Even here they ask that the family name not be used. His parents, her father, another sister and brother remain in Vietnam. With Sang and her small family are her mother, a sister, a brother-in-law, pieces of the old world.

Determined to find a way out, Sang got sympathetic help from the International Refugee Committee (IRC), and a job at $5 a day. She needed an American sponsor. She only knew the Dorns through her brother. No, she thought, seven people is too many. The IRC told her to try anyway. The Dorns were delighted to hear from her and Jared Dorn scarcely gave her a chance to ask: what could he do to get her to Carbondale?

Their new home is a two-bedroom university-owned apartment. The Dorns and another faculty member who wants to remain anonymous pay the rent. Dishes, and some furniture were donated by members of church and community.

The land of the big hat

A giant sunhat is plunked down on little Loan for size as her mother Sang makes a selection during their first visit to a Carbondale retail store. Trung, 21, a student at Southern Illinois University, acts as a guide for his refugee sister and her husband Khuong, background. (AP)

There were almost too many sights and experiences those first few days. At the supermarket Khuong gently insisted on Sang choosing the lower-priced items. But they lingered over food items they had never seen before. They bought a few vegetables, a chicken and a towel rack for the bathroom.

In the department stores, Sears and J.C. Penny's Khuong could not keep his hands off of things, from the toys to the household appliances, but all he bought was hair shampoo. Sang picked out two sunhats and two light dresses and little rubber sandals for the girls and a laundry basket.

Meanwhile, the town has pondered what to do. There are 38 Vietnamese students on campus. Some 34 had relatives in the camps. And how many refugees could the city in good conscience invite to stay. Sang and Khuong and their family are the first.

The community and the churches formed the International Assistance Council of Southern Illinois under Father Bill Longust of St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church, and their meetings have sought to probe the mind and will of the area.

In the first weeks of Sang's and Khuong's presence in Carbondale, no one had a sure idea of the community's reaction. Mayor Neal Eckert said cautiously it is probably like everything else in the area, 50-50.

Jared Dorn and his wife admit there will be some negative feeling, but judging from past experience the positive reactions will outweigh the negative.

As for them, this opportunity has justified their staying in Carbondale. They had considered returning to Taiwan where they once taught. They have a fond feeling for peoples of the East. They say they are prepared to help Sang and her family as long as necessary.

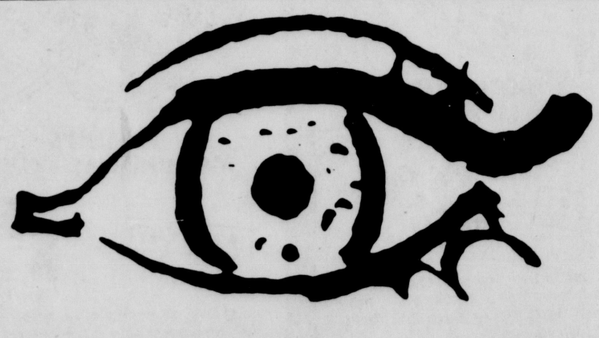

No one knows for sure, but it probably will cost something like $5,000 a year to support even a frugal refugee family.

Less than a week in Carbondale, Sang lost her wallet with all the family's immigration papers, health documents, a check from the Dorns and $100 in cash. She was distraught. Money aside, she had lost their identity papers. The local paper carried the story. Days later, the papers were returned. Not the money.

As for Carbondale, Father Bill, as he is known, says: "When people see the need, they'll help. They're like people anywhere."

Man has viewed history through the Suez Canal

By DEBORAH MASON

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP) — Abdel Mottaleb has probably seen more history pass through Egypt's Suez Canal — closed by the Egyptians during the Arab-Israeli war of 1967 and recently reopened — than any other living person.

During most of his 80 years he has owned and run the Colonial Book and News Store, which faces the entrance of the canal in Port Said.

There are few spots that enjoy such a strategic location as Mottaleb's book store. For decades he has attracted more visitors than any other establishment in Port Said.

His time-worn guest book bears witness to the vast range of clients. It includes the signatures of statesmen and film stars, war brides and dowagers, field marshals and privates. There are also names of spies and agents provocateurs for whom Port Said was renowned.

"I've seen kings and princes sail through the Suez Canal," Abdel Mottaleb recalled nostalgically, sipping his hourly cup of tea under a nearby sycamore. "Ships from every country in the world have passed my doorstep."

A visit to Abdel Mottaleb's shop is like stepping back 20 years. Thousands of English books are packed onto shelves stretching from floor to ceiling. They include dozens of hardback copies of "The Latest American Pop Hits of 1953" and a pocket edition of "The Memories of Jim Reeves and Nat King Cole."

It was as if the calendar had stopped in the mid-50s. A row of British magazines are all dated somewhere between 1952 and 1958. The latest issue is 1962.

The Suez Canal was nationalized in 1956 and most of the foreigners working with it were expelled from Egypt. By 1962 nationalization of other foreign investments had driven most non-Egyptians out of Port Said. Foreign currency to buy publications from abroad was no longer available.

But in spite of everything, the Colonial Book Store never closed.

"I've been through two world wars and three wars in Egypt," reminisced Mottaleb. "But I've refused all pressures to close my shop. Throughout the 1973 war with Israel, I opened every day, though most of the time I sat drinking tea under the tree outside.

"True, there's been little business since '67, but how could I close a shop that's been running for nearly a hundred years?"

Abdel Mottaleb has lived in Port Said since 1901 when his Sudanese father traveled from Khartoum to work on the canal. His father arrived penniless, with only his Nubian wife, from southern Egypt, and his small son.

"Although I was very young then — less than 8 years old — my father sent me to work in a cinema," he recalled. "But I was so afraid of the pictures that I ran away and found a job at the Colonial Book Store. The owners paid me a pound a month and I thought I was instantly rich."

He was hardly rich. But he was a good saver. The book store was originally the joint property of Ferdinand de Lesseps, the builder of the Suez Canal, and a Greek ship owner. By the time both owners had died, Mottaleb had saved enough to buy the shop from their heirs. He's been the sole owner ever since.

Mottaleb is optimistic that the opening of the canal will bring back much of his business. He has trained his son to take over and even a young grandson shows an interest in the store.

"It'll never be like the old days," he conceded, "now that most people are traveling by plane. But some of those folks will be back."

Butz proposes soybean program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has proposed to Brazilian officials that they join the United States in forming an international soybean-promotion program.

The 10-million-ton soybean production boost in that South American country, which Butz recently visited, has concerned American soybean producers for months.

The economic threat from those Brazilian fields earlier this year resulted in arguments for inclusion of a soybean loan program in the farm bill, which was vetoed by President Ford.

But, Butz told reporters Thursday, "there's no way to slow them down (in soybean production), nor should we — In Brazil, I'd be doing the same thing."

So a joint promotion venture, like those for cotton and wheat worldwide, seemed the best approach, he said. "There's no need for this to be a point of conflict."

The proposal, which he said he had not yet discussed with U.S. soybean tradesmen, "fell on receptive ears" in Brazil, Butz said.

Brazil's sugar and coffee industries drew many more dollars from this country last year than U.S. farm products generated there.

"Here's a nation on the (economic) make...," he said. "They're just ready for the take-off."

That situation, with a 9 per cent annual growth in the Gross National Product, underpins the joint bean promotion idea, since it will increase markets there and elsewhere for soybeans and their products for farmers of both nations, he said.

Butz said Venezeula, which he also visited, was "our most important customer in South America -- This is a country that has money."

On other issues at his news conference, Butz said:

—Corruption of grain-export inspectors "is going to stop being a way of doing business in American ports." While the final decisions had not yet been made, he said, "I personally lean in the direction of a federal-state system" of civil servants doing the inspecting.

—While any USDA procrastination concerns him, especially when that's one of the grain-scandal allegations, "let's not forget that our Office of Audit and our Agricultural Marketing Service are the ones who found these irregularities in the first place" and went to the Justice Department with them.

—He expects a "good chance" for legislation phasing out the rice program but "not good" prospects on ending peanuts supports, as he has tried for at least two years.

—The issue of world hunger has been dangerously "pushed to the back burner" after last year's interest. "We've got to keep the emphasis going on agricultural research...to feed 75 per cent more people by the year 2000."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Crop Reporting Board says that 38 per cent more peanuts were being held in commercial facilities May 31 than a year ago.

That came out to a total of about 1.27 billion pounds, including 580 million pounds of actual farmers' stock, shelled peanuts equal to 655 million pounds of farmers' stock and 30 million pounds for in-shell roasting.

It doesn't include 327 million pounds held by the Commodity Credit Corp. for crushing, officials said. A year ago, the CCC held no stocks of peanuts.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who wants to get the government out of peanuts, told reporters Thursday he sees no prospect for phasing out the program "until it starts to cost us $75 to $100 million a year."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $265,553,000 loan guarantee has been approved by the Rural Electrification Administration for the Alabama Electric Cooperative Inc., headquartered in Andalusia.

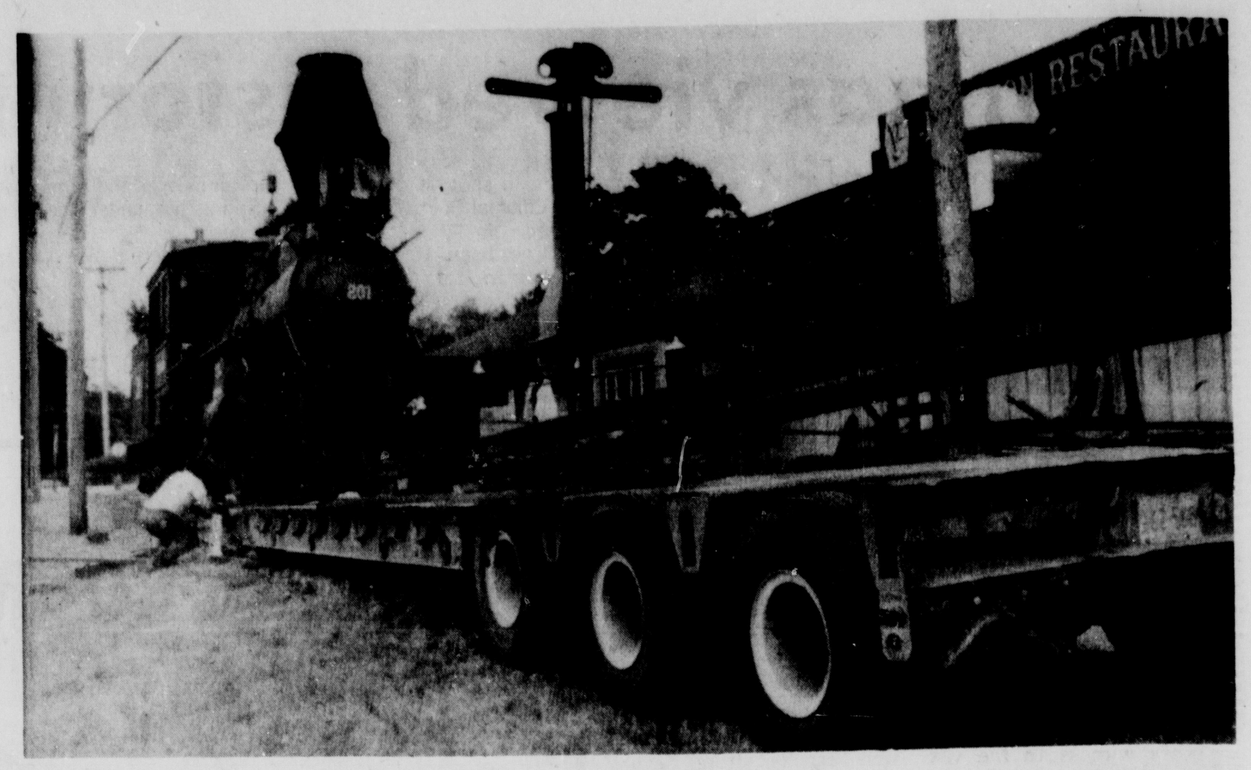

USDA officials said Thursday the co-op plans to build a 420 megawatt, coal-fired generating plant and 135 miles of transmission lines, developing its own fuel sources by acquiring leases on Kentucky and Tennessee mines. Operation is to begin in May 1978.

DENTISTS STUDY ARTIFICIAL MOUTH

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — An artificial "mouth" containing one extracted tooth is being used by a research team at Manchester Dental Hospital to provide new information on the bacteria which cause tooth decay.

Under laboratory conditions simulating those in the human mouth, the scientists are studying the growth of up to 20 organisms which colonize the teeth and gums.

In time, they hope to be able to specify a range of antiseptic chemicals which would destroy only those bacteria which cause tooth decay.

Protests stir nations to review plans for plants

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Because of public protests, a number of governments around the world are rethinking or having to put off plans to build nuclear power plants for generating electricity.

A court case in West Germany, for example, threatens to hold up the building of one plant for years. In Japan, five of eight existing plants have been closed down for safety checks and lawsuits are on file to stop the building of three new ones.

As oil prices rose in 1973-74, planners began to look to nuclear energy as a way to provide cheap electrical power. But when they made their plans public, objections arose from citizens of all walk of life: farmers, fishermen, scientists, and people who expressed fears of a nuclear accident or the possibility of terrorists stealing materials to make a bomb.

The nine countries of the European Common Market already have about 10 tons of plutonium and it only takes a few pounds to make a bomb. Experts point out that it also takes a lot of engineering skill.

Other Europeans express concern about environmental problems. What to do with radioactive waste? Will nuclear plants do harm by raising the temperature of riversthat are used to cool them?

Still others have fears of radioactivity. Experts who favor nuclear energy say that these fears are entirely unreasonable.

A pamphlet distributed in Belgium by electric power firms says nuclear power is the cleanest way to make electricity.

"Unlike fossil fuels fissile material does not make contact with the atmosphere," the pamphlet adds. "A nuclear reactor does not use oxygen, and does not emit carbon dioxide, or oxides of sulphur or nitrogen. All the reactor products remain confined within the uranium or are held in its sheathing. A very light diffusion of some of them, volatile or in the form of gas, may take place, but these products are absorbed by the water or gas that cools the reactor.

"That gas or water is suitably filtered, so that the radioactivity reaching the outside is zero or extremely small."

But at Whyl in West Germany, about 25,000 demonstrators occupied the site of a projected nuclear plant on the Rhine last February. Some of them were local farmers, worried that radiation could harm the grapes used for Rhine wine. Others expressed fears that radiation could hurt the people in the neighborhood.

A local court upheld the plea by a Citizens' Action Group to suspend work on the plant, The case will probably go to West Germany's highest court, a process that could take four years.

West German authorities are now more conscious of public scrutiny. The government has announced that it will investigate plans by the Basf Chemical Works in Ludwigshafen to build its own nuclear plant.

The West German government is coming under fire in other countries because it has agreed to sell nuclear material and technology to Brazil. The chief objection is that this may enable Brazil, which has a military government, to make nuclear weapons.

When oil prices started to shoot up the Japanese government announced a big nuclear program — despite all the opposition in Japan which already uses the atom to provide 4 per cent of its electric power. The government wanted this raised to 25 per cent by 1985.

As officials were trying to convince people of the advantage of this, the Japanese nuclear-powered ship Mutsu sprang a leak in its reactor during a test run last September. The 8,214-ton vessel drifted in the Pacific for almost two months, kept from its home port by fishermen who feared contamination of their fishing grounds. The government has announced that it is reassessing its over-all plan.

In France reassessment started last summer of the plan to build as many as 50 reactors by 1985. Within the government it was said that there was a risk of emphasizing nuclear power too much, and that the cost would be too high.

Outside the government a petition to abandon or at least slow down the program has been signed by more than 4,000 scientists, professors and technicians.

Their petition asked for a delay in the construction of any nuclear installation until the people had a clear idea of possible risks and consequences from them. The scientists raised questions about radioactivity, the effects of heating rivers and sea water, and the possibility of theft of materials for the making of bombs.

One French village on the Atlantic approved a plant by a referendum. On the Mediterranean, another village voted against.

In Switzerland a nonviolence action group squatted for more than two weeks on a site at Kaiseraugst near Basel. They won a promise from Willy Ritschard, the Swiss minister for energy, that he would favor a review of the 17-year-old law on the building of nuclear plants.

A poll in the Basel area reported that 37 per cent of those asked were opposed to nuclear plants, another 37 per cent had misgivings and only 9 per cent flatly in favor. Basel is just where West Germany, France and Switzerland meet. The three countries have plans to build eight reactors within a radius of about 30 miles.

Nuclear power is an old story in Britain. The first reactor started to produce in 1962. Britain now has 34 major installations, more than any other country but the United States, and gets 11 per cent of its electric power from the atom.

Belgians in general have not complained a great deal about nuclear plans, but a committee of scientists seeking a two-year moratorium on new construction claims nearly 500 adherents — a considerable portion of the scientific community. The government has appointed a "committee of wise men" who are due to report in August.

At Tihange, despite some uneasiness, people seemed pleased by the new business the plant had brought. The Meuse River Valley is a vacation area and the plant has apparently brought more visitors than it discouraged.

Kidnapping case set to be heard by grand jury

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The kidnaping case against Alfred Wayne King, 27, is scheduled to be presented to a St. Louis Circuit Court grand jury July 9.

King, one of three persons charged with the June 19 abduction of Mrs. George J. Helein in an attempt to extort $300,000 from her banker husband, was being held on $125,000 bond.

Charged with King are Albert Gibson, 19, and John W. Brown, 18.

The three are accused to taking Mrs. Helein from her home and placing her in a cardboard box in a rented van.

The 68-year-old woman was later released unharmed after her husband, who is president of the South Side National Bank, told the kidnapers by telephone that his wife suffered from a heart condition.

King was arrested by Kentucky troopers near Hopkinsville, Ky., last week.

HE WAS OFF AND RUNNING

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — A streaker plunged inadvertently through a locked plate glass door during a dash through an ice cream parlor here.

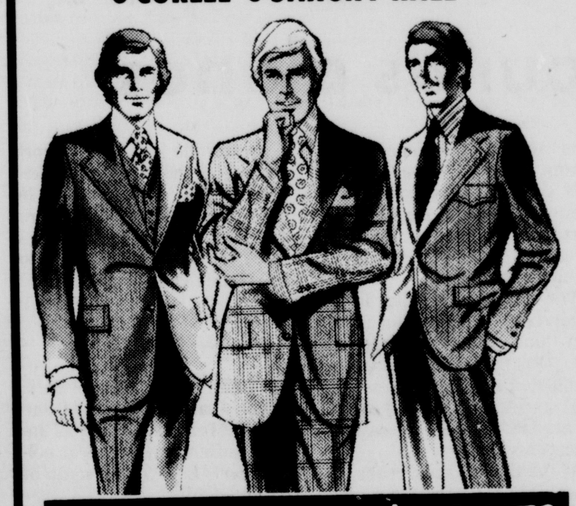

He was apparently unhurt and jumped into a waiting car afterward, Broome County sheriff's deputies said.

He later called the ice cream stand and offered to pay for the $120 in damage. Meanwhile, 15 customers in the store went on licking their ice cream cones.

Q — I would like to know why Smith-Cotton High School did not have their honor roll published in The Sedalia Democrat-Capital. There have been a number of comments about this, as most other high schools and colleges published their honor rolls. Students who accomplish this honor should be recognized. — Mrs. C.S.M.

A — The high school did not submit a list of honor roll students for the spring semester to the newspaper. However, a list of honor graduates was submitted and published June 1. The reason no honor roll was made available, school officials said, was because grade cards were mailed to students and the cards were received after school closed.

A student must inform his home room teacher he has qualified for the honor roll and must then certify that by showing his grade card. This is impossible to do after school is over. One school administrator said it would take extra secretarial staffers working 24 hours a day about three days to go through the grade cards of every student at S-C to compile the information. He said that, when considering the expense involved, "it wouldn't be worth it."

Q — Is there an ordinance that requires having a sewer in the house before utilities can be turned on? I understand that before the utility company will turn on utilities, you have to have a sewer in the house. — C.B.

A — According to Building Inspector Woodrow Garrison, "every house must have a sewer system" before his office will issue a certificate of occupancy.

Garrison said a house must be connected to a city sewer line, or have a septic tank containing at least 1,500 square feet. He said because his office does not have the manpower to check every new home for proper sewer systems, he provides copies of an occupancy certificate to the utility company.

He said the utilities firm often will not install electricity or gas unless the home owner has an occupancy certificate.

Missouri Public Service manager Walter Savio said a sewer is not a requirement for installation of gas or electric utilities.

Savio said MPS requires Garrison to inspect new homes to approve their electrical wiring and gas pipes before utilities are turned on. For older homes, however, only a deposit to guarantee utility bill payments is required by the company.

Defect grounds planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in a week, mechanical problems have prompted the Navy to ground an entire force of combat aircraft.

All 139 of the Navy's F14 fighters, the newest in the service's air arsenal, were taken out of operation Friday, three days after one of the $18-million planes had to make an emergency landing at the Oceana Naval Air Station in Virginia.

The grounding of the F14s followed an announcement Thursday that the Navy's entire fleet of 600 F4 Phantom jet fighters had been taken out of service last Saturday for safety inspections because of a crash caused by a control failure.

In its announcement of the F14 grounding, the Navy said the symptoms in the Oceana incident "had certain similarities to earlier incidents experienced with the F14.

The F14 fleet had been grounded in January following two separate crashes of planes of that model. The fleet later was returned to operational status, only to have another F14 suffer an engine flameout while flying from the aircraft carrier Enterprise in the Indian Ocean. It managed to return safely to the carrier.

The Navy said the latest grounding would remain in effect "until the investigation of the (Oceana) incident can be completed and fully assessed." But it said the F14s still would be available for use in case of emergency.

At the time of the Oceana incident, officials reported a muffled explosion took place and flames burst from the left engine just after the two-man craft took off. The crew escaped injury.

The Navy said Friday that while it was still too early to establish a cause, "it appears that the damage occurred in the left engine fan and compressor section. It has not yet been determined whether the damage was occasioned by a foreign object or by an engine malfunction."

Meanwhile, the Navy reported that of the 433 F4s checked thus far, 93 were found to be defective and in need of repairs. The F4 problem is centered in the tail flap portion of the plane's control system.

Injuries are fatal

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Mrs. Norma Jean Smith, 42, of Anderson, Mo., died Friday of injuries suffered in a two-car collision on U.S. 71 a mile south of Goodman, Mo.

The accident took place on wet pavement Tuesday. Killed was a passenger in Mrs. Smith's car, Mrs. Helen Ruth Caldwell, 53, also of Anderson.

Injured in the other car and hospitalized at Bentonville, Ark., were Edwin Leo Schultz, 74, of Bentonville, and his wife, Lenora, 72.

Drivers face insurance plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every car driver in the country would be required to have no-fault insurance coverage under a bill approved by a Senate committee.

No-fault would save American drivers as much as $1 billion in premium payments annually, said Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Commerce Committee, which approved the bill Friday.

Under the bill's approach, an auto accident victim would be compensated promptly by his own insurance company for all medical and rehabilitation expenses, regardless of who caused the accident.

As it is, the accident victim often has to go to court and prove "fault" before recovering any money at all.

Accident trial lawyers, staunch opponents of the bill, receive some $1.8 billion in fees each year, more than seriously injured victims receive in court-awarded damages, says Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, chairman of the Commerce subcommittee which drafted the bill.

Other provisions of the bill:

—Payments of up to $15,000 would be provided if injury prevented a person from working.

—An injured housewife would receive funds to hire help to care for the house or for her children.

—Persons disabled for more than 90 days would have the legal right to sue the driver at fault for additional damages.

—Lawsuits for intangible damages such as pain and suffering would be restricted to serious cases.

Several states have implemented different versions of no-fault insurance programs. The Senate bill amounts to a set of minimum standards that would have to be met or exceeded by every state.

There were three dissenting votes in the 18-member committee: Sens. James L. Buckley, Con.-R, N.Y.; Vance Hartke, D-Ind.; and Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C.

The committee action sends the bill to the full Senate, which passed a similar bill last year by a vote of 53 to 42.

Why custom-build?

Robert Ciszewski Grayling, Mich.

Custom building (we erect your home on your lot, you do the finishing work or subcontract it) gave the Robert Ciszewskis an opportunity to save a small fortune.

"I did all the finishing work . . . quite simple, really, everything comes all pre-cut and ready to fit in. You just read instructions," said Ciszewski.

The result: "I wouldn't sell my home for less than $45,000, knowing the market and this area. And we have just $26,500 in it!"

Consider our custom way of building — it could be your way into a new, affordable home. Financing? No problem: bank on Kaufman and Broad to handle it . . . at the lowest possible rate. We even custom-design your home for you — no charge. Send for the complete story and perhaps we'll build something good together. Soon.

Shades of days gone by

The inside of both Sarah's Shop (top photo) and the front of Estil Oswald's 1929 Dodge coupe both reflect the yesteryear world to be found in any of the nine buildings in downtown Blackwater that house antiques which Oswald has been selling for the past three years. It is one of the largest antique businesses in the area.

Antique 'empire' began as man's hobby

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

BLACKWATER — "Welcome! Come on in! It's good to have you here. Just look around as much as you want and make yourself right at home!"

The voice in the backroom of Sarah's Shop rose from its invisible source like a ghost from the past as it wafted its way to the front door over rows of pot-bellied stoves, spinning wheels, cross-cut saws, weathered washboards, wooden barrels and, seemingly, 100,000 other miscellaneous relics.

Sarah's Shop, a quaint air-conditioned store, is the main entrance into Estil Oswald's antique empire in Blackwater. Formerly a full-time farmer, Oswald started selling and buying antiques commercially three years ago. What started out as a single shop has blossomed into a sprawling series of nine buildings, comprising nearly half the downtown business district. It's the largest collection of antiques in Central Missouri.

"Here for the grand tour, eh?" called Mrs. Sarah Oswald as she suddenly emerged from behind a row of vintage Wurlitzer jukeboxes. "Well, in that case, you'll need some nourishment because it's going to be a long walk." She apologized as she lifted the side lid of an old popcorn machine.

"The stuff in here is a little cold now, but it's fresh from this morning. Hope you don't mind. You can't beat these old-time fancy contraptions. I picked this one up when the Nelson (Mo.) theater sold and it still works like a top. I mean, we picked it up. My name's on our business card, but my husband does all the wheeling and dealing. I mostly tend shop, which is a job in itself."

Winding her way around old theatrical trunks, a large drugstore apothecary cabinet, and other artifacts, she suddenly stopped in front of a $1,200 jukebox with strips of stained-glass running down the front.

"Might as well have a little music while we're going," she said. "Don't worry, you won't need a nickel. You just plug it in."

Oswald joined his wife a few minutes later, ham and cheese sandwich in hand.

"Hope you don't mind me eating on the job," he said. "Been so busy today, I haven't had time to turn around. Course that's the way I like it. Come out front a moment, I want to show-you all something."

The object of his attention was in the rear end of a Dodge van. "A genuine antique roll-top mahogany railroad ticket desk. It's got a four-foot roll. This will be worth something to somebody, you can count on that."

If Oswald couldn't have counted on that, he wouldn't have bought it. "I got into this business because my wife and myself, we just like antiques anyway," he explained. "But we are a business and so we can't afford to get stuck with a lot of real junk, you know? Sometimes people try to pass off something as antique when it's something fairly new in bad condition."

Oswald figures to gross over $250,000 this year from his operation. In just one week recently, his sales totaled $12,000.

Moving on down the street, Oswald entered another building and walked to what at first glance appeared to be a regular garage — except that the car being serviced shared space in the area with at least four juke boxes, two or three sleighs and a vintage coin-operated Wells Fargo stagecoach children's riding machine.

"Old Tom, he can just about fix anything he wants to. I've never seen anyone like him," said Oswald of the mechanic working on the car. "Course, he's getting on in years, so he just works pretty much when he pleases."

Tom Burns is just one of several retired, or, semi-retired men who help Oswald. Another one, John Whitlow, now took over as tour guide for his boss, who was called away by a customer.

Whitlow made a bee-line to "my favoritest thing in the whole place." It was a century-old mail carrier's sleigh. "We've fixed it up and painted it red and blue and everything," he said. "Don't it look like something? I helped work on that and do other things around here just when I want to. I've been retired from the railroad 14 years now."

A third older man, Melvin "Cap" Bullard, owns the building where he specializes in repairing and restoring furniture purchased by Oswald. He, too, is enthusiastic about his work and the man who made it possible.

Following a few more inspection stops, Whitlow returned to Sarah's Shop. After a few minutes' wait, Oswald reappeared and walked over to a refurnished 1929 bright yellow Dodge coupe parked in the middle of the street.

"I'm going to end this tour in style," he announced. "I'm going to take you to my favorite antique place of all, my house.

"You know I've got more than enough to keep me busy now," he continued as he headed home. "What with all these buildings downtown and my house and all. People probably think we'd be content to have what is probably at least one of the largest antique dealerships in the state. But, by the same token, you never know about this business. It kind of grows on you. No sir, you just never know for sure."

Rectangular repetition

A spiraling staircase in the Cleveland Trust Co. building in downtown Cleveland, Ohio, provides an eye-pleasing pattern of rectangular repetition as it climbs gracefully. (AP Wirephoto)

New radio repeater installed

The Sedalia Amateur Repeater Association (SARA) was formed recently by 12 HAM radio operators from Sedalia and Marshall.

An amateur (HAM) radio repeater station will be located on the Cablevision, Inc., antenna tower south of Sedalia for the purpose of communicating severe storm warnings and highway emergencies observed by radio operators.

The repeater will extend the normal short-range capabilities of home-based and automobile VHF stations to distances up to 125 miles.

The repeater association, financed by its members, has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for a station license. Thirty such stations are now located in Missouri.

Officers of the new association include Greg Hibbard, 3201 Southwest Blvd., president; Gordon Buckner, Marshall; and Bob McDonald, 2602 Skyline.

Twenty-one amateur radio operators from Sedalia, Marshall, Warsaw, Columbia and Kansas City are members of the association.

The Dutch West India Co. sent out Dutch families to establish the settlement of New Amsterdam in 1624 and it became New York in 1664.

At wit's end

Interruptions

By ERMA BOMBECK

The inspiring words of famous Americans have often brought goose bumps to my skin.

Like Barbara Frietchie's "Shoot, if you must, this old gray head, But spare your country's flag," does it for me.

So does Robert Kennedy's "Some men see things as they are and say why. I dream things that never were and say why not?"

And of course, the dramatic, "The Eagle has landed" brings a tear.

But nothing has stirred me more than a quotation attributed to the late Eleanor Roosevelt. When she was asked if housekeeping bothered her she replied, "I rarely devote more than 15 minutes a day to it."

Good Lord, that's beautiful.

All my life I have waited for a President to say, "All I am or ever hope to be I owe to my mother's sparkling toilet bowl."

Or a woman accepting the Nobel Prize for literature saying, "I must share this with my mother whose devotion to dust inspired me."

But it has never happened. I personally find 15 minutes a day doing housework excessive, but it's the idea that counts.

When I was first married I broke my bones cleaning that apartment. Then one day, I was interrupted. "Where are you going?" asked my husband.

"I'm going to have a baby. I'll only be a minute or two."

That was 22 years ago and I never got back to housework as a formal religion.

I spread the word, "WANTED INTERRUPTIONS BY SUBURBAN HOUSE-HOUSEWIFE. NO OFFER IS TOO RIDICULOUS FOR CONSIDERATION. CALL ERMA, 888-9900. OUT OF STATE CALL OPERATOR 5."

And the interruptions came in. I subbed on a jousting team. Learned how to braid bread. Had another baby. Audited a Weight Watchers class. Took Hebrew Flower Arranging. Dyed my hair orange. Had another baby. Made a musical out of an encounter group. Raised hamsters in my home for a new coat. And learned how to parallel park a golf cart.

I don't know if I have the right attitude or not. Will my kids remember that I taught them how to ride a two-wheel bike or that the garage was condemned?

Will they remember that I sat with them when they had measles and watched Gilligan's Island reruns or that my kitchen buckled under too much wax?

I wish I knew. All I can say is, "Eleanor, if you know something I don't know ... give me a sign."

Council is told to meet in open

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — The Joplin City Council faces a court-issued order to keep its meetings open to the public, except those relating to personnel matters, legal actions and the purchase and sale of real estate.

The temporary restraining order was issued Friday by Judge Robert Warden of the Jasper County Circuit Court on petition of a woman who claimed she was forced to leave an informal council meeting June 3.

Judge Warden set a hearing on a request for a temporary injunction for July 17. Councilmen were served copies of the summons as they arrived Friday at City Hall.

The plaintiff, Roseanne Carrothers, attended the council session Friday, at which a progress report on a police management study was discussed. Mrs. Carrothers contended the council session June 3 was on the same subject, and that she was asked to leave by Mayor Lena Beal.

When she refused, she said, the mayor asked a councilman to escort Mrs. Carrothers from from the room.

Her suit contends the council violated Missouri's Sunshine Law.

Union local calls for a walk-out

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Monday has been set as a strike deadline by St. louis-area Quick Shop employes belonging to Local 655 of the Retail Store Emoloyes Union.

A spokesman for the union said Friday that the 300-member union planned to walk off the job at the beginning of the week unless a contract agreement is reached before then.

Union president Jack Valenti said the company had not made a reasonable contract offer since last January, pointing out that employes at the 82 stores earn the federal minimum wage of $2.10 an hour while supermarket employes doing similar work receive up to $5.70 an hour.

More miners hitting California streams

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Californians seeking their fortunes in the streams of the Mother Lode Country are growing in numbers.

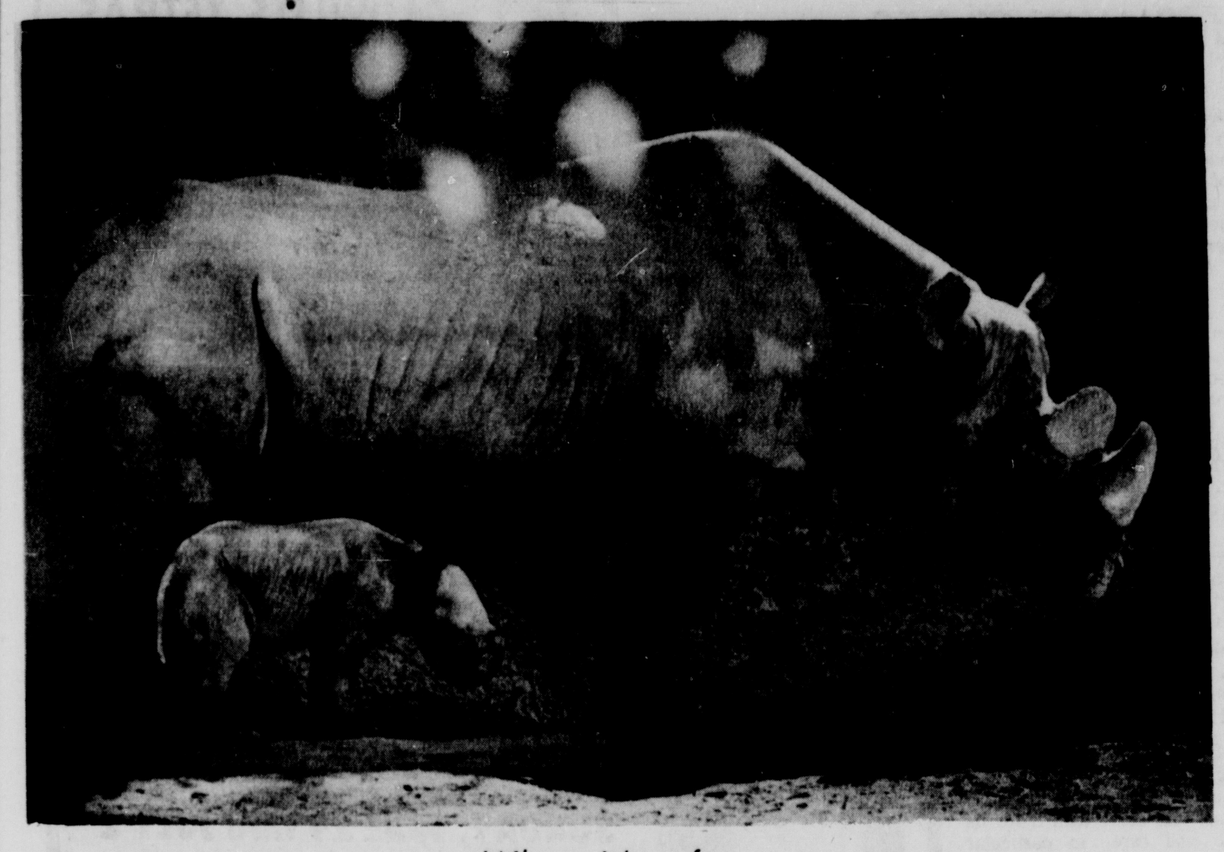

California's first industry has now become its newest hobby. So far this season the state has issued 4,400 permits to use gasoline-powered suction dredges on its streams, nearly twice as many as issued last year.

Most of the present-day gold miners work the goldbearing gravel deposits called "placers" that accumulate in slow parts of mountain streams.

Underground mining is uneconomical because of the cost of rebuilding and pumping water out of the old mine shafts.

Uranium business could prosper

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A new multibillion business may have been born this past week.

Picturing "an entirely new private industry in America," President Ford asked Congress to allow private companies to produce and sell high quality uranium to nuclear plants throughout the world to hasten an end to the current energy problem.

Since the dawn of the nuclear age 30 years ago, the making and selling of enriched uranium has been a strict federal monopoly for national security and safety reasons, and in Washington, aspects of the Ford proposal already were stirring controversy last week.

Ford said by shifting prime responsibility for building needed uranium facilities over the next 15 years to the private sector, he was saving the taxpayers some $30 billion. While few legislators opposed the plan on principle, some questioned the $8 billion federal guarantee Ford is seeking from Congress to cover losses if private firms find themselves unable to build or operate uranium plants profitably.

There also was question whether foreign partners in these private uranium enterprises might gain access to nuclear secrets. And environmentalists and others who say nuclear energy is costly and hazardous felt the Ford proposal was a giant step away from solving the nation's energy problems.

Wall Street applauded the plan, however, as nuclear-related stocks were among the week's market leaders in a moderate rally. The Dow Jones industrial average ended the week 17.68 points higher at 873.12.

Stock investors also drew encouragement from further government figures suggesting the recession has hit bottom, even if the good news has not yet reached the 8 million Americans still on unemployment lines.

The government's index of leading economic indicators, an aid in predicting the economic future, was up 2.1 per cent in May, the third straight monthly gain. The nation also recorded a $1.05 billion trade surplus last month, the fourth in a row.

On the bond market, the State of Massachusetts had its credit rating lowered form a top-level triple-A by Standard & Poor's Corp., and from double-A to A-1 by Moody's Investors Service Inc. The decision was the result of a credit review by the two bond raters as Massachusetts announced plans to market $450 million in 2 to 6 year notes this coming week.

Moody's also lowered New Jersey's rating from triple-A to double-A, the only other state this year to fall in the ratings.

Car makers happy with Ford's plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists and some experts within the administration oppose President Ford's recommendations for delaying stricter auto exhaust clean-up rules, but automakers welcome the proposal.

Ford said Friday that the main reason for his proposed four-year delay until 1981 is a potential health hazard posed by the catalytic converter, the principal device now being used to clean pollutants from car exhausts.

In a statement released by the White House, Ford said imposing tighter controls in 1977, as scheduled, also would reduce auto mileage per gallon and raise the cost of automobiles.

The President's recommendations to Congress go beyond what the Environmental Protection Agency and his own administration proposed only a few months ago.

The EPA earlier recommended keeping the current rules on auto emissions through only 1979, with a slightly tougher standard for automobiles produced in 1980 and 1981. In January, Ford had recommended changes in the Clean Air Act that did not even go that far.

White House sources reported there was some opposition within the administration, especially the EPA, to Ford's action.

Presidential energy adviser Frank G. Zarb is believed to have been the main architect.

John Quarles, deputy EPA administrator, ducked a question about reports of opposition from within his agency.

"Considering the total of all the factors, the President has reached this position," Quarles said. "That is a position which is binding on us and which we will accept and support."

The National Academy of Sciences earlier this month issued a report which said auto industry could meet the 1977 timetable as it now exists under the law. It said revisions of the law were not justified.

Ford Motor Co. President Lee A. Iacocca praised the President "for his realistic assessment of the economic and environmental problems...."

The National Clean Air Coalition called Ford's move "a last-ditch effort to permit the auto industry to keep on polluting."

Only Fink in town

Hundreds of persons turned out this week to help folks named Fink hold a festive reunion and celebrate National Fink Day in the North Texas village of Fink. When it came time to count the Finks, none could be found; then someone remembered there was an Oscar Fink from Denison, Texas. Oscar, in his 80s was located at the general store and chatted with newspeople. He is poet laurate of Fink, but declined to write a poem about the town.

'Jaws' doesn't deter swimmers

By The Associated Press

The power of suggestion has prompted shark sightings in a few resort areas where the movie "Jaws" is drawing record crowds, but officials say most of the danger is in the imagination. They report that tourist business has been unaffected.

The movie which recently opened around the country deals graphically with attacks by sharks on swimmers in Long Island, N.Y., waters. It has been doing a booming business, but an Associated Press spot check showed that thus far, the film has not kept would-be swimmers away from the beaches.

Officials in Rhode Island said there had been an upsurge in reported shark sightings, and beaches in Newport and Middletown were closed as a result of the problem. But John G. Casey, a biologist at the National Marine Fisheries Service in Narragansett said he checked and found no more sharks than usual.

"There were no indications that the number of sharks is any higher than in past years," Casey said after a week of surveying the waters about 100 miles south of Block Island.

He said there had always been a lot of sharks off the New England coast, but he added, "In reviewing 100 years of records, I've never found an example of a shark attacking a person in Rhode Island waters."

Casey blamed the movie for the sighting reports.

"Instead of a few lifeguards looking out toward the ocean, there will be thousands of eyes looking out there after swimmers see 'Jaws,'" he said.

In contrast, police and Coast Guard officials in Hawaii, where "Jaws" opened last Friday and is attracting record crowds, said they had not noticed any increase in reports about sharks. They said swimmers have been bitten over the years, but added that the last death resulting from a shark attack was over a decade ago.

Biologists and marine experts generally stressed that although shark attacks are dangerous and frightening, they are not really that frequent A Florida scientist said only 50 shark attacks are reported around the world each year. He said that, in contrast, over 300 people in the United States alone were stung to death in one year by bees and wasps.

Artificial valve saves woman's life

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A heart valve made primarily of pig tissue will give Cheryl Petit a chance to live a normal life, doctors say.

The prognosis was not as bright three months ago, after the 19-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla., woman gave birth to her first child. Without the operation, she could have died, doctors said.

"After a period of convalescence, she will be capable of living a physically full life," Dr. Jack Greenberg, chief surgeon at Mount Sinai Hospital, said Friday after implanting the pig tissue.

Mrs. Petit now has a valve that doctors call a porcine heterograft — a replacement for her own defective heart valve which had blocked the free flow of blood. It's a circular valve about one inch in diameter.

"The valve is not a living tissue," Greenberg said. "It functions but is not living, so there can be no active rejection."

Doctors say Mrs. Petit may have suffered from rheumatic fever during her pregnancy. After her son's birth, she experienced breathing problems and later suffered from extreme exhaustion.

After diagnosing her heart ailment, Greenberg opted for the pig valve — from a supply of pig tissue kept at the hospital. The tissue is preserved in a substance called gluteraldehyde.

"The pig was selected because the size of the aortic valve is similar," Greenberg said. "Also, the tissue is durable. Its strength and shape is most similar to that of a human."

He said synthetic parts implanted in humans are not new, having begun in 1960s. Animal tissue valves have been used for about seven years but remain a little publicized practice.

"We've had about 200 pig valve operations here since they began, and have enjoyed a 98 per cent success rate. Not much is said about the operation — I don't think some people want to know," a hospital spokesman said.

If you have a special browning dish for use in a microwave countertop oven, read the directions that come with it for its use and care! In particular note that it should be washed with hot water and detergent; stubborn stains should be removed with a plastic scouring ball and baking soda. Never use a metal scouring pad or steel wool on such a dish.

Two convictions handed down in slayings

KANSAS CITY (AP) — James A. Love, 25, a Marine accused in the slaying of a 2½-year-old boy and his young babysitter last New Year's Eve, was convicted Friday on two charges of second degree murder.

His punishment was assessed at 300 years imprisonment by the Jackson County Circuit Court jury. He was charged with slashing the throats of Jeffery Berger, and the babysitter, Sheila Curtright, 14, while the boy's parents were attending a New Year's Eve dance. The slayings were at the Berger home in Lee's Summit.

In ranks

Army Private Keith S. Nevius, son of Dr. and Mrs. Fred L. Nevius, Lincoln, completed eight weeks of advanced individual training as an armor reconnaissance specialist at the U.S. Army Armor Center, Ft. Knox, Ky.

He received instruction in the use of various kinds of weapons, maintenance of armor vehicles, map reading, communications, artillery adjustments, and mines and demolitions.

Industry search is paying off

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State officials, seeking to lure industries and the jobs that go with them into Missouri, say they are pleased with the initial results of a $24,000 regional advertising campaign.

"We're a little surprised at this point," said Jack Butler of the state Division of Commerce and Industrial Develeopment. "We're encouraged by the response we're getting."

Since the advertisements began running two weeks ago in the Chicago Tribune and the eastern and midwestern editions of the Wall Street Journal, there have been more than two dozen responses, primarily from manufacturing firms in the Chicago area and on the East Coast, Butler said.

There have been no solid commitments yet, but he said the initial inquiries include six "real prospects.

And CID officials expect the rate of inquiries to pick up in the next few weeks, although it could be as long as two years before firms responding to the ads might actually locate in Missouri.

"People are beginning to think more about an improvement in the economy," said Scott R. Allen, who pointed out that efforts to attract new businesses to the state other than the advertising campaign have also met with improved success in the past few months.

The six advertisements, all with Gov. Christopher S. Bond urging businessmen to "Join the Profit Parade," were developed in conjunction with the Stemmler, Fisher and Associates of St. Louis.

Five of them outline reasons why businesses should come to Missouri and the sixth lists available structures that could be immediately converted to manufacturing plants.

The ads were run in seven issues of the Eastern Edition of the Wall Street Journal, seven issues of the Midwestern Edition of the Journal and in six editions of the Chicago Tribune, Allen said.

While the current campaign is not the most successful waged by the state, it has been more successful than last year's when ads were placed in general circulation magazines, he added.

"We're feeling a little bit of an upturn," Allen noted of the campaign's apparent success. "Our efforts are producing more and more prospects."

Searching for 'Peking Man'

Christopher Janus, left, who became interested in the missing "Peking Man" fossils during a visit to China, searches a field near Vista in southern California, in a fruitless search effort inspired by Donald Githens, center, 25. Githens told Januss of finding a footlocker containing bones and pictures of Chinese scenes 15 years ago. Janus says the fossils are China "crown jewels."

Insurance firm agrees to quit its operation

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Lawyers Title Insurance Corp. has agreed to dissolve itself following charges that it had illegally conspired with seven Kansas City realtors to restrict title insurance business there.

The Virginia-based firm and the realtors also promised Atty. Gen. John Danforth, who had lodged the charges, that it would turn its remaining $60,000 in assets over to the state and refrain from insurance business in the state for 10 years.

Under the terms of the agreement, however, the company and realtors admitted no guilt.

The seven realtors are the Paul Hamilton Co., Clifford M. Brisbois, Eugene D. Brown, Joe E. Dittmer, Jack W. Frost, Donald B. Harris and Dwight D. Householter.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard W. Vodra, who handled the case, said, "Kickbacks and similar arrangements between title insurance companies and realtors have been a problem within the real estate business for quite some time."

Battle over dismissal of principle over

JUNCTION CITY, Kan. (AP) — Thomas Cugler has settled his dispute with Geary County Unified School District No. 475 over his dismissal and replacement as principal of Junction City High School.

Cugler filed suit June 16 in U.S. District Court at Topeka asking for an injunction and restraining order against the school board for terminating his 1975-76 contract.

Cugler's attorney, Robert K. Weary of Junction City, said Friday that "attorneys for both parties have agreed to settle the suit on a monetary basis only."

The suit also asked $50,000 in punitive damages, attorney fees and other proper relief. A preliminary show-cause hearing had been scheduled Friday before Judge George Templar in Wichita.

The board on June 9 employed Milton Brooks, superintendent of the Waterville unified school district, as successor to Cugler whose present contract expires July 31.

Cugler's current salary is $19,300 a year. He has been principal of the high school five years.

Aluminum firm says prices will increase

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Aluminum Company of America announced Friday that it will raise its prices 2.3 per cent July 7 over 60 per cent of its shipments.

The increase, which primarily affects products used in the building and construction industry, comes at a time when recession-hit aluminum production and shipments are making an upturn.

The nation's largest producer of aluminum, Alcoa is operating at about 70 per cent of capacity. "But it's coming back. We can see a definite change now that people are working off their inventories," a spokesman said.

Alcoa said that since it last raised prices in September, escalating bauxite levies by Jamaica and other bauxite-producing countries have contributed greatly to higher costs, as have increases in natural gas and other energy supplies.

Miss Judy Nevins

Vows said June 21

Miss Sandra Baker became the bride of Duane McDonald at 1:30 p.m. June 21 at East Broadway Baptist Church.

The Rev. Earl Ferguson performed the double ring ceremony and Miss Anne Rector was the organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Baker, 1101 Ware Ave., and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. Vasco McDonald, Kansas City.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long polyester satin gown overlayed with lace at the bodice front. In a Victorian style, her gown featured puff sleeves. A Juliet cap secured her fingertip illusion veil.

Mrs. Don Struffeler, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore a long pink dotted swiss gown in an A-line sleeveless style with a short-sleeved jacket.

The bride's brother, Paul Baker, was best man.

Following a reception at the Baker home, the couple left on a honeymoon to Kansas City. The bride wore a beige linen sundress for traveling.

The couple is at home in Columbia. The bride received a B.S. degree in education from the University of Missouri-Columbia in 1973 and is employed as a music teacher in Cairo. The groom, a 1972 graduate of the University of Missouri-Kansas City with a B. A. degree in radio-TV broadcasting, is a conference coordinator at UMC.

Pale away

Feeling pale. Use a creme blush to add color to your face. However, be different. Dab it on the bridge of your nose for a sunburnt look or on your chin to form a cleft or dimple.

EAR PIERCING ADVICE
By
CARMEN FLETCHER

Have you wanted to have your ears pierced, and just haven't gotten up the courage? Well, you don't need to feel lonely. There are hundreds of girls just like you. Only now your troubles are over.

At the State Fair Beauty Salon we can pierce your ears taking only a second and with a minimum amount of pain. I say "minimum," because it is mainly all in the mind. I have done a child's ear only to have her turn her head for me to do the other one.

The thought of pain never entered her mind. Our earrings are Surgically Stainless Steel covered with 24 carat gold and individually wrapped to be sterile. We don't even touch them to load them in the instrument. The instrument puts the earrings in the ear and attaches the back at the same instant. If properly taken care of in 6 to 8 weeks your ears will be completely healed.

PLEASE, don't let your girl friend talk you into piercing your ears with a needle, ice cube and a potato. Come to the PROFESSIONALS.

Oh yes, I failed to mention, we mark the ears with a special medical pen before to insure even they, the earrings, are even. This is very important. Earrings can be a very glamorous asset when applied properly.

Wedded romance blossoms with June vows

Miller-Mason

SWEET SPRINGS — At home in Sweet Springs are the former Miss Jolene Miller and Kenneth Joe Mason following their 8 p.m. June 7 wedding at Immanuel Lutheran Church here.

Parents of the newlywed couple are Mr. and Mrs. Vene Miller, Sweet Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. William Mason, Aurora.

A bouquet of white and apricot flowers and spiral candelabra adorned the altar as the Revs. Wayne Schumpe and Paul Feiertag performed the ceremony. Marie Wylie was the organist and John Nichols was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory silk organza gown designed with beaded Alencon lace at the high neckline, empire bodice and edging the sheer yoke. Motifs of lace accented the tapered sleeves, ruffled at the cuff. Her A-line skirt, trimmed in lace, swept a chapel train and her fingertip lace-edged veil was secured with a mantilla cap of ivory Alencon lace.

Miss Martha Ann Peters was the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Beth Bodmer, Miss Susan Roberts and Mrs. John Brown, sister of the bride. They wore apricot polyester gowns styled with sheer floral collars.

The bride's niece, Melinda Brown, and Beverly Roberts lit the candles while Mirishka Brown and Alisa Payne, both nieces of the bride, were flower girls. Mark Brown, the bride's nephew, was ringbearer.

Attending the groom as best man was Robert Heim. Groomsmen were Wayne Meadows, Don Harms and Jerry Harrell. Seating the guests were Don Compte and John Brown.

Following a reception at the Miller Home, the couple left on a honeymoon to southern Texas.

The bride, who attended William Woods College, Fulton, and Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, is employed as a secretary at Rival Manufacturing Co. here. The groom, a graduate of Southwest Missouri State University, Springfield, is an industrial engineer at Rival in Sedalia.

Dotson-Robb

Range Line Presbyterian Church was the setting for the 7:30 p.m. June 17 wedding of Miss Carolyn Dotson and David Robb.

The Rev. George Farr performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with pink roses, pink and white pompons and candelabra. Mrs. Jason Reid Chamberlin was the organist and Tom Reid was the soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Dotson, LaMonte, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Robb, Houstonia.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sheer white dotted swiss over bridal taffeta gown, fashioned by the bride and her mother. The bodice was styled with a jewel neckline and full sleeves and the double ruffled skirt fell to a chapel train. Her chapel length veil was secured with a Juliet cap trimmed in matching lace. Her only jewelry was a diamond necklace, a gift from the groom.

Miss Becky Alexander was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Kenneth Schuber and Miss Mary Jo Westermier. They wore blue sheer dotted swiss gowns styled similar to the bride's.

Lighting the candles were Bernard Ray Dotson, brother of the bride, and Cari May Chamberlin, cousin of the bride. Cousins of the bride Sarah Jane Chamberlin and Billy Meyer were flower girl and ringbearer, respectively.

Kenneth Schuber was best man and groomsmen were Tom Robb, the groom's brother, and Dennis Shuber. Seating the guests were John Robb, R. D. Harlan, cousins of the groom; Jimmy Morre, uncle of the bride; and Mark Chamberlin, cousin of the bride.

Following a reception at the church, the couple honeymooned in southern Missouri. The bride wore a blue knit princess styled dress with sheer blue floral jacket, made for her by her aunts, as her going-away outfit.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner June 8 at the church.

The couple is at home in Houstonia. The bride is a 1975 graduate of LaMonte High School. The groom, a Northwest High School graduate, has attended State Fair Community College and is presently employed by the M.F.A. Research Farm and Proving Grounds, near Marshall.

Fenton-Butner

TIPTON — The United Methodist Church here formed the setting June 6 for the sacred exchange of wedding vows by Miss Vicki Lynne Fenton and Dr. Michael Ray Butner.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Fenton, Tipton, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Vincil Butner, Independence.

The Revs. Ralph LaForge and Vincent Hoying performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with flower-bedecked candelabra and an old-fashioned floral arrangement forming the wedding candle background. Steve Finger was the organist. Dan Adkison and Dr. Clyde Snyder were the soloists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin organza gown, fashioned with a high neckline, empire bodice and lantern sleeves outlined with motifs of re-embroidered Alencon lace and seed pearls. The A-line skirt was trimmed in crocheted lace and pearls and extended into a chapel length train.

The matron of honor was Mrs. David Pace and the maid of honor was Miss Mary Butner, sister of the groom. Bridesmaids were Miss Ann Buehner, Mrs. Gary Heimericks, Mrs. Don Harkins and Miss Carol Tuck. They wore long, tiered gowns of floral sheers over pastel skirts with matching picture hats.

Miss Kim Wilkinson was candlelighter. Flower girl was Miss Ann Butner, sister of the groom, and ringbearer was Loren Wilkinson.

The groom's brother, Mark Butner, was best man. Other groomsmen were Matthew Butner, brother of the groom, Robert Kelly, and David, Gary and Larry Fenton, brothers of the bride. Seating the guests were Dr. Paul Behrmann, Robert Meyer, Donald Cobb and Larry Schreck.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The couple honeymooned in the Colorado Rockies. For traveling, the bride wore a peach knit dress.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner June 5 at Darryl's Butterfield Inn.

The couple will live in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where the groom is serving his residency.

Forst-Williams

HOUSTONIA — Miss Beverly J. Forst and Harold A. Williams II were married at 8 p.m. June 14 at the First Baptist Church here.

The Rev. Duane Banderman assisted by the Rev. Robert Humphreys performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Baker, Denver, Colo., and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Williams, Hughesville.

White gladioli with white and lavender chrysanthemums decorated the altar lit with candles. Mrs. Nelle Williams, grandmother of the groom, was the organist and vocalists were Mrs. Robert Lawson, sister of the groom, and Mrs. David Williams, sister-in-law of the groom.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride wore a silk organza and Chantilly lace gown styled with Bishop sleeves, stand-up collar and chapel train. Her shoulder length veil was secured with a bow of seed pearls and lace.

Mrs. Sharon Hayes, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a long lavender dotted swiss gown styled with a V-neckline and long cuffed sleeves trimmed in white lace.

Candlelighters and ushers were Bill Imhauser and Doug Mackesty. Miss Robin Lawson, the groom's niece, was flower girl and Stephen Banderman, the groom's nephew, was ringbearer.

David Williams, brother of the groom, was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. The bride wore a blue and white two-piece knit dress as her going-away outfit.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner June 13 at the Holiday Inn.

The couple is at home in Hughesville. The bride is a 1975 graduate of Northwest High School and the groom, a 1968 graduate of Northwest, is engaged in farming with Williams' Farms Inc.

Goodman-Kearney

Miss Martha Sue Goodman and Terry Joe Kearney were married at 6 p.m. June 7 at Faith Baptist Church by the Rev. Phil Minton.

Purple and white mums, chrysanthemums and carnations decorated the altar for the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Marcum, Hughesville, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Kearney, 1712 Country Club Blvd.

Vocalists were Misses Cindy Alle and Candy Holeman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a polyester and lace organza gown lined in taffeta. Lace bands trimmed her stand-up collar, empire waist, sleeve cuffs and skirt front which swept a chapel train. Her camelot lace cap secured a lace-edge chapel mantilla.

Miss Mandy Meyer was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sally Dale, Miss Linda Baer and Mrs. Dale Kearney, sister-in-law of the groom. They wore light lavender and dark purple dotted swiss gowns trimmed in lace.

Serving as candlelighters and ushers were Mark Goodman, brother of the bride, and Junior Ray Sleeper, cousin of the groom. The bride's sisters, Misses Michelle Dawn Marcum and Debbie Kay Goodman, were flower girls. Julius Ray Marcum Jr., brother of the bride, was ringbearer.

Attending his brother as best man was Dale Kearney. Groomsmen were Darrell Dillon, Caroll Dillon, uncles of the groom, and Donnie Goodman, brother of the bride.

Following a reception in the church basement, the couple left on a honeymoon to Bagnel Dam.

Don Kearney hosted a rehearsal dinner June 6 at Falt Creek Inn.

The couple is at home at 1300 South Ohio. The bride is a senior at Northwest High School and the groom, who attended Smith-Cotton High School, is employed at Rival Manufacturing Co.

Daisies, gladioli, mums decorate altars

Thompson-Milam

KNOB NOSTER — Repeating wedding vows June 14 at the Whiteman Air Force Base Chapel here were Miss Linda Kay Thompson and Mark Wayne Milam.

The bride is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. David W. Thompson, Whiteman AFB, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Milam, Lafayette, La.

Yellow gladioli and spiral candelabra decorated the altar as Lt. Col. Don Downing performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Merl Matthews was the organist and Miss Carol Harris was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long gown of high luster bridal satin overlayed with lustered satapeau sheer. Her wide cuffs and high collar were trimmed in scrolled floral Venise lace as was the headpiece of her chapel veil.

Candlelighters Tammy and Linda Milam, sisters of the groom, wore light blue long gowns accented with heavy floral lace.

Kenneth Pucheu was best man and groomsmen were Brent Milam, brother of the groom, Chuck Rush and Russell Chalmers.

Following a reception at the Whiteman AFB Officers' Club, the couple left on a wedding trip to Arkansas. The bride wore a short beige floral knit dress for traveling.

The bride, a graduate of Knob Noster High School, served as Miss Knob Noster during the past year. The groom is a graduate of Lafayette, La., High School.

The couple will reside in Laffayette, where both will attend the University of Southwestern Louisiana.

Karigan-Holan

United in marriage at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church were Miss Patricia Jean Karigan and David Allan Holan.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Karigan, 1842 South Beacon, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Holan, Chicago, Ill.

Yellow daisies and white crysanthemums decorated the altar as the Rev. Vincent Hoying performed the double ring ceremony. Debbie Eckhoff was the organist and David Rayl was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown styled with a V-necked bodice and stand-up collar in daisy lace. Her fitted empire-waist skirt was of dotted swiss and her white picture hat was enhanced with satin bow and trail of daisy lace.

Miss Marty Karigan attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Colleen Cooney and Brenda Gilpin. They wore pale yellow dotted swiss gowns trimmed with white lace.

Kathy Lee Kuttenkuler, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Tim Karigan and Joe Karigan were altar boys.

Bob Cox was best man. Groomsmen were Steve Karigan, brother of the bride, and Mark Holan, brother of the groom. Seating the guests were Jeff Karigan, the bride's brother, and Bob Lamm.

Following a reception at Sacred Heart cafeteria, the couple left on a honeymoon to Acapulco, Mexico. The bride wore a light green pantsuit as her going-away outfit.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner Friday at Westmoreland Country Club.

The couple will reside in Joplin. The bride, a 1975 Smith-Cotton High School graduate, plans to attend Missouri Southern College there this fall. The groom, who attended Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, for three years, is a district supervisor for Sirloin Stockade.

Morrow-Sorensen

Our Savior Lutheran Church was the setting for the 2 p.m. June 15 wedding of Miss Melissa Leigh Morrow and William L. Sorensen.

The Rev. Roger R. Sonnenberg performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Britt Bernard, 1408 South Carr, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sorensen, Sunrise Beach.

Turquoise, orange and yellow daisies decorated the altar as Mrs. Debbie Fine played the organ. Miss Nancy Mueller sang, accompanying herself on the guitar.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a turquoise knit jersey gown with smocked bodice and butterfly sleeves and an antique cross of her grandmother's, Mrs. James Merrick. Her turquoise veil was secured by a pearl tiara.

Miss Rebecca Morris, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a beige gown styled with butterfly sleeves trimmed in heavy beige lace.

Rick Samson was best man. Seating the guests were Bill Morrow and James Morrow, brothers of the bride.

The bride's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner the evening before the wedding at their home.

The couple will reside at Sunrise Beach until this fall when they will move to Warrensburg where the bride will be a junior majoring in education at Central Missouri State University and the groom will be a junior electrical engineering major.

Felten-Dick

Guests entered Sacred Heart Catholic Church through an archway entwined with spring flowers and greenery for the 7 p.m. June 20 wedding of Miss Cynthia Susan Felten and Jerome Charles Dick.

The Rev. Mark Miller performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle L. Felten, 1102 South Kentucky, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Dick, 1402 South Warren.

White gladioli with colored daisies and pompons decorated the altar for the candlelight mass. Mrs. Keith Woolery was the organist and vocalists were Miss Anna Paschke and Charles Robinson. Mass servers were Kurt Johnson, cousin of the bride, and Vic Dick, cousin of the groom. Richard Bahner was lector.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of re-embroidered Alencon lace. A high collar trimmed with Venise lace gave way to a full fronted bodice with lace ruffle. Her fitted sleeves peaked at the wrist and her tiered skirt swept a chapel length train. Her floor length veil of silk illusion was secured with a scalloped Chantilly lace headpiece. Her only jewelry was a heart-shaped necklace, a gift of the groom.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Fred Smith, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Carol Schuster, cousin of the bride; Miss Carrie Dick, sister of the groom; and Mrs. Dave Zerger, cousin of the bride. They were dressed in blue, pink, yellow and green dotted swiss gowns, respectively, which featured empire waists and flounced hemlines with matching bolero jackets.

Miss Laura Dick, sister of the groom, and Mark Felten, brother of the bride, were candlelighters. Miss Angie Holley, the groom's cousin, was flower girl and Master Butchie Dick, the groom's nephew, was ringbearer.

The bride's brother-in-law, Fred Smith, was best man. Groomsmen were Michael Melvin, Daniel Barr and Richard Drehle. Seating the guests were Alan Felten, Kent Felten, brothers of the bride, Daniel Fischer and Timothy Curry.

A reception and dance at Convention Hall, with Johnny Nace and the Midnighters performing, followed the ceremony. The couple took a honeymoon trip through Florida, Mississippi and New Orleans. The bride wore a long ivory halter dress with matching bolero for traveling.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner June 19 at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

The couple will reside at 1106 South Ohio. The bride, a 1973 Sacred Heart High School graduate, was graduated in 1975 from State Fair Community College with an A.S. degree in accounting. She is employed at First State Savings Association.

The groom, a 1970 Smith-Cotton High School graduate, was graduated in 1972 from the United Electronics Institute, Kansas City. He is employed at Medallion Electric Co.

Kelb-Jaekel

LINCOLN — Zion Lutheran Church here was the setting for the 7 p.m. Saturday wedding of Miss Anita Kelb and Bob Jaekel.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Davis, Lincoln, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jaekel, Lincoln.

Yellow and green gladioli decorated the altar for the double ring, candlelight ceremony. Larry Meyer was the organist and vocalists were Mrs. Phillip Johnson and Mrs. Elmer Wischmeir.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Venise lace and organza featuring an empire bodice and long sheer sleeves appliqued with lace and seed pearls. Her elbow-length illusion veil was secured with a headpiece of lace and pearls.

Mrs. Jack Johnson was the matron of honor and Miss Twyla Griffith was the bridesmaid. They wore long yellow gowns styled with short puff sleeves and rounded necklines with lace trim.

Candlelighters were Larry Wilson, cousin of the groom, and Roxann Yach, cousin of the bride. Lori and Lynn Harms were flower girls.

Ronnie Jaekel, the groom's brother, was best man. Groomsman was Jack Johnson. Seating the guests were Phillip Johnson and Bill Jaekel, brother of the groom.

A reception followed in the church basement. The bride wore a beige dress with printed jacket as her going-away outfit.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner Friday at Bigby's Restaurant here.

The couple will reside in Sedalia. The bride, a 1975 graduate of Benton County High School, will receive her beautician's license in September. The groom, a 1971 graduate of Benton County, is self-employed.

Bergmans mark anniversary

OTTERVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Elmer A. Bergman, Route 2, will observe their 35th wedding anniversary with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. July 6 at the American Legion Building here.

The open house for Mr. Bergman, 78, and his wife, 58, will be hosted by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Steve E. Bergman, Otterville; Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Dove, Green Ridge; and Peter A. Bergman, Saum, Minn.

Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

MRS. BOB JAEKEL
Miss Anita Kelb

Future brides take note

Future brides who wish to submit their wedding stories to The Democrat-Capital should secure a wedding form from the newsroom at the newspaper office, Seventh and Massachusetts.

There is no charge for publication of bridal stories, but only those forms submitted within the established deadlines and policies will be considered for publication.

Wedding stories, with or without a photograph, must be submitted within two weeks of the ceremony. Thursday noon is the deadline for all bridal stories submitted for publication in the following Sunday's edition.

Close-up, professional photographs of the bride are to be black and white, 5-by-7 inch. Photographs that do not meet quality standards will not be used.

Photographs may be picked up following publication, but none will be returned by mail unless accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The Democrat-Capital will not be responsible for damage which may occur to photographs submitted.

NSA installs officers

The Sedalia chapter of the National Secretaries Association met Thursday night at Maxine's for installation of officers.

Leading the chapter for the next year will be Judy Bear, president; Mrs. John (Rita) Kenney, president-elect; Mrs. Jessie (Iva M.) Bettis, vice-president; Miss Joyce Aurig, recording secretary; Mrs. Dwayne (Deborah) Steele, treasurer; and Mrs. James (Sandra) Wikstrom, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Donnie P. (Joanne) Kabler, past-president, conducted the installation ceremony.

It was announced that Mrs. Edwin F. (Mary) Bruns, CPS, representing the chapter, was one of five finalists in the Missouri Division Outstanding Secretary of the Year contest held May 17 in Kansas City.

In other business, it was learned that Mrs. Bruns and Mrs. Jack (Betty) Blackwell, have been appointed to serve on the state Secretaries Week committee and Mrs. Kabler to serve on the state Retirement Center committee.

Energy from sun: no longer a dream

There may be nothing new under the sun, but the sun itself is being seen in a new way that holds increasing promise for energy in the long run.

Solar energy, which was talked about mainly in theoretical terms only a few years ago, is moving from the drawing boards into the field.

An Illinois developer announced this week that he will build an 11-home subdivision at Troy, in the St. Louis area, with all units to be heated by solar energy. This is believed to be the first time a complete subdivision has gone the solar route.

Recently a Hermann, Mo., firm announced that it would begin production of solar furnaces.

Although back-up furnaces will be installed in the Troy subdivision, the developer claims the solar units will provide 75 to 80 per cent of the homes' heating needs. In homes using oil or electric heat, the solar furnaces will pay for themselves in five years, the developer maintains.

The units are composed of hundreds of aluminum "cups," which collect the sun's rays with the aid of mirrors and in turn heat air that circulates through the area. The heat that is generated is stored in up to 45,000 pounds of rock that is kept in the device.

Cost of the units is from $4,500 to $5,500.

The furnaces are able to store energy for up to five days, which would see homeowners through cloudy periods. In cases where not enough heat is stored in the solar devices, the regular furnaces kick on.

Although solar energy is still barely in the infancy stage, every indicator points to a big future for the industry. Obviously this would have major ramifications as far as the energy crisis is concerned, not to mention conventional utility companies.

Transfer of land at senator's bidding

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Before Rogers Morton left the Interior Department, Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., called upon him as one Republican to another for a small favor.

The senator wanted the Kofa Game Range in Arizona taken away from the Fish and Wildlife Service and put under the sole jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management.

The latter has a reputation for being soft on land development. Environmentalists, therefore, suspected that some powerful developers were behind the move and that the BLM would open the range for mining and other commercial uses.

Morton's advisers opposed giving the range to the BLM, but Morton overruled them. "It's the least I can do for Paul Fannin," he was heard to say.

Environmentalists have alerted Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., who is investigating the transfer. He has found that all the staff memos at the Interior Department favored keeping the range under only Fish and Wildlife jurisdiction. The two agencies shared jurisdiction in the past.

A spokesman for Morton said the former interior secretary might have made the comment about Fannin but didn't recall it. Morton decided to turn the range over to the BLM because the local citizens wanted it that way, said the spokesman. The same point was made by a spokesman for Fannin.

But the environmentalists are convinced that the decision was made so developers, who support Fannin, can get their hands on the land.

STRANGE HOST: The brother of New Orleans underworld boss Carlos Marcello has sworn that the State Department has used him as an "official host at several luncheons and dinners in honor of influential and important international dignitaries."

Joe Marcello Jr., made the claim in an appeal for liquor licenses for Broussard's Restaurant, which he hopes to operate in New Orleans' famous French Quarter.

Although he has no criminal record himself, his brother Carlos is identified in federal files as "the top ranking member of the Mafia in the New Orleans area." Joe Marcello's application was turned down, therefore, because of his "character and reputation."

In his appeal, he contended that "by being called upon to be his country's official host to foreign leaders in world affairs, (he) has served his country, state and city in a capacity that can be claimed by few in this country."

For this service, he swore, he "has been officially afforded the highest compliments and accolades of the United States State Department."

We can find no record at the State Department that Marcello has ever been used as an "official host." We have established that distinguished visitors have been taken to the Elmwood Plantation, another restaurant he operates in the New Orleans area. They were brought to the restaurant, however, by volunteer hosts, not by any arrangement with the State Department.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Some political advisers are urging President Ford to let the Republican convention choose his running mate next year. Sources close to the President tell us, however, that he will insist on keeping Vice President Nelson Rockefeller on the ticket . . .

✓ Ex-Vice President Spiro Agnew has gone into Nixon-like seclusion in a fashionable neighborhood near Annapolis. The Agnew family refuses to talk to reporters and has little to do with its neighbors. Close friends say the proud Agnew is waiting for the right time to tell his story and clear his name . . .

✓ The Secret Service gave approval for Hollywood to film part of the Watergate movie, "All the President's Men," on the White House grounds. Then Robert Redford, the star of the picture, began lobbying between takes against the President on the strip-mining bill. All of a sudden, the moviemakers were no longer welcome at the White House. It may have been a coincidence, Redford told us...

✓ The CIA has received solid evidence from Cambodia that "over 100 military and civilian personnel who fought or served on the side of the Lon Nol government were killed in one northwestern provincial capital." The CIA also has "reasonably firm evidence that similar large-scale killings occurred in two other northwestern provincial capitals" . . .

✓ Defense Secretary James Schlesinger has ordered a secret review of the Japanese-American military alliance. He hopes to improve military cooperation . . .

✓ A ceremony honoring Julian Price, the Army-Air Force Exchange's purchasing chief, for his "humanitarianism" was called off after we discovered that contractors doing business with him had been pressured to pay $175 a head to attend . . .

✓ The Securities and Exchange Commission is looking into an alleged scheme by a large securities dealer to maneuver 150 of his employes through their dealers' exams fraudulently. The Internal Revenue Service is also investigating reports that the firm's president dipped into company funds for parties, a girl friend and campaign contributions. He denies the charges.

A conservative view

Message on crime lacking

WASHINGTON — President Ford's comprehensive message on crime was the work of a wise and experienced politician. That is intended as a compliment, not an insult. Mr. Ford asked Congress for all he realistically could hope to get, which is perhaps a sensible approach. It was thus a good message.

Kilpatrick

It was good, but it could have been better. The President had some first-rate things to say about prison reform, juvenile crime, and the urgent need to imprison the violent "repeaters" who prey upon our major cities. He made several excellent recommendations for improving criminal justice generally, and he asked for a modest program to compensate the victims of violent crime.

All this was fine. The message, coming in the same week the President set up his campaign committee, is certain to have broad political appeal. Some of his statements had a ritual ring: "For too long, law has centered its attention more on the rights of the criminal defendant than on the victim of crime." But that is all right. These ritual things need to be said.

Yet there are times, it seems to me, when a president ought to look beyond the politically appealing, and beyond the legislatively attainable, in order to provide a bolder leadership. The message offered an opportunity, for example, for Mr. Ford to throw the weight of his office behind restoration of the death sentence. The President might have addressed the folly of sending young men and women to prison for mere possession of small amounts of marijuana. He might have come down one way or another on the issue of abortion? Is it murder?

Mr. Ford chose to be politic. He was silent on these issues. On the matter of gun control, which cries out for forceful leadership, he landed all spraddled out. He was "unalterably opposed to federal registration of guns or the licensing of gun owners," but he favored "mandatory prison sentences for anyone who uses a gun in the commission of a crime" and he asked tighter controls against the domestic manufacture, assembly or sale of "Saturday night specials."

Half measures are doubtless better than no measures, just as half loaves, if one is hungry, are surely better than none. But the menace of the criminal with a handgun, as Mr. Ford himself emphasized, is a terrifying problem. In the name of domestic tranquility, the problem must be attacked, not merely picked at.

The President devoted only a single paragraph to organized crime. He asked for legislation that would make it a federal crime "to operate or control a racketeering syndicate." His purpose is to reach "organized crime leaders who seek to conceal their role in the syndicate's criminal activities."

This is all right, again, as far as it goes. But isn't there a more effective way of attacking organized crime? Professor William J. Flittie, of Southern Methodist University's School of Law, believes there is. He proposes to strike at criminal syndicates not by criminal law, but by civil injunctions. It is almost impossible to convict a top racketeer on a criminal indictment — not when a jury must be unanimously convinced of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Professor Flittie's point is that a civil proceeding, tried before a federal judge under a lower standard of proof, could be a powerful weapon against the mobsters.

This is the sort of bold, constructive, imaginative thinking that must be pursued if we are serious about reducing the appalling levels of crime in our society. In his message Mr. Ford almost confronts — but never quite confronts — the grim truth that present approaches simply are not working. Crimes of every description are increasing — juvenile crime, violent crime, organized crime, white-collar crime. No other nation in the world is as plagued as our own.

Art Buchwald

Cracking down on white collar crime

WASHINGTON — President Ford has come out with a very tough program against crime. His message to Congress took care of every type of felony except white-collar crime. I thought this was an oversight until I talked to a White House aide who said the President was still working on his white-collar crime program.

Buchwald

"The Administration is going to get very tough on white-collar crime," the aide told me.

"What do you plan to do?"

"Well, any company that gives illegal campaign contributions to a political party will lose its private plane privileges for two weeks."

"That's good," I said. "What about executives who overcharge the government for defense work?"

"We're taking a hard line on that. Any company executive who overcharges the government more than $5 million will be fined $50 or have to go to traffic school three nights a week."

"That will make him think twice. Suppose an oil company jiggles its books and cheats consumers out of millions of dollars?"

"It could never happen," the aide said. "But if it did, that company would be forbidden to advertise on TV football games for one year."

"Will your propose any punishment for grain officials who sell millions of tons of rotten wheat abroad?"

"We certainly will. Any grain official convicted of selling bad wheat will lose half his tax rebate for 1975."

"What about men in high government positions who abuse the public trust and accept graft from crooked contractors?"

"The President will refuse to appoint them to the U. S. Supreme Court."

"He really sounds like he means business," I said.

The aide said "White-collar crime is a cancer on our society and we cannot tolerate it in a democratic system. The President has asked the Justice Department to root it out and make examples of the men who would flout the law."

"I guess that includes the drug companies that fix prices among themselves?" I asked.

"Of course. Price-fixing is one of the worst of all white-collar crimes because it hits everyone where it hurts most — in the pocketbook."

"Should drug company officials go to jail?"

"Only if they refuse to promise not to do it again."

"Now what about stock fraud where someone steals the savings of widows and orphans?"

"We think the widows and orphans should be given probation."

"No, I meant the men who perpetrated the stock frauds."

"We believe those matters should be settled out of court."

"Has the President made any provision in his white-collar crime message for real-estate operators and developers who sell faulty housing and worthless land?"

"Yes. Any real-estate operator or developer caught defrauding a buyer will not be permitted to buy U. S. government bonds for one year."

"That's what I call law and order. Now one more question. What penalties are you asking for a government agency that monitors your mail, breaks into your house, taps your phone and reads your IRS return without permission?"

"We are not asking for any."

"Why not?"

"The President considers them crimes of passion."

'Voice' deals in truth

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — The Voice of America is no still small voice crying in the wilderness. It is the global radio network of the United States Information Agency which seeks to promote understanding abroad for this country, its people, culture and policies. The Voice broadcasts support these efforts through objective and comprehensive news reports and features emphasizing a balanced and serious picture of American life.

At least 35 languages are regularly scheduled and others are specially programmed. There are 776 hours per week of direct broadcasting and 4,000 local radio stations in other countries also broadcast programs prepared by the Voice or USIA posts abroad. The Voice supports USIA overseas information and cultural programs with materials taped and written. More than 50 million adults over the age of 14 listen to the Voice direct broadcasts in a given week. For example, Neil Armstrong's first words on the moon, "one small step for man — one giant leap for mankind," were heard as he spoke them by an estimated 750 million listeners. The VOA weekly broadcasts of daily news without outstanding events is estimated at 50 million.

The Voice first went on the air 79 days after the attack on Pearl Harbor with the statement: "The news from the war may be good or bad, but we shall tell you the truth." Thirty-three years later this same policy is continued on a much broader scale with more efficient equipment.

For many years "jamming" was a serious interference, especially by the Soviet Union. A recent release by USIA says that China alone is the only nation that jams the Voice. Most of the Communist countries have their own direct broadcasts as well as the United Kingdom and Egypt. These nations provide considerable competition for the Voice, but it plows steadily on telling the world the truth about America.

The Missouri bicentennial

(Hazel Lang won first place for this poem in the state Daughters of the American Revolution bicentennial poem contest.)

July 4, 1776
The document was signed
By a group of American patriots
Who well had in mind
That if to the British the Colonies lost
In peril their lives would be
But the Declaration did they sign
To make the country free.
Far to the west the miles stretched
To the great country's heart
Where here within this wilderness
Life already had a start.
French Canadians founded Ste. Genevieve
In 1735,
Here with religion and education
This white settlement seemed to thrive.
'Twas the first west of the Mississippi
And Christianity was taught
To the Indians and half savage trappers
At the place their furs were brought.
But even in 1541
This land was claimed by Spain,
DeSoto discovered the Mississippi,
When he died interest seemed to wain.
Later the French purchased it,
Part of Louisiana Territory it became
And a desire for statehood
Slowly began to flame.
This territory was coveted
And later from France was bought
Through the Missouri Compromise
Its statehood then was sought,
At last President Monroe's proclamation,
August 10, 1821, the date,
The beautiful land of Missouri
At last became a state.
Already great adventures
Were here, like Daniel Boone,
Many eastern and southern colonists came
To settle the new land soon.
Heavy covered wagons squeaked along
Carrying the pioneers,
And their women had great courage
For they had many fears,
Indians and wild animals,
So many hardships when
They dared to come and settle
This wild country with their men.
The pioneers built log cabins
And they settled close together
That they might help each other
In the hardships they would weather,
So across the state they moved
Living off the fertile land,
Here, too, they found minerals
And salt mines were at hand.
Steamboats chugged 'long its rivers,
Dirt trails had been cut through,
Trading posts to villages
And then to cities grew.
There were stage coach stops and taverns
Where many travelers stayed
And there have been three capitals
Where laws have been made,
St. Louis, St. Charles, Jefferson City,
And as pioneers onward pressed
Missouri became known to all
As the Mother of the West.
The Pony Express at St. Joseph
Originated when gold seekers came in Headed for California
Hoping much wealth to win.
So Missouri built its churches,
Its communities and schools,
It's been famous for its cattle,
Its horses, swine and mules,
It's a place of natural wonders
With God's fabulous creations
Like the unique wild beauty
And its ancient rock formations,
The phenomena of its springs,
Its glorious Ozark hills
And still standing in some places
Covered bridges, water powered mills,
Its caves are crystal fairylands,
There are man made immense lakes
Autumn's vivid panorama
And the spring when life awakes.
Across the state came the railroads
Inching their way mile after mile,
And along them small communities
Sprang up and thrived for a while,
Then came the highway network
Causing some small towns to fade
With trucks and cars, some vanished
That the great railroads had made,
Airports replaced railroad stations,
Machinery replaced horse and plow,
So machinery and computers
Are a way of life here now.
Yes, there's been a lot of changes
In the past two hundred years,
Both progress and depression,
Wars, disasters, many tears,
Missouri gave General Pershing
And General Bradley to the wars,
It gave President Harry Truman,
It has given movie stars,
Many writers, many artists
With super talents to create,
Mark Twain, Walt Disney, Jack Oakie
Were all born in this state
Joseph Pulitzer and Eugene Field,
From humble beginnings, some,
Statesmen, engineers, financiers,
From its sons and daughters have come,
The Ragtime King, Scott Joplin,
Wrote his first great music here,
Educators, musicians, singers,
To the world have become dear.
Ah, yes, since 1776
Missouri's light has shown
From trading post have St. Louis
And Kansas City grown.
From south and east came pioneers
And immigrants from other lands
With only dreams did they carve
Missouri with their sturdy hands,

So at the Bicentennial
It is time we should remind
Ourselves of the group of patriots

And the document they signed.
Let us thank God for our freedom

And the State that we so prize,

Settled by the bold, brave pioneers
God-fearing, confident, wise.

SATURDAY SUPPER
Frankfurters on Buns
Salad Bowl
Rhubarb Crisp

RHUBARB CRISP
5 cups cut fresh rhubarb
1 cup raisins
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
Topping, see below

Turn rhubarb into a buttered 8-inch square cake dish; sprinkle with raisins. Mix sugar, cinnamon and salt; sprinkle over raisins. Bake in a reheated 375-degree oven 15 minutes. Sprinkle with Topping. Continue baking until topping is golden-brown — 15 to 20 minutes longer. Serve with vanilla ice cream. Makes 6 large servings.

Topping: Stir together 1 cup pancake mix and 1-3rd cup firmly packed light or dark brown sugar; cut in ½ cup butter or margarine until particles are fine.

S-C class of '50 reunite

Bob Solomon, 904 Leone, was master of ceremonies and distributed copies of the 25th anniversary yearbook which listed names and addresses of all the graduates plus information concerning their occupations.

Door prizes were presented to Mrs. Marcella (Jones) Buhlig, Seoul, Korea, for traveling the farthest distance; Mrs. Alberta (Runge) Garrett, Overland Park, Kan., youngest-appearing female; and Leo Eickhoff Jr., St. Louis, youngest-appearing male. The prize for the grandmother and grandfather with the oldest grandchildren went to Olive (Vincent) Church, Laramie, Wyo., and Leonard Craig, Palm Bay, Fla. Mary Ann (Bunch) Groetsch was recognized as being married the shortest length of time, Duane Furnell, Route 3, for having the most children and Don Harrison, Lincoln, Neb., for having the youngest child.

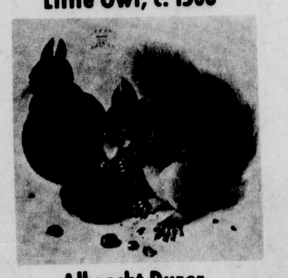

Glenn (Mack) Kell conducted tours of the high school during the afternoon for out-of-town alumni who had not seen the many improvements made in the building recently.

Serving on the reunion committee were Guil and Mary Alice Flores, Dorothy Kell, Delores Foster, John Mothersbaugh, Cecil Monsees, Joan Monsees, Margaret Ann Dowdy, Mimi Hale and Kay Lukacs.

Opening lead — Q ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

North and South were bidding what might be called advanced standard American. Thus North's jump to four spades conveyed the standard information that he had 19 or 20 points in support of spades, but special information that his hand included no singletons or voids.

Based on that information South decided to play six without exchanging any information that might help the defense.

South won the club lead in dummy and made the standard safety play of leading a trump to his ace. This guarded against the danger of finding all four trumps in one hand. As it turned out, this was an essential play.

South's next move was a low trump toward dummy. West played the 10 and dummy the king.

South still had problems but he solved them in admirable fashion. He started by cashing dummy's ace-king of hearts and ace of diamonds. Then he led a club to his ace, ruffed his last club and finally led dummy's nine of trumps. West took his queen but had to lead to South for the rest of the tricks.

Apart from the trump safety play, it should be noted that if South had failed to cash dummy's high heart and the ace of diamonds West could have thrown him in dummy and scored his eight of trumps as a diamond overruff.

FUNNY BUSINESS

Trevino, Heard, Nichols — lucky to be alive, doctor says

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Lee Trevino and two other lightning-jolted pro golfers are lucky to be alive, their physician said Saturday.

"It is fantastic that three men were struck and all are living," Dr. Paul G. Fredrickson said. "It's quite phenomenal, I think."

Trevino, Jerry Heard and Bobby Nichols were listed in excellent condition in Hinsdale Hospital. All were stunned and shaken by lightning bolts that forced cancellation of Friday's round in the $200,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

Saturday's round also was washed out after heavy overnight rains made the Butler National Golf Club course unplayable. One round now is scheduled for Sunday and the final two rounds on Monday. However, the weather forecast was for thundershowers both days.

Heard, who was to be released from the hospital Saturday, said he hopes to be able to play when the tournament resumes. Trevino and Nichols will not play.

"Within a week they should back on the golf course," Dr. Fredrickson said.

"It was a shakey experience for all of them, and I believe Lee was hit harder than any of them," Dr. Fredrickson said. "He was quite shaken up. He had an exit mark on his back and muscle rigidity for some time in his upper back.

"I think they are all fortunate to be here."

Trevino and Nichols were to remain hospitalized until Sunday for observation. They spent Friday night in the hospital's intensive care unit but were transferred to private rooms Saturday.

In the event that weather forces further cancellations, the tournament schedule could be extended as late as Tuesday. After that it would run into a conflict with next week's Milwaukee Open, and this event would be abandoned.

With only one round completed, Australian David Graham held the lead at 65. His six-under-par effort Thursday broke the course record by two strokes. Arnold Palmer was second at 68, with Heard and Gary Wintz next at 69.

Half the field of 156 had finished their second rounds Friday when play was cancelled. All those rounds will be played again in their entirity. Of those who had finished play Friday, none had broken par 142 for two rounds.

"Lee is awful shaken up," said Albert Salinas, his personal manager who spentthe night at the hospital with Trevino. "He's stiff and sore all over.

"As soon as he gets out of the hospital, we're going home to El Paso. The doctor here said Lee should check with his personal physician when we get home, just as a safety precaution. After that, it's pretty much a personal thing.

"You know Lee, as soon as he's up and about, he's gonna want to play."

Trevino is scheduled to compete in the British Open in Carnoustie, Scotland, July 9-12.

Chisox stop Royals; Redbirds win in 10th

CHICAGO (AP) — The streaking Chicago White Sox rode the six-hit pitching of Claude Osteen to their seventh consecutive victory, whipping the Kansas City Royals 5-3 Saturday night.

Ken Henderson drove in two runs with a pair of sacrifice flies, both times after hits by Deron Johnson put the runners in scoring position.

The White Sox broke a 2-2 tie with a run off loser Dennis Leonard, 3-4, in the third inning on Pat Kelly's triple and Jorge Orta's double. They made it 4-2 in the fourth on singles by Bill Melton and Carlos May and Bob Coluccio's bunt single.

Chicago got its final run in the fifth on a walk to Bucky Dent, Johnson's single and Henderson's second sacrifice fly. John Mayberry hit his ninth home run for the Royals in the ninth.

Henderson also drove in one of two Chicago runs in the first inning after a walk to Orta, a single by Dent and Johnson's 400-foot double produced the first run.

Cards 3, Expos 2

MONTREAL (AP) — Ron Fairly's bases-loaded single in the 10th inning carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-2 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday night.

Ted Simmons' two-out single off Don DeMola, 2-2, started the rally. He went to third on Ken Reitz' double and Ted Sizemore was walked intentionally before Fairly, batting for winner Al Hrabosky, 3-2, singled to right, scoring Simmons. Reitz was thrown out at home trying to score on the hit.

The Cards got a first-inning run on Reitz' sacrifice fly but Montreal came back with two in the third. Pepe Mangual doubled and came around on singles by Tim Foli and Mike Jorgensen. Infield hits by Larry Biittner and Gary Carter then scored Foli. St. Louis tied it in the fifth on Simmons' double and Reitz' single.

Yanks 8, Bosox 6

BOSTON (AP) — Walt Williams ripped a tie-breaking double between the legs of Boston third baseman Rico Petrocelli with one out in the eighth inning Saturday, sparking the New York Yankees to an 8-6 victory over the Red Sox.

The triumph put the Yankees back into first place in the American League's East Division.

Reds 6, Padres 4

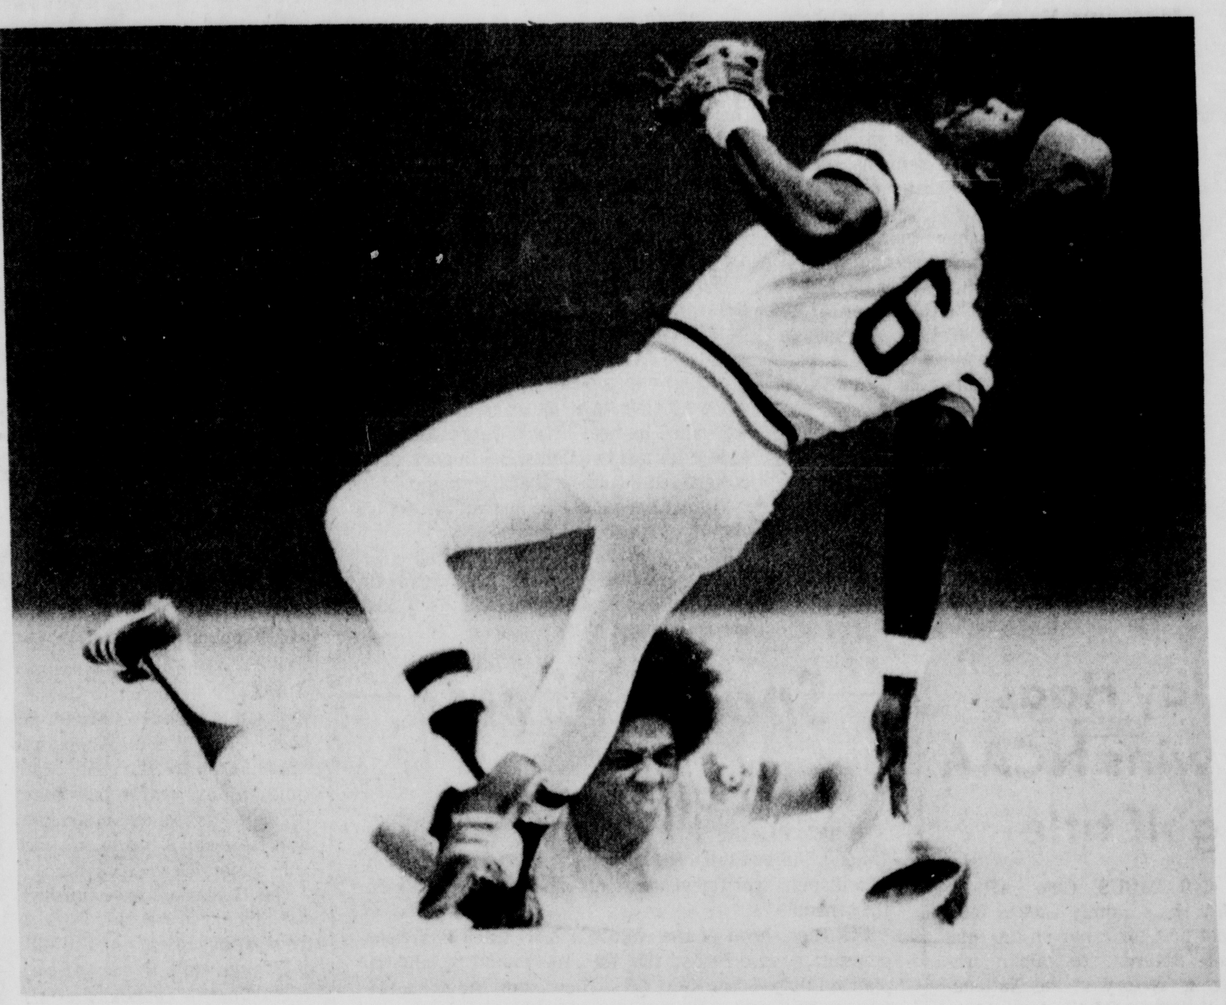

CINCINNATI (AP) — George Foster's two-out, two-run homer in the 10th inning powered the Cincinnati Reds to a 64 victory over the San Diego Padres Saturday.

Dave Tomlin, 1-1, who had replaced starter Joe McIntosh at the start of the 10th, gave up a one-out walk to Joe Morgan before Foster belted his 11th homer of the season into the left field seats.

Brewers 10, Tribe 6

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Run-scoring doubles by Charlie Moore and Bobby Mitchell and a two-run single by Robin Yount in the eighth inning gave the Milwaukee Brewers a 10-6 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday night.

The Indians broke a string of 20 2-3 consecutive scoreless innings by the Brewers' Jim Slaton when they scored in the third.

Second base spin

Chicago Cubs outfielder Jose Cardenal looks toward first after taking out Pirates second baseman Rennie Stennett (6) during the first inning of Saturday's game at Pittsburgh. Cardenal was forced at second, but was successful in breaking up a double play on Bill Madlock's grounder to shortstop Frank Taveras. The Cubs won, 1-0.

Tigers manager charged with assaulting reporter

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ralph Houk, the Detroit Tigers manager known for his temperamental nature on the baseball diamond, was released on his own recognizance by a district court commissioner Saturday after being formally charged with one count of assault.

Houk, who allegedly vented his anger at a Baltimore Evening Sun sportswriter by slapping him about the head Friday night, was ordered to appear in state district court here Sept. 24 during his club's next road trip to Baltimore.

The Detroit manager was questioned by police about the incident Saturday after he suddenly appeared at the Northern District headquarters to answer a warrant for his arrest, a spokesman said.

Ralph Houk

The arrest warrant had been issued early Saturday after Phil Hersh, a sportswriter for the Baltimore Evening Sun, filed a complaint charging assault.

Hersh alleged in his complaint that Houk began berating him before Friday night's game about a story that he had written saying the Detroit manager told his club "the situation is hopeless but you can still play respectably."

"I started to duck out the closest door when Houk started slapping me saying I wasn't going through there," Hersh said, adding that the manager struck him several more times about the face before a Tigers player interceded.

Hersh swore out the assault complaint Friday, and early Saturday filed for the arrest warrant.

NFL players association to fight reduced rosters

WASHINGTON (AP) — New National Football League rules reducing team rosters could force injured players to play when they shouldn't and will mean about 20 per cent of last year's veterans won't be back, Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said Saturday.

"The NFLPA will fight this illegal action by the owners in every way possible," he said in a statement released at his Washington headquarters.

The NFL owners announced Friday that the player limit for the 1975 season will be 43 players, down from 47 last year, with no taxi squad.

In other action, the NFL ruled that if a team puts a player on the injured reserve list during the season, it cannot bring him back that year. Previously, he could be recalled if he cleared waivers.

At the end of the season, teams are required to put on no-recall waivers all injured reserve players except three. Previously, there was no limit on the number of injured reserve players.

Garvey said the rule changes are more serious than first indicated — that there will be 104 fewer jobs among the 26 clubs.

"In addition to cutting four jobs, they've made the injured reserve list less useful to the clubs," he said. "They are now forcing teams to carry injured players on the active list. It will put more pressure on coaches, trainers and doctors to force injured players to perform."

Garvey said by limiting clubs to rosters of 43 players plus three on the injured reserve, the league will actually be reducing club size by seven because the average squad size last year was 53.1 players.

Garvey also disputed NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle's statement, repeated after the NFL meeting, that 12 teams lost money in 1974.

"No team lost money in 1974 from football operations," he said.

Barbara Berkmeyer wins women's title

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Barbara Berkmeyer of St. Louis blazed to her second straight Women's Missouri Golf Association title Saturday by crushing Karin Cooper, 12 and 11, in the scheduled 36-hole final at the Algonquin Golf Club.

Mrs. Berkmeyer, the mother of a 17-month-old son, led after the morning 18 holes, 8-up, and needed only 25 holes to eliminate her Kansas City opponent in the match play competition.

It was the most one-sided finale in the history of the 37-year-old tournament, outdistancing a 10 and 9 triumph by Judy Rankin over Marcella Rose in 1961.

"I was a buzz saw today," said Mrs. Berkmeyer, 31. "When I got up I felt wound up and very strong. I'm sorry it was Karin I beat because it was the second year in a row that I played her."

Mrs. Berkmeyer defeated Mrs. Cooper in semifinal action, 4 and 2, in 1974.

Mrs. Berkmeyer, whose 71 in the morning was one-under-par, had trouble only on the fifth hole, where she took a double bogey in the afternoon, and finished at par for the final seven holes.

The 28-year-old Mrs. Cooper, a mother of two, admitted the heat and humidity, didn't help her game, although she had a 79 in the morning.

"Even after we came in to lunch and I was eight down, I still felt I had a chance to catch her," said Mrs. Cooper. "But she was playing super golf. Last year Barbara didn't hit the ball that well."

In the consolation championship, Diane Dougherty of Centralia, defeated Libby Ferguson of St. Louis, 5 and 4.

What good is a guarantee on the muffler when your tailpipe goes?
There's more to an exhaust system than a muffler. There's a tailpipe, exhaust pipe, clamps and hangers. And statistics tell us that the tailpipe often goes before the muffler.
Yet most of the people who repair exhaust systems only give a lifetime guarantee on their mufflers. If you have to buy a tailpipe and it goes, guess who pays? And you could pay as much as $35.
That's not the case at your Scotti Muffler Center. At Scotti, we guarantee any and every part of the exhaust system we install. Pipes, muffler, you name it. And we'll replace them free for as long as you own your car.
Yet with all this we charge about the same as places with less of a guarantee. So at Scotti you get off a lot cheaper in the long run.

9:30 a.m. title bout

Oddsmakers favor Ali, 3-1

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Muhammad Ali defends the world heavyweight championship here Tuesday morning in what is billed as "The fight of a lifetime."

And, it is the first professional fight in the life of many Malaysians. There hasn't been a pro fight here in 30 years.

It also could be Ali's last fight. But the champion's announcement last Monday that he was 99 per cent sure he was going to retire has been greeted with skepticism by most Ali watchers. There remains speculation he will fight Joe Frazier for a third time.

London bookmakers have made Ali a 3-1 favorite to accomplish his second victory over the 25-year-old Briton who is the European champion. Ali beat Bugner on a 12-round decision Feb. 14, 1973, 20 months before he regained the world title by knocking out George Foreman in eight rounds in Zaire.

"Ali is not better than the Muhammad Ali of 2½ years ago," maintains Andy Smith, Bugner's manager. "But the Joe Bugner of today is better than the Joe Bugner of 2½ years ago."

"Joe Bugner doesn't have the talent to stop me," says Ali. "No man in the world can beat me for another five years if I wish to continue fighting."

A crowd of more than 30,000, paying from about $15 to $30 is expected at the outdoor Merdeka Stadium for Ali's 16th title fight, which is scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m. It will be seen on closed-circuit television beginning at 10 p.m., EDT, June 30, in the United States.

There also will be two other scheduled 15-round title fights on the closed-circuit program although they will not be seen here. They are light heavyweight champion Victor Galindez of Argentina against Jorge Ahumada of Argentine and middleweight champ Cahdas Monzon of Argentina against Tony Licata of New Orleans.

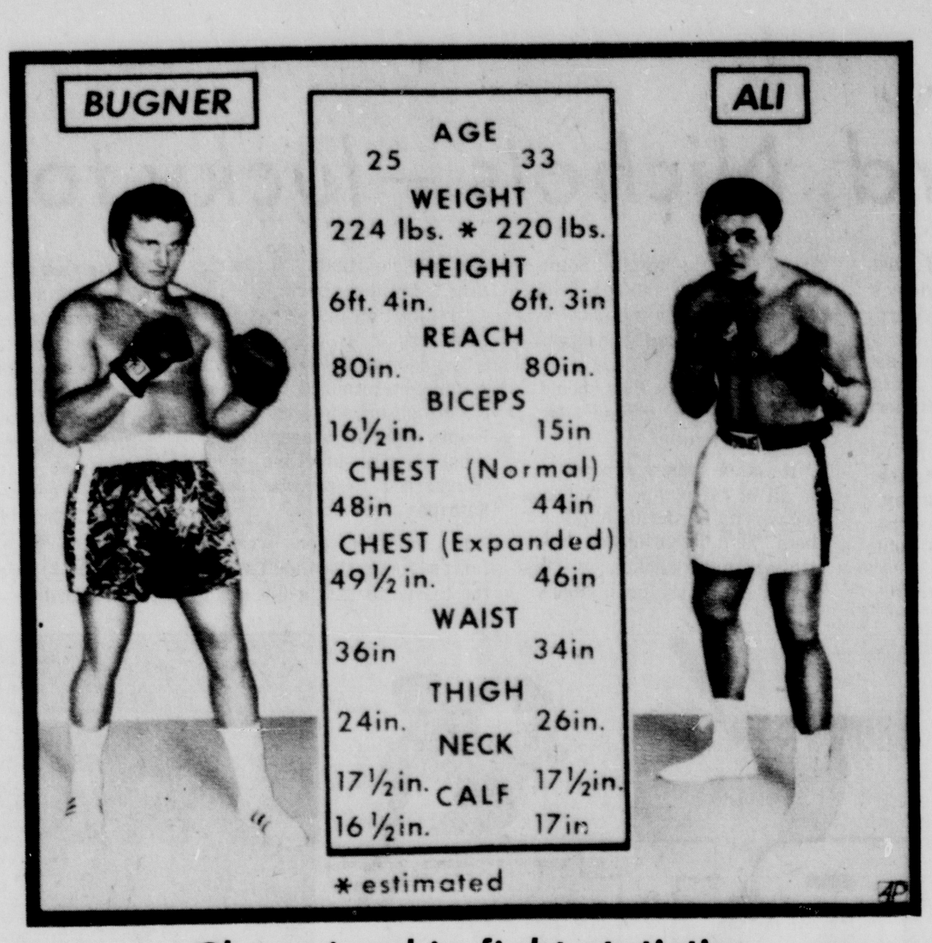

The Ali-Bugner fight appears to be a battle of stamina and age.

Temperatures are expected to be in the 80s with humidity even higher at fight time. Smith said each fighter will lose from 10 to 12 pounds if the bout goes 15 rounds.

Bugner appears to be in superb condition while Ali looks to be in better shape than he was when he beat Chuck Wepner and Ron Lyle in his last two fights. But Bugner, at 25, is eight years younger than the champion.

"I'm at the dangerous age but I'm not too old yet," says Ali.

Neither fighter holds a physical edge. Bugner is 6-foot-4, an inch taller than Ali, and each has an 80-inch reach. They also are close in weight.

Pele, Ford bounce balls

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford greeted Pele at the White House Saturday and got a brief glimpse of the Brazilian soccer star's prowess with a ball.

However, none of Pele's ability rubbed off on Ford when he attempted to duplicate the star's talent for keeping a soccer ball in the air by bouncing it off his foot.

Pele, the newest and most famous member of the New York Cosmos, was officially welcomed the United States in a brief ceremony on the steps in the Rose Garden. The Cosmos are in town for a North American Soccer League game with the Washington Diplomats on Sunday.

After the welcome, Ford and Pele moved to the White House lawn where Pele demonstrated his skill after the President said "show me how to do it."

Pele bounced the ball several times off his foot and then gave it to Ford to try. The attempt was unsuccessful.

Pele then asked Ford, a former University of Michigan football player, how the ball was thrown in the United States. Ford struck the pose of a quarterback and the two lobbed the ball back and forth, much to the delight of the cameramen.

"I would center one to you but all these people (photographers and newsmen) are just waiting for that," said Ford, a center on the Michigan team in the 1930s.

Pele then put on another show of ball control, bouncing it off his foot, moving it upward and outward off his forehead and then off his left shoulder, all the time never touching it with his hands.

Ford made another attempt to bounce the ball lightly off his foot, a la Pele, but the ball went forward instead of upward.

"Maybe I can do it better with my head than my foot," he said with a grin as Pele caught his kick. "I'm awful clumsy."

He thought better of bouncing it off his forehead with a comment, "They're waiting for that," another reference to the newsmen and photographers.

In his formal remarks, Ford said, "I've never played soccer, so I'm not that familiar with the game ... I appreciate excellence. You are the best.

"I'm sure that you're presence will increase America's interest in soccer."

Rosewall tumbles; Ashe tops Stilwell

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Arthur Ashe overcame a crop of volleying errors Saturday and reached the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon tennis championships for the first time in six years, but Tony Roche ended fellow Australian Ken Rosewall's bid to win the only major title to elude him.

The 31-year-old Ashe finished strongly for a 6-2, 5-7, 9-8, 6-3 triumph over Graham Stilwell of Britain while Roche the No. 16 seed on the comeback after injury, upset the second-seeded Rosewall 6-3, 6-8, 8-6, 6-1.

There was an air of sadness on the center court as the 40-year-old Rosewall, looking weary and disspirited, made his exit. The little wizard has been a finalist here four times in 20 years but never a winner.

Ashe, the No. 6 seed, was the third American to make the men's quarter-finals. Defending champion Jimmy Connors and 11th-seeded Roscoe Tanner advanced on Friday.

All seven remaining women's seeds also advanced Saturday, including defending champion Chris Evert and five-time winner Billie Jean King.

Connors next plays Raul Ramirez of Mexico, Tanner will meet Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, Ashe will face Bjorn Borg, the 19-year-old Swede, and Roche will meet Tom Okker of The Netherlands.

Ramirez, seeded eighth, overran American Cliff Richey 6-2, 6-3, 6-2, and Vilas toiled for more than 2½ hours to beat Sandy Mayer of Wayne, N.J., 2-6, 7-5, 9-8, 6-3. Okker brushed past Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union 6-0, 6-2, 8-6.

Arthur Ashe

Ashe played some fine tennis against Stilwell. But his victory was no walkover, and at one stage he faced a crisis.

The Englishman, 29, had struck his best form since he led Britain to the inter-zone finals of the Davis Cup in 1969. After being outclassed in the first set, he came back with a gritty display to win the second.

Stilwell made no impression on Ashe's service until the last game of the second set. Then Ashe double-faulted and, on set point, made a bad forehand volley. He failed on three more forehand volleys in the second game on the third set. Stilwell had four breaks in that game but couldn't cash in on them.

Ashe hung on grimly, and in the long fifth game, he broke service with a cunning short return lured Stilwell into a half-volleying error.

Track meet on

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — The Amateur Athletic Union's United States-Russia track meet, almost scuttled in a dispute over television rights, apparently is back on the schedule.

Pat Rico, head of the women's AAU track and field committee, said Friday that the meet would be held as planned July 4-5 in Kiev. Mrs. Rico made the nnouncement at the senior women's national championships after consulting with Dr. Leroy Walker, chairman of the men's track and field committee, and Ollan Cassell, AAU executive director.

The meet was in jeopardy because the participants could not agree on which network would televise it. The AAU has a contract with CBS but the Russians made a deal with ABC. After some behind the scenes wrangling, it was determined that CBS would handle the meet.

Butz looking for team

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals defensive tackle Dave Butz has threatened to take his mended knee elsewhere for the 1975 National Football League season.

"I am now talking seriously with other teams," said Butz, who was the Cardinals first-round draft choice in 1973, but who missed most of last season with torn ligaments in the knee.

Mesiter tops pack

TORONTO (AP) — Judy Mesiter, a tour sophomore who never has finished higher than "16th or 17th," fired a course record 68 to grab a share of the second-round lead in a $60,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament Saturday.

The 28-year-old native of Erie, Pa., who has career earnings of about $3,000, had six birdies to go along with a bogey on the 18th for a 36-hole score of 141 on St. George's 6,265-yard layout.

Jay Haas wins NCAA golf title

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jay Haas calmly sank a four-foot putt for a par on the final hole Saturday to gain a one-stroke victory in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Golf championship.

Haas' clutch putt gave him a closing two-under-par 72-hole total of 282, six shots under par on the Ohio State Scarlet course.

If the 21-year-old Wake Forest junior from Belleville, Ill., had missed, Alabama's Jerry Pate would have tied for the championship.

Pate, who shared the low amateur honors with Haas in the U.S. Open last week, was playing in the last threesome with his big collegiate rival.

Pate came within one foot of a 60-foot birdie on the last hole. The senior blond settled for a par instead, posting a 70 for a 283 total.

Curtis Strange of Wake Forest, the winner a year ago, blazed to the best round of the muggy, hot day, a five-under-par 67 that left him two shots shy at 284.

Cardinals split; Royals blow lead

By The Associated Press

The Chicago White Sox extended their winning streak to six games at Kansas City's expense 4-3, and Bob Gibson of St. Louis won his 250th career victory by pitching the Cards 6-4 over Montreal in the first game of a doubleheader Friday night. The Expos won the second game 5-4.

Ted Sizemore drove in two runs in a three-run fifth inning to give Gibson the decision. The Expos won the nightcap on Reggie Smith's seventh-inning error allowing Pepe Mangual to score from third with the tie-breaking run.

Gibson, 2-6, had lost three straight games since May 5, his only other victory this season. He gave up five hits, struck out one and walked six before Ron Bryant relieved him in the seventh. Gibson also singled in the fifth to score a run.

Bob Coluccio scored from second when Kansas City reliever Steve Mingori dropped a throw at first base, capping a two-run winning rally by the White Sox.

The Sox also scored twice off Doug Bird in the eighth after being blanked six innings on five hits by Royals starter Al Fitzmorris who left the game at the start of the seventh with a twisted knee.

Hal McRae drove in all of the Royals runs with a double and a triple.

Phillips ousted

HAMILTON, Mass. (AP) — Capt. Mark Phillips, the leader after the first day of the U.S. pen horse trials, was eliminated Saturday when his mount refused to take a jump.

Phillips, husband of Britain's Princess Anne, was aboard Laureate II whobalked three times at a "coffin" jump, a hurdle with a gully between two walls.

Championship bouts highlight mat card

Two mat titles will be on the line at Tuesday's weekly wrestling show at the Sedalia Community Center.

Jerry and Ted Oates will defend their tag team title against the tandem of Tank Patton and Buddy King in an unusual best of five falls match.

In the co-feature, Ed Wiskoski, Central States champion, puts up his belt against Omar Atlas.

Surf Ventura takes on Prince Tapu and Patton tangles with Ted Oates in the 8:30 p.m. opener.

Bonham blanks Bucs on 6 hits

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Bonham's six-hit pitching and George Mitterwald's second-inning home run gave the Chicago Cubs a 1-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday.

Mitterwald, a last-minute replacement in the starting lineup for Andy Thornton at first base, hit his third homer of the season off Jim Rooker, 5-4, who allowed only six hits. The ball cleared the 375-foot mark in left-center field.

Bonham, 8-5, walked two, struck out five and was in serious trouble only in the fourth inning when Willie Stargell drew a leadoff walk and Richie Hebner singled him to second. But Richie Zisk flied out and Manny Sanguillen rapped into an inning-ending double play.

INTERLAKEN, Switzerland — Darrell Pace of Cincinnati set a world archery record with a 569 in the double 90 meters, beating the previous record by two points.

Columbia sold

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — The 12-meter Columbia, the winner of the 1958 America's Cup, was sold to a Swedish yachting syndicate.

Giants 2, Dodgers 1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Marc Hill chased Los Angeles starter Doug Rau with a game-tying single in the seventh inning and Bobby Murcer followed with a run-scoring pinch single off relief ace Mike Marshall, giving the San Francisco Giants a 2-1 victory Saturday over the slumping Dodgers.

Rau, 7-7, entered the seventh with a two-hitter and a 1-0 lead, but Chris Speier doubled with one out and pinch hitter Chris Arnold drew a two-out walk.

Hill singled on Rau's next pitch, and Marshall relieved when Jake Brown was sent up to bat for winning pitcher John Montefusco, 5-3, who had limited the Dodgers to five hits. Murcer replaced Brown and singled on a 3-2 pitch, scoring Arnold from second base.

The setback was the fourth in a row for the Dodgers, who started the day 5½ games behind Cincinnati in the National League West. The last three losses have been to the Giants.

Mets 5, Phillies 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Kingman's tie-breaking two-run single in the fifth inning and rookie Randy Tate's four-hit pitching led the New York Mets to a rain-delayed 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

Gene Clines started the fifth with an infield single off Steve Carlton, 6-6, who had won four in a row but suffered his first defeat since May 19.

Clines took second on a balk and went to third on Felix Millan's fly ball. Carlton walked Cleon Jones and Joe Torre to load the bases and fanned Rusty Staub for the second out, but Kingman then lined his tie-breaking hit to left field.

The Mets, winning their fourth game in a row, added a run in the sixth on a leadoff walk, consecutive errors by shortstop Larry Bowa and first baseman Dick Allen and Clines' sacrifice fly.

Sedalia swimmers defeat Warrensburg

WARRENSBURG — The Sedalia Swimming Club trounced Warrensburg 308-162 at a swimming meet here Saturday. Sedalia's meet record now stands at 2-0.

Seventy-five local youngsters between the ages of 7 and 17 competed in 84 events for Sedalia.

The next meet is July 19 against Higginsville at the Centennial Park pool.

Olympic star shatters mark in 800 meters

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Madeline Manning Jackson, winner of the 800-meter gold medal at the 1968 Olympics, shattered the American record for the distance Saturday in the National AAU Senior Women's Track and Field Championships.

Mrs. Jackson, representing the Cleveland Track Club, was in command over the final 600 yards and was timed in 2 minutes, 0.5 seconds. That was four-tenths of a second better than the record she set in 1968 en route to her Olympic effort at Mexico City.

Mrs. Jackson last won the AAU crown in 1969. Shortly after that, the 27-year-old Tennessee State graduate took time out to become a mother, then quit track completely from 1972 until last winter.

Mrs. Jackson, named the meet's outstanding athlete, finished almost 20 yards ahead of Kathy Weston, representing Wilt's Spikettes of Sacramento, Calif., clocked in 2:02.9.

Farm roundup

Grain prices continue decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Livestock and vegetable farmers continue to receive better prices for their products but grain prices are still dropping, the Crop Reporting Board confirms.

The meat animal index in Friday's monthly farm price report was up 4 per cent for the month ending June 15, largely on the strength of $38.50 per 100 pounds for all beef cattle and $47.30 per hundredweight hogs.

But the food-grains index was off a sharp 13 per cent with wheat at $2.92 a bushel, 55 cents less than in mid-May and 65 cents less than a year before. Rye was the same at $2.19 a bushel as in June 1974, and rice, unchanged from May at $10.40 per 100 pounds, was $7.10 below a year earlier.

Among the feed grains, with the index off 3 per cent, corn at $2.68 a bushel was up 2 cents from May and 11 cents from June 1974. But that was offset by lower prices for barley, hay, oats and grain sorghum.

Over-all, the board said, farm prices recorded their third consecutive monthly increase, going up 2 per cent. That index declined from November until April, when it rose 4 per cent, followed by a 5 per cent rise in May.

Compared to a year earlier, the prices farmers received for their raw products were 10 per cent higher. But, the board said, the prices they paid out for goods and services, interest, taxes and farm wage rates were 1 per cent higher than in May and 11 per cent above a year before.

As an indicator of the inflation rate in the general economy, the board's index of prices paid by farmers for family living items was one-half of 1 per cent higher than mid-May and 10 per cent above June 1974.

The board's ratio between prices received and prices paid, which was even on June 15, 1974, showed farmers two points on the short side of expenses over income this month.

Along with higher cattle prices, potatoes were up sharply, along with tomatoes, cantaloupes and peaches, the board said. Wheat, barley and grapefruit declines partially offset those improvements in the over-all totals.

The commercial vegetables index was up 17 per cent from May, 25 per cent from a year ago. Fruits over-all were up 5 per cent from mid-May and 4 per cent from June 1974.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The just-compiled Agriculture Department statistics on the production of manufactured dairy products in 1974 show butter production 5 per cent above last year's record low and cheese output 9 per cent above the previous high of 1973.

But another fiscal year-end report, a summary of federal milk marketing order statistics, testifies to the continued economic crunch for dairy farmers, with tables showing a year to-year drop of 4,646 in the average number delivering milk to handlers regulated by the orders.

Although there were some breaks in the downward trend, the statistics show 134,328 delivering producers in January 1973 and 127,010 in December 1974.

Nonetheless, 2.93 billion pounds of cheese was double the level of only 15 years ago, with American types accounting for 63 per cent of production. Production of cottage cheese declined, however, by 11 per cent for creamed and 5 per cent for lowfat.

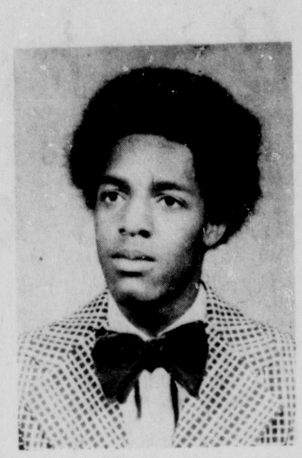

Frozen dairy products — at 1.17 billion pounds — was virtually the same as 1973's peak.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest checks by Economic Research Service livestock price experts of spreads for pork and Choice beef show qualified indications that the record retail prices now are beginning to reflect better returns to both producers and supermarkets.

The weekly statistics, which reflect differences in meat values at different stages rather than strict average margins for middlemen, had been showing little additional gain to meat packers or retailers as live-animal and consumer prices started another climb this spring. Store prices broke the 15 month-old record of $1.50 a pound during the week of May 31. A year before, middlemen were taking a considerably greater share of that retail price.

Net farm value of cattle and hog carcasses continued its steady climb through last week, beef rising 4.8 cents a pound and pork jumping 8.7 cents a pound. Producer-to-packer spreads declined, while the once-lagging packer-to-retailer spread jumped 4.3 cents in a week for beef and 3 cents in two weeks for pork.

Heavyweight aluminum saucepans function better and are easier to keep clean and bright than lightweight pans of this sort.

Rock magazine on tapes

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Inner Views, a new rock music and youth culture magazine, doesn't have a single reader because it doesn't contain a single printed word.

"It is the first and only non-religious recorded magazine for blind young adults," says editor and publisher Dennis Holter, blind since birth.

"I had been thinking for more than a year that blind people didn't have access to lots of things sighted people do," he explained in a recent interview. "They didn't have any way to learn what their rock stars were really like. They didn't have access to finding out about stereo components and records. They couldn't read Rolling Stone magazine."

Holter knew many young blind people rely heavily on cassette tape recorders for education and music, so he selected tape as his magazine medium. He then recorded reviews and interviews with contemporary music and show business figures.

When the two-hour introductory issue was mailed in January to 100 selected blind youths across the nation, 75 subscribed immediately.

After two issues, the bimonthly audio magazine boasts a circulation of more than 200, and Holter says 800 others — a quarter of them sighted — have written expressing an interest in subscribing.

He estimates there are 20,000 blind potential subscribers between the ages of 18 and 25 across the country — and many times that number of sighted persons who would prefer to hear in-depth interviews with their rock stars rather than read about them.

"We're growing at the rate of five subscriptions a day," said the 23-year-old graduate of Loyola University of Los Angeles. "The blind population is just now hearing about it. Notices are starting to appear in braille publications."

A subscription costs $6 a year, plus two cassettes which must be mailed to Holter before he tapes each issue. It takes him an estimated 100 hours to prepare a master tape, plus copying time.

Holter, a freelance journalist, says he makes $1 per subscription, which is shared with a blind coeditor and a sighted secretary.

The magazine has featured interviews with rock luminaries such as the late Jim Croce, the Four Tops and the Beach Boys. And Holter says he has lined up taping sessions with blind singers Jose Feliciano and Stevie Wonder.

"We need to give blind people a chance to know blind artists," he said.

The magazine also includes an advice column called "Dear John," a joke column called "Cracking Up," pen pal listings called "Write on People," a buy-sell-swap column and a fashion column done by a sighted person.

"We want blind people to know what styles are in," Holter said. "I believe a sighted person can do a clothing description better than a blind person."

As word of the new magazine spread, subscribers began to send braille, taped or typed manuscripts of their original short stories and poems for which they are paid a penny a word.

Confidence lacking in women

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women pursuing careers often have problems stemming from traditional roles which have kept them from the business world. The biggest of these problems is usually a lack of self-confidence.

Jinx Melia, a career counselor and instructor at Georgetown University's School for Summer and Continuing Education, advises women to give themselves a kind of "ego-lift" as they approach the job market.

Her methods for confidence-building include knowing your own abilities and skills, developing "support systems" to boost morale, and facing adjustments that must be made in home life when both spouses work.

Comic books have become learning tool

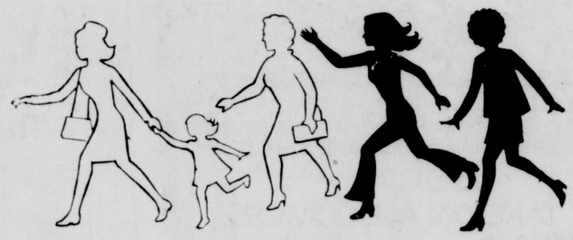

NEW YORK (AP) — The comic book has joined the more serious text books of education to help developing readers.

"The Electric Company," television's contribution to easing education's reading crisis, has published "Spidey Super Stories," a new four-color comic starring the super-hero "Spider-Man" as an education device.

While not the first time the comics have been used as an educational tool, Spider-Man's adventures for the Electric Company are believed to be the first in which educational researchers have applied their knowledge of the way in which young children — particularly beginning readers — approach the printed comic book page.

American Revolution stands as a unique event

EDITOR'S NOTE — The American Revolution was the first and there have been many revolutions since. But what the Americans did was unique and the example set was never quite duplicated.

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

The American Revolution triggered an era of revolution that hasn't ended yet. But it was one of the few that worked out the way it was supposed to work out.

Two hundred years ago this spring, the founding fathers weren't fully aware they had started a revolution. But the deadly serious business of revolting against the government that had ruled them as British colonists for almost two centuries had already begun.

The Continental Congress, meeting in Philadelphia, had just accepted responsibility for the opening hostilities at Boston. It had established an army and had chosen a military commander.

The colonists had decided to fight. They would resist what they considered oppression by an otherwise perfectly legitimate government. Such things had happened before. In the eyes of the challenged authorities it was treason. But it wasn't revolution yet.

That would come a year later, in July, 1776, when Thomas Jefferson and Congress would tell the world that people have a right to overthrow, even by force, a government which fails to serve the needs of its subjects and fails to respect their rights.

Now that was revolution. It was not a new idea, but it was the first time it had been tried in a war involving the majority of the population, not just one set of plutocrats against another.

Barely had the gunsmoke cleared from the American Revolution before France had begun her own. Within 50 years of United States independence, every country in Latin America except Cuba and Puerto Rico had overthrown colonial rule.

Revolution continued to sweep Europe for over a century, toppling ancient dynasties. And others rebelled in this century as America had in the 18th against colonialism and government from afar.

It would be a mistake to say that the American Revolution caused the French Revolution which in turn caused all the rest. The French Revolution almost surely would have happened without inspiration from America.

But somebody had to be first. The fact is that the Americans had done it, done the unspeakable, overthrown a government just because they didn't like the way it was treating them. And they got away with it. And every Frenchman knew it. Some of them had even helped.

The Americans set a good example, but unfortunately it was a hard one to follow. And there has never been another revolution quite like theirs.

For one thing, they had limited objectives capable of reasonable solution. The Americans wanted principally to remove themselves from English control. Such a goal could be achieved by a military victory.

And they weren't destroying one government and building a replacement. They already had governments of their own which functioned quite to their satisfaction. They were just ripping away a superfluous top layer.

The other revolutionary ideals, the democratic institutions, the liberty and justice for all, were here already. Americans had been developing them for generations.

American patriots fought for life, liberty and happiness, but to keep them, not to gain them. They were not oppressed masses driven to revolution, as the French considered themselves.

The revolution was not a bitter class struggle. Americans of all social and economic stations were rather remarkably united against the foreign foe, whose removal ended the problem.

Partly because of all this, the American Revolution was history's most conservative. There were the radicals, of course, who prodded and excited the colonies to rebellion, but the Revolution, once begun, was run by the establishment.

It was unusual if not unique that the leaders of the Revolution survived and many held important positions in the new government after the Revolution.

Largely because of this, the American Revolution was the only major revolution of its kind free of a reign of terror. There were abuses to the Tory loyalists, but nothing like the studied slaughter witnessed in other revolutions, from France's a few years later to Russia's in this century.

But most important of all, the American revolutionaries managed to achieve their No. 1 goal — to establish self-government on democratic principles.

Kings had been overthrown before only to be replaced by new kings, or Lord Protectors, or dictators by some other name. The Americans avoided that.

Supermarket is run by computer

By NAOAKI USEI

TOKYO (AP) — A housewife approaches a giant machine with colorful panels that looks like something from a space ship, inserts a small plastic card and pushes some buttons. Lights flash, buzzers beep and out come her groceries.

Officials at the new "OK Supermarket" in Tokyo say the computer-controlled system virtually eliminates shoplifting, long lines at checkout counters and cashier mistakes.

But some housewives complain that with the 2,469 kinds of food held behind display windows in the 67 machines, they can't — for example — give the cabbage a squeeze. And they say the machines take some time getting used to.

At the checkout counter, one of the two cashiers feeds the card into another computer-connected machine. The 440-million-yen ($1.5 million) computer instantly ticks out the bill, and the cashier does the only human job seen by the shoppers — receiving money.

"All we need here is two untrained girls to receive money. They can handle about 4,000 customers a day. We used to need 10 cash registers and 20 punching girls, and each of them punched the keys 15,000 times a day," said Osamu Enoki, spokesman for the supermarket chain.

"Shoplifting is impossible here because only the central computer can open the showcases," he continued. He said the chain's 35 stores have been losing at least 250 million yen ($830,000) a year, or one per cent of total sales, to shoplifters.

The idea of the computer-run supermarket came about two years ago when the chain found it was wasting too much time and manpower in laborious stock control. Three major electronics manufacturers jointly developed the automatic shopping system, the spokesman said.

"We believe we can produce it much more cheaply only if we go into mass production. We hope this system will replace all conventional stores in the near future," Enoki said.

In a nation where small neighborhood food stores are most common, the supermarket business has been growing rapidly in the last decade. Its sales totaled about 2,524 billion yen ($8.4 billion) in 1974, up 100 per cent from 1972, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry reported.

But Enoki said the computerized system sometimes frustrates shoppers who usually pick up merchandise and examine it carefully before deciding to buy. "So we had to leave some merchandise, like fresh vegetables and fish, out of the new store," he said.

"It's a modern, clean supermarket. But I can't buy quickly in this place because I can't inspect the items," said one young mother with her baby in her arms. "I have to look at the merchandise carefully through the thick glass, and it takes time."

A middle-aged housewife said it's hard for her to learn to operate the unmanned vendors. "I pushed a wrong number and I got a salad oil instead of the frying oil that I wanted to buy."

To help customers get used to the flashing and beeping signals and buttons, the company assigned about 15 engineers to the store during the first weeks. Each gave polite explanations while curious housewives and more curious kids flocked around them.

"It's not difficult at all. These customers are just not used to these machines. Since the average housewife shops at supermarkets once every two or three days, they will learn quickly," said an engineer of the Mitsubishi Industries, one of the builders of the system.

A husband strolling with his wife said he welcomes such innovations. "Now, the management does not need to pay outrageous wages to dozens of cashier girls, and I hope they can peg prices at reasonable levels," he said.

Strikes may determine UMW's future in U.S. west

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

GALLUP, N.M. (AP) — At the Sundance Mine, an Indian on horseback mans a picket line with a sign declaring, "taa Giin Atan." In Navajo, that means "no coal."

The 34 Sundance miners, half of them Navajos, haven't worked in nearly seven months. They want the United Mine Workers as their bargaining representative and the company says no.

"December 4 — that was the day the flaming arrow hit the dragline," recalls Dave Archuletta, a UMW organizer. "The picket line went up at 5:30 in the morning. They tried to run scabs through and we had about 18 state patrol cars up here, but we held the line."

The Sundance Mine of the Great National Corp., a Texas-based oil and gas leasing company, is a key target in the UMW's current drive to organize coal miners in the West. Although small, it is one of five mines in the area, among them the Navajo Mine, the largest producer in the Western Hemisphere. UMW officials believe that a victory at Sundance after so long a strike would be of major importance in organizing the other mines, including the 500 employes at Navajo, where a previous organizing effort failed.

The UMW effort in the West involves other states as well. For buried beneath the slopes of the Rockies and the windswept northern Great Plains are more than half the nation's coal reserves. In theory, the West has enough to meet all the nation's energy needs for more than 200 years.

Although the environmental issues of strip mining western coal have yet to be resolved, the coal industry sees its future in the West, and so does the United Mine Workers.

Opening skirmish in union battle

Miners picketing the Sundance mine, Gallup, N.M., brandish signs including the defiant "taa Giin Ataan" — no coal, in Navajo — held by John Woody, a Navajo, on horseback. The mine, struck since Dec. 4 last, is a key target in the United Mine Workers' effort to expand its foothold in the West. That's where the industry sees its future, but it's also where unions so far have been weak. (AP)

It's not simply a question of adding members. All but 4,900 of the union's 120,000 members are East of the Mississippi, and that's where the bulk of the membership is expected to stay because that's where the labor-intensive deep mines are located. Stripping away the layer of topsoil to get at most of the coal in the West requires relatively little labor — about 10,000 miners now and not more than 18,000 by 1985, according to U.S. government projections.

But there are other key issues. Western production is only 11 per cent of national production so far, but in years to come the UMW fears that non-union coal from the West could be used to weaken a UMW strike in the East by keeping markets supplied. In addition, under standard UMW contracts, western owners would have to pay a royalty on each ton of coal to the union's welfare and retirement fund. The UMW says it needs the money.

So union leaders reason that western coal must be mined under UMW contracts if the union is to remain financially strong and in a strong bargaining position.

The recognition strike at Sundance and a bitter contract dispute in Wyoming are the initial skirmishes in what is shaping up as a tough, drawn-out battle involving the UMW, the coal operators, and some smaller, competing unions vying for contracts.

UMW officials say the western campaign is one of the toughest fights in the union's 85-year history. They accuse the operators of deliberately trying to block the union.

The companies, on the other hand, say they are subjected to wildcat strikes at their operations east of the Mississippi as part of UMW pressure to win contracts with the companies in the West.

While the UMW is no stranger to the West, the rich western coal deposits generally were ignored for decades, until the energy crisis of the '70s. Now utility companies are building power plants at isolated mine sites in the West, and plans are being made for plants that will convert coal to gas. The federal government projects a need for 100 new mines in the West by 1985.

Gillette, population 10,000, is one of the boom towns created by coal. There are 22 billion tons of it — one of the richest deposits in the world — just below the topsoil in the rolling hills of Wyoming's Powder River Basin, where Gillette is located and where the Sioux and the Crow made their last stands a century ago. Already, 11 mining firms, six of them owned by major oil companies, have purchased land and established offices in Gillette. One of them, Amax Coal Co., a subsidiary of Amax Inc., a giant mining conglomerate, began shipping coal two years ago from its Belle Ayre mine south of town.

Last Jan. 12, the UMW struck Belle Ayre and 15 other mines in the West. A contract had expired and the union and the operators couldn't agree on a new pact. The strike quickly bought agreements at the 15 other mines, but it continued and still continues at Amax.

Wages aren't a problem. The company says it is willing to pay the nearly $8 an hour demanded by the UMW. But Amax says it doesn't want a new contract to expire on the same date as UMW contracts elsewhere in the country. It also wants to eliminate a clause in the old contract that gave the UMW jurisdiction at new mines opened by Amax in the West. And it no longer wants to pay royalties to the union's welfare and retirement fund.

Twenty-eight of the Belle Ayre miners went back to work this spring after the company threatened to fire them. Day after day the remaining 26 sit in mud-spattered pickup trucks at mine entrance gates, watched by security guards hired by Amax. Despite the picketing, the mine is again producing coal.

Strip mining in the West is highly profitable for companies that sell to utilities under long-term contracts. The Belle Ayre mine, which produced 3.3 million tons last year, is to mine 30 million tons by 1979, about half the projected output for all Amax mines, East and West. Already, Amax has contracted for 19 million tons annually of Belle Ayre coal, with a value of $3.2 billion, according to industry figures.

With sales guaranteed, the companies are anxious to avoid the disruptions caused by the wildcat strikes and labor problems common in the eastern fields. The UMW says the companies are more interested in keeping profits high by avoiding the union's welfare and retirement fund, financed by royalties on each ton of coal mined.

A strip miner in the West produces an average of 100 tons of coal daily, compared with an average of 11 tons a day for an underground miner. Western operators contend that because of the higher productivity of their workers, they will be subsidizing benefits for miners in the less productive eastern mines. The union has agreed to a formula adjusting for the differences in productivity.

Competing unions, such as the Operating Engineers and the Progressive Mineworkers, hold some strip mine contracts that provide wages similar to those won by the UMW. However, they have no welfare and retirement funds and thus meet less resistance from the operators.

So far, the UMW's western campaign has produced mixed results. In Hanna, Wyo., the union won a representation election two years ago, replacing the Operating Engineers as bargaining agent at the 1.6-million ton Rosebud mine. But the UMW failed to win a contract and this spring the rival union won it back.

In New Mexico, the UMW also lost out at Utah International's huge Navajo mine. The union thought it had a good chance to organize the mine, but the company offered the workers a number of concessions and the organizing drive fizzled.

At Sundance, the 34 miners are determined to stay out until the company signs a contract. They say they will not go back to work for a company they claim used separate wage scales for Indians, Spanish-Americans and whites. The company denies the charge and has filed suit against the union to recover strike losses.

Jon Woody, the Navajo who rides his horse on the picket line, began working for Sundance in 1947 for 40 cents an hour. He was making $2.50 an hour when the walkout began in December.

"Hard work, no money," the 57-year-old grandfather says in halting English. "No union, no work."

Conductor is hired to lead opera group

VANCOUVER (AP) — Conductor Richard Bonynge has been engaged as artistic director of the Vancouver Opera Assn., as of July 1, 1974.

He will plan and prepare future seasons as well as organize and plan the resident artists' program.

During the past 13 years, Bonynge has conducted five operas for the association. "Faust," "Marriage of Figaro," "Norma," "Lucia di Lammermoor" and "Lucrezia Borgia." His wife, soprano Joan Sutherland, sang in the latter three.

Special funds to finance exhibition

VIENNA (AP) — The City Council of this city has voted $110,000 toward the financing of a special Arnold Schoenberg exhibit from May 25 to June 23, 1974, to honor the composer's 100th birthday.

The exhibit will have 50 paintings by Schoenberg, handwritten notes and other papers. Schoenberg was an inventor and held several patents, among them those for a note-writing and a bookbinding machine. He redesigned the commuter tickets for Berlin's public transportation, making them simpler.

He first introduced Max Reger, Debussy, Ravel and other composers in Vienna.

PICK A DART. PICK A VAN. AND GET A $200 CASH REBATE.

Get $200 Cash Back Direct from Chrysler Corporation.
The Boys in Washington aren't the only ones giving rebates. The Dodge Boys are, too! Right now, you can get a $200 cash rebate direct from Chrysler Corporation when you buy or lease any Dodge Dart in stock or Tradesman van in stock or specially ordered.

Dodge—Value-Packed Cars and Trucks.
Take your pick... Dart or Tradesman. Either gets great gas mileage. EPA tests prove Dart Sixes get better mileage than the most popular Maverick or Nova Sixes. And Tradesman gets the best mileage of any '75 van tested. As for room, Dart has more people-room and a bigger trunk than Maverick or Nova. And pound for pound, Tradesman vans have bigger payloads than any competitive models.

Limited Offer.
There's one more thing you can get only on a '75 Dart or Tradesman van. A $200 cash rebate. But you've gotta act now. This is a limited offer available to retail customers only. Sorry, only one per customer. So pick a Dart or pick a van. Just make your best deal with any participating Dodge Dealer now. And you'll collect a $200 cash rebate.

See the Dodge Boys right now for a $200 rebate on top of your tax rebate.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR FREDDIE PRINZE

What's the real story behind your romance with Raquel Welch?—J.M., Troy, N.Y.

● It wasn't a romance. She's a very lovely, talented and intelligent lady, and I admire her for those qualities—nothing else. All we did was go out to dinner a couple of times. We met at NBC, and I suggested we dine together if she had no other plans. She was free, and we went out. One woman who did a newspaper story wrote it with the few facts I gave her when she called me up, and that turned it into a "romance." I don't like exploiting anyone. Raquel has her boyfriend and I have my girl friend. Our dinners were like business dates. We talked about her movies and my show. I have that kind of evening many times, where my date and I talk about our work. The whole thing was very embarrassing to me—as I'm sure it was to Raquel.

FOR MRS. VIDAL SASSOON, wife of the hair stylist

Since your husband is from London, do you make your permanent home there?—L.T., Albany, N.Y.

● No—we live in Beverly Hills. Vidal and I had always lived in apartments, and when we moved from New York to a house in Beverly Hills, we felt terribly successful and important. So what happened? An hour after we moved in I shrieked to Vidal: "Call the plumber! There's a flood in the bathroom and a leak in the ceiling." Funny, that sort of thing never happened to us when we were "unimportant" in our apartment.

FOR RICHARD THOMAS, star of "The Waltons"

Is it true that your wife is older than you are?—L.S., Green Bay, Wis.

● Yes. Alma is four years older. I like being with women who are older than I am. I guess it started because some of my favorite actresses have been my "mothers"—Joanne Woodward, Julie Harris, Geraldine Page, Claire Bloom, Pat Neal and Michael Learned (who's my "mom" on the TV show).

FOR BOBBY VINTON

You sing so many songs with the word "blue" in them. Why?—Sherry Krampf, Cumberland, Md.

● My favorite color has always been blue. I think it's romantic. I like to record songs about love, dreams and happy things, and blue is what comes to mind first when I think of these things. When some people say they feel blue, they're unhappy. Not me. When I think of blue, I see romance and warmth.

FOR HERB ALPERT

What changes took place in the music world during your six-year absence?—K.B., Little Rock, Ark.

● It got louder. Some rock is good and some is bad. I'm amazed by the tremendous amplification, and it's obvious some groups compete to see who can play the loudest. I was in Rhode Island recently, and at a local rock concert the group used 350 speakers on the stage. I couldn't see myself sitting anywhere within three miles. They sounded like heavy artillery.

FOR SANDY DUNCAN

How do you manage to keep to your low weight of 102?—Sherry Wise, Rockport, Maine

● I cut down on carbohydrates. Breakfast is a low-cal cereal with skim milk and a small orange juice. I pamper myself for lunch, but don't go overboard. Dinner is chicken, a low-cal vegetable and a salad. I almost never nibble between meals, not even on carrots or celery, and I exercise a lot.

FOR PETE ROZELLE, commissioner of the National Football League

When the United States changes to the metric system, what will you do about the length of the football field?—Ricky Burk, Lowell, Mass.

● Probably nothing. An announcer saying "Smith just kicked a 38.4048-meter field goal" is not in the interest of the fans.

FOR ART FLEMING, host of "Jeopardy"

As a bachelor, have you ever looked at any of the contestants on your show from a romantic point of view?—J.M., Rapid City, S.D.

● No. I look at them as poor souls and wonder how they can do what they're doing. I can't imagine where they get the courage and strength. I'm still amazed at the knowledge of the American housewife. (Incidentally, when one magazine story on me came out, I got 60 proposals a week for a while. Now it's tapered off.)

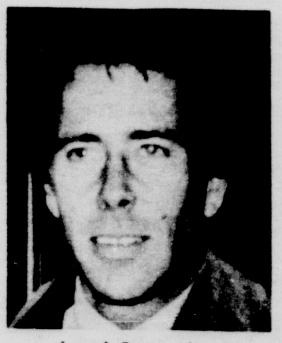

FOR JOAN CRAWFORD

Do you think R- and X-rated films would have done well during the '40's and '50's?—J.M., Vancouver, Wash.

● Our movies didn't need those ratings to be box-office successes. We acted with our clothes on! Our censors did a grand job of telling us what we could and could not do, and their decisions were always right. But you'd be surprised how many letters I get from late-show watchers, who tell me there was more "suggestiveness" in my films than there is in today's R- and X-rated ones.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

How does Lord Snowdon feel about all that royal protocol stuff?—J.C., Yuma, Ariz.

Lord Snowdon

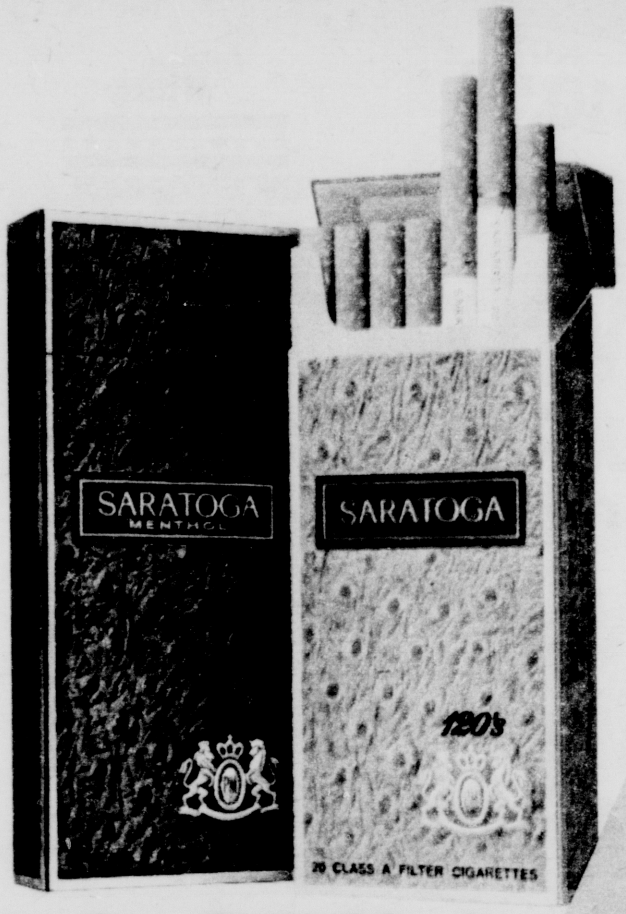

● This will answer your question: Some years ago he made a lunch reservation at New York's Gaslight Club. There was apprehension at the club: "How do we address him?" the staff wondered. Then they took a vote and decided on "Your Highness." But the Lord himself solved the problem. He strolled in and put everyone at ease by saying, "Call me Tony." At his recent photo exhibit at B. Altman's in New York, FAMILY WEEKLY's reporter stuck to him like glue. He stopped short and they collided. Said Snowdon: "We can't go on meeting in public like this." Dressed informally in a lightweight blue-denim suit, he summed up his 20 years as a cameraman: "I'm tottering into old age." By the way, he's a very heavy smoker and doesn't regard himself as royalty—"just someone who married into the Royal Family."

BICENTENNIAL SPECIAL

A Special

Compiled by Anita Summer

"He did not suffer fools gladly. In fact, he did not suffer them at all. What set him apart was his courage. . . ."
—Charlton Heston

CHARLTON HESTON ON ANDREW JACKSON:

Having played three Presidents (Andrew Jackson, Thomas Jefferson and FDR), Charlton Heston is probably the entertainment industry's leading authority on the art of portraying our country's glorious men. In "The President's Lady," he had the role of Andrew Jackson.

"When I got the part of Andrew Jackson, I didn't know any more about him than anyone else. But in the six weeks I had to prepare, I digested six books and visited The Hermitage (his Tennessee home)—all of which confirmed what I had suspected: that Jackson was one of our mightiest Americans. (I also learned, by the way, that he was like me in having been over six feet and considering himself a good horseman.)

"Jackson had the unique characteristics of a great man who was unusually gifted and enormously motivated. A man with a compulsion to achieve, he was perhaps our only President who was successful as a congressman, a judge and a general before being elected. He was the first to gain support from the ordinary citizen, although he himself was an extraordinary man. We are described as living in the century of the common man; but in Jackson's time, as in all of history, it was the uncommon man who did the work. Jackson was the most uncommon American ever."

Heston also learned that Jackson was extremely impatient and very bad-tempered. "He did not suffer fools gladly. In fact, he did not suffer them at all. What set him apart was his courage, a quality that seems to be lacking in our present-day leaders.

"If Jackson were with us now, he'd be distressed by our lack of a sense of national purpose, because he was enormously sanguine about his country. And it's difficult to be sanguine about this country at the moment." Heston quickly adds: "Don't take that negatively. I'm terribly fortunate to be an American. I'm blessed to have been born in one of the very few countries that is run with the consent of the people who participate in the government." He paraphrases Churchill: "We are a democratic country, and democracy is the worst system of government in the world—except for all the others."

Was being the nation's seventh President an asset or a liability to the man in the White House? "The most negative part was the lack of precedent. The positive aspect was that he could create precedents and didn't have to abide by tradition and be bound by convention." What Heston remembers best about "The President's Lady" was "being inaugurated President of the United States. It sticks in your memory—even 25 years later.

"I still regret that reading about him, learning about him and portraying him did not make me the great man that Jackson was. I identified with him as closely as I could. That gave me a feeling of total inadequacy. But it also resulted in a lasting sense of pride that America could produce a man of Jackson's dimensions. I am so glad he was not born in France or England!"

"Inside" Look At Great Americans

By Actors Who Helped Immortalize Them

DON AMECHE ON ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL:

The name of Don Ameche was once synonymous with the telephone because of his movie portrayal of its inventor, Alexander Graham Bell. That was 36 years ago. Ameche vividly remembers one of Bell's daughters being on the set from the first to the final shot: "She was the technical adviser and insisted on authenticity."

"Our country was founded by the rebels of Europe and the outcasts of the world. The matings of these early, strong, persecuted people produced a unique talent and vitality that resulted in the kind of Yankee ingenuity that invented the telephone. Inbreeding does not create genius (as shown by the hierarchy of Spain and the intermarriages causing hemophilia throughout the royal houses of Europe). America experienced the exact reverse. Instead of inbreeding, our strong peasant stock developed into physical giants able to withstand greater stress and strain than their European counterparts. With the brawn came the brains, born of the will to survive under the most adverse conditions and hardships."

Why did America turn out so many inventive Goliaths? Ameche says: "I'm a religious man, so I'll give a religious answer. I believe that throughout the ages

"I believe that throughout the ages God distributes talent where He feels it is needed most. The era of our 'inventiveness' was 'our time.' "—Don Ameche

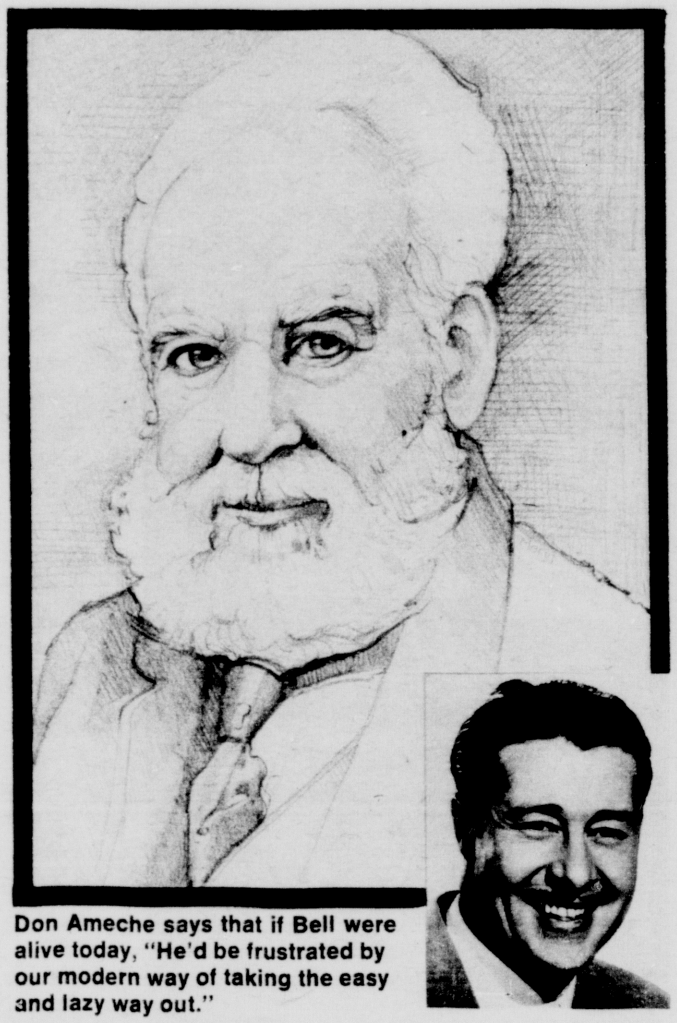

God distributes talent where He feels it is needed most. The era of our 'inventiveness' was 'our time.' I can think of no other explanation.

"Bell and I were opposites. I'm completely lacking in creativity and I've none of Bell's tenacity and intuitiveness. I try to excel at my work, but mine doesn't demand the infinite patience or perseverance his did.

"That's why if Bell were alive now, I don't think he'd like America one bit. Apart from his imagination and ingenuity, he was very industrious. He'd be frustrated by our modern way of taking the easy and lazy way out. He was astonishing. I doubt if any man today would endure all the trials and tribulations that he did to get his patents established. Also, his mental growth would be stunted, and he'd become intellectually and creatively suffocated by the reams of red tape he'd have to wade through.

"But in spite of the red tape, the opportunity available to everyone is as vast now as it was then. Anyone can step on the bottom rung of the ladder and climb up. The tremendous challenge of America is still here. Look what happened on the moon. Our facilities for research and self-improvement are limitless. America is still the land of golden opportunity.

"I love every inch of this country. I recently returned from Europe and felt like kissing the ground. I always suggest that complainers should see how others live. Look at me. My father, born in Northern Italy, was an immigrant who never went beyond third grade. My mother, an American from coal-mining Illinois, never progressed beyond that stage either. One generation later I was privileged to achieve some kind of recognition in my chosen vocation. I couldn't have done it as easily—or possibly at all—elsewhere. I'm proud of being an American."

Don Ameche says that if Bell were alive today, "He'd be frustrated by our modern way of taking the easy and lazy way out."

Ginger Rogers thinks that Dolley Madison would "be amazed and delighted at the wonderful inventions we have now. . . ."

GINGER ROGERS ON DOLLEY MADISON:

Ginger Rogers portrayed Dolley Madison, wife of the fourth President of the United States, in the 1946 movie "Magnificent Doll." Ginger says her American heritage and our country's founding principles are the greatest gifts that could have been bestowed upon her. "Whenever I see the Stars and Stripes," she says, "I salute it; and I never fail to feel pride at hearing 'The Star-Spangled Banner' and knowing it's my anthem."

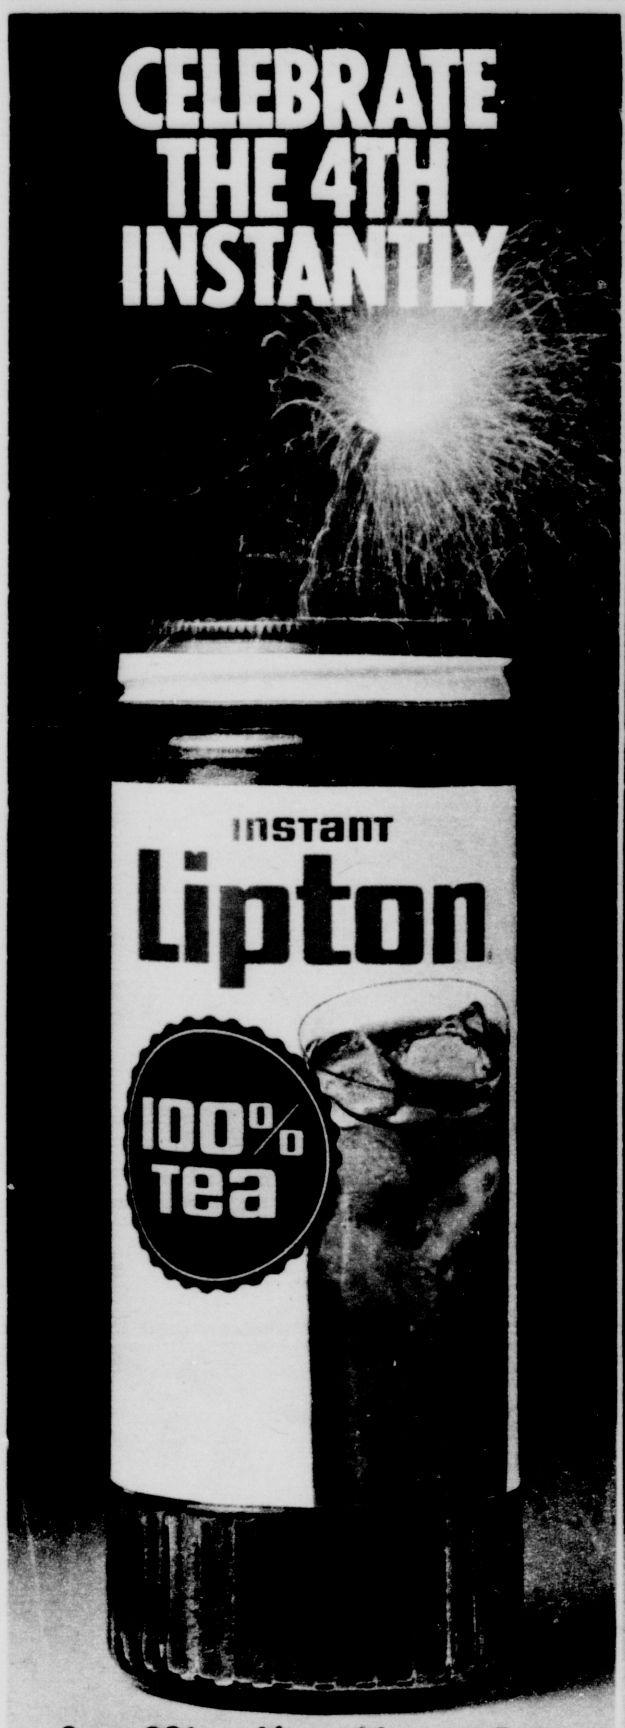

"In this day and age of mass communication, we are still learning what Dolley Madison already knew in 1810. She communicated marvelously, without the help of press, radio or TV. She introduced the art of bringing people together to Washington. Her table was the forerunner of the United Nations, because those sitting at it were meeting under a blanket that was as educational and social as it was political. She was a superb hostess then, and would be an even greater one now. Invitations to her parties, groups and gatherings—which became a tradition and from which our own cocktail parties probably evolved—were highly sought after.

"Her functions were carefully planned. We'd describe them as 'cocktail parties,' but they were anything but that. A cocktail party is for a group of people indulging in small talk and trivia. Her conversation was anything but inconsequential. She would not have had the privilege of marrying James Madison, one of the most important men of his time, had she been an empty-headed creature with nothing to say. James Madison was an enormous human being, small in physique but towering over everyone in mental stature.

"The sad thing is that Dolley's great talent for communicating was not fully appreciated. Although everyone relished it, they didn't realize the far-reaching importance of what she was instituting. Another magnificent contribution she made to the Capital and the country was beautification. She was an innovator, with an in-born and in-bred sense for creating beauty and nurturing it."

Ginger Rogers boned up on Dolley by reading and by studying paintings of her in Washington. She found her to be a fascinating person, with whom she shares a love of ice cream (Dolley popularized it by always serving it for dessert), a weakness for exquisite clothes and a penchant for wearing turbans. (President Madison's First Lady launched hand-woven turbans from India as accepted headgear in America.)

"I think Dolley would be astonished at why it took women so long to get equal rights. She'd be amazed and delighted at the wonderful inventions we have now—particularly those for the kitchen—and our methods of transportation. With her sense of good taste, she'd be rather startled by some of the clothes we wear. She'd be amazed that we have not really learned from the wise and guiding words bequeathed to us by our forefathers. She'd be sorry we gave more time to being mechanical pioneers than to rising to the mental grandeur of which she thought us capable. She'd think we were dragging our feet.

"But we're a great nation because every citizen is different from everyone else. We're not like sheep. We're individuals all wanting to do our own thing. The greatest boon is that all our different races and religions, colors and creeds blend together, and the result is a magnificent garden."

RAYMOND MASSEY ON ABRAHAM LINCOLN:

Ironically, Raymond Massey, the man who "became" Abraham Lincoln in the memorable "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" on stage and screen, says he didn't really research the character he played. "It doesn't matter what my role is, I always put the same amount of effort and enthusiasm into it. I didn't do any special homework. Robert E. Sherwood [author of the work] did all that, and did it beautifully. There was no way I could improve or enlarge upon what he wrote."

Massey, who has starred in over 60 motion pictures, appeared in countless Broadway and London plays (of which he directed 35), is surprised by the way his Lincoln portrayal has endured: "It was a great part. The best I ever played. I'm delighted and grateful my name is still associated with it. Why I'm connected with Lincoln more than anyone else, I don't know. I'm an actor and don't identify or get involved with any particular character because I've played so many. Lincoln was just one of them. I'm just an 'interpreter.' I interpret on stage or screen and try to bring characters alive to the audience. 'Lincoln' was a good play. I had confidence in it and the confidence was justified."

"We both had very large feet, and were both very homely."
—Raymond Massey

(Back in 1957, Massey said in a press report: "Actually, I'd have killed anyone with my bare hands who tried to get the part away from me. But not because of a missionary urge or because it suits my politics. I'm so Republican it makes my skin crack. It is simply because the role itself is so overwhelming.")

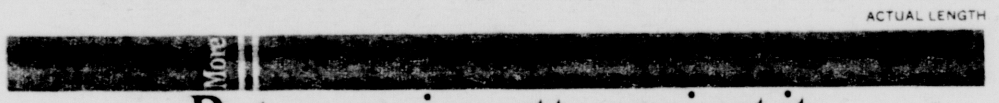

"I haven't the foggiest notion of whether Lincoln would approve of us now. I think of him as everyone else does, as a historical character. I can't project myself into his mind, although I sometimes do understand a character better after having played him. Nor can I speculate on what he had that our modern Presidents don't."

Was there anything Massey had in common with our 16th President? "Yes," he quickly answered. "We both had very large feet, and were both very homely."

Raymond Massey, born in Toronto, Canada, on August 30, 1896, became an American citizen in 1944. "Because this country has been very good to me, and I wanted to have a say in it," he says simply. "I treasure my American citizenship."

CLIFF ROBERTSON ON JOHN F. KENNEDY:

Cliff Robertson met John F. Kennedy after the President himself had selected Robertson from innumerable candidates to play JFK in the movie "PT 109." It was April, 1963, and Robertson had been summoned to Washington. Having many hours to spare, Robertson whiled away his time at the National Museum. Here's how Robertson remembers that day:

"I was probably the first visitor at the National Museum to look at every picture there without seeing them. My eyes were focused on the walls, but my mind was full of what lay ahead of me." At the White House, press secretary Pierre Salinger greeted the actor, then took him into an empty room. Robertson assumed it was the first of a series of rooms in which he'd meet a series of people, before being officially presented to JFK. But he was wrong. No sooner had he sat down, than the President made his inconspicuous entrance.

JFK did indeed introduce Cliff to an impressive group. When the formalities were over, Cliff made motions to leave. "But instead of letting me go, Kennedy said, 'Now let's talk.' We went into his private office, and the two of us sat down—him in his rocking chair, arms folded. I was perched three inches from the edge of the sofa. (You don't sit back and relax in the presence of the President of the United States. At least I don't.)" The two spoke on a personal basis. They found they both shared a love of the sea and covered everything from movies to the weather and their favorite foods. "We spoke about our daughters," Robertson recalls. "My Stephanie was four, a year younger than Caroline, and we discovered both girls adored horses. JFK worshiped his children.

JAMES WHITMORE ON HARRY TRUMAN AND WILL ROGERS:

James Whitmore, who has played Will Rogers and is currently portraying President Truman in "Give 'Em Hell, Harry!", was asked how both these great men would react were they around today. Here's what he said:

"Since our present-day problems are not that much different from those of his generation, I think Will Rogers would feel we meddled too much. He said the thing we do worst in this country is mind other folks' business. Truman never got involved with that, but he believed in self-determination, that people should be allowed to decide for themselves. He formulated the Truman Doctrine, designed to allow countries to have freedom of choice. They both had a hatred of dishonesty and a great regard for honesty, which they felt was the only salvation of the human race."

Whitmore met Margaret Truman Daniel and also Will Rogers, Jr., before he did his portrayals, as a test of accuracy and authenticity. "Only after I had the scripts completely memorized did I turn to mimicking the actions and intonations. The memorizing took a month of solid work."

Here are some of Whitmore's favorite quotes from Harry Truman:

- "The good Lord may have made the world in six days—but that must have been before labor unions."
- On why he wrote a vituperative letter to a music critic who criticized Margaret's singing: "I was a father before I had this temporary job, and I'll be one after I leave it."
- On education: "It's what you learn after you know it all that counts."
- On economists: "If you laid all the economists end to end, they would point in all directions."

And here are some Whitmore favorites from Will Rogers:

- "There's no way in this world you can make a political party respectable unless you keep it out of office."
- "When Harding was elected, I went in to see him and said, 'I'd like to tell you the latest political jokes, Mr. President.' He said, 'You don't have to, Will—I appointed them.' "

The pleasure and self-satisfaction derived from both roles have left their

"After 40 minutes, I was the one to terminate the talk. I felt I'd taken enough of his precious time. Then, as another example of his warmth and consideration, he did something he knew I wanted most of all. He asked, 'Would you mind if we had our picture taken together?' Would I mind! The photographer was summoned, and I restrained myself from gazing into the lens (as I do for movie shots) and concentrated on JFK. I ignored his suggestion, 'If you look at me, you won't show your face.' "

The three conditions under which JFK permitted "PT 109" to be filmed were: historical accuracy; all proceeds from the movie to go to survivors of the boat or their kin; he could choose his movie counterpart. When JFK picked Robertson, the actor's delight was somewhat tempered by his realization that the screenplay didn't really delve into the character of the man. "It just centered on an incident in World War II, making it another war movie. We had the chance to plumb deeply into the personality of the man. It was the only time a movie was made of a living President, and it might never happen again. I was honored by his choosing me—but I was not enraptured by the role.

"None of JFK's successors had his ability or his wit. We've had humorless clods."
—Cliff Robertson

"I immediately started reading whatever I could put my hands on about JFK. I spoke to those who knew him. I learned he did not want me to do an 'imitation' of him or affect a Boston accent. (He told me later, 'Any nightclub comic can impersonate me, but that's a surface impersonation. I was more concerned about your getting into the inside of the role.')"

Robertson was overwhelmed and fascinated by JFK. " He was stimulating, with a quick curiosity and a passionate interest in everything. Had he not been a politician, I think he could have been a great writer. He was a raconteur and an astonishing listener. None of his three successors had his ability or his wit. We've had humorless clods."

After that April, 1963, meeting, JFK and Cliff Robertson corresponded and became good friends. They planned to meet again on the West Coast. They never did. Their meeting was set for December, 1963..

Special Bicentennial Offer for a Very Limited Number of Collectors and Investors

Actual size of ingots is 1¼ x 1¾ inches.

The Hamilton Mint Announces the Minting of

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION "OLD GLORY" INGOTS

In Pure Silver and Fine American Pewter

The dramatic history of The American Revolution preserved for you and your heirs in a single limited minting of 24 magnificent ingots.

Two hundred years ago on April 19, 1775, a volley of musketfire shattered the morning stillness at Lexington Green. The first Americans had fallen in the War for Independence.

Today, as Americans across the land prepare to celebrate America's Bicentennial, The Hamilton Mint is deeply proud to announce an extraordinary new ingot series of major historical importance.

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION "OLD GLORY" INGOTS

Here is a tribute to America's 200th Anniversary as meaningful as it is beautiful. This stirring new series will consist of 24 superb ingots in solid .999 fine silver or solid fine American pewter. They will depict, in striking bas-relief sculpture, the dramatic history of The American Revolution . . . the men and events that helped forge our Nation: the Minutemen's bravery at Lexington and Concord; Patrick Henry's impassioned speech before the Virginia House of Burgesses; Valley Forge, where the Continental Army wintered, enduring incredible hardships; Ethan Allen's colorful Green Mountain Boys, in hot pursuit of the British regulars; John Paul Jones, America's greatest naval hero and his victory on the high seas; Saratoga's glorious victory — these and many other important episodes are captured in this brilliant historic tableau.

AVAILABLE IN PURE SILVER AND SOLID PEWTER

Each ingot will be an original work of art by master sculptor Roger Akers and will be minted to exacting standards by the skilled craftsmen of The Hamilton Mint. Each silver proof ingot will contain one full ounce (480 grains) of .999 pure silver, the finest available, and each pewter ingot will be minted in fine American pewter with a lovely antique finish.

A SINGLE LIMITED MINTING AT A GUARANTEED PRICE

There will be only one minting of The American Revolution "Old Glory" Ingots. Just 10,000 proof sets in .999 fine silver will ever be struck and the total minting of antique finish pewter sets will be limited to the exact number of valid orders accepted before the series closes. Once these orders have been filled, the minting dies will be destroyed, thus safeguarding the integrity of the edition.

The ingots will be issued at the rate of two a month for 12 months. The original issue price will be just $13.75 for each pure silver ingot and just $6.00 for each American pewter ingot. These prices are guaranteed to subscribers over the entire subscription period.

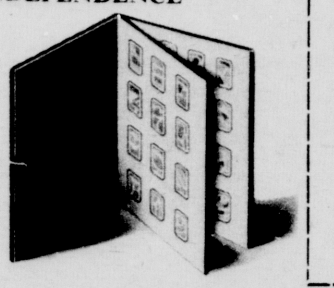

AN AMERICAN HEIRLOOM EDITION WITH YOUR OWN PERSONAL SERIAL NUMBER

These remarkable ingots will prove to be a joy to own and display, while preserving for your children an assured rare and valuable medallic history of The American Revolutionary War.

As a subscriber, you will receive a registered Certificate of Authenticity, written documentation of the limited edition status and precious metal content of the series. Your ingots will be custom minted and will bear your own personal serial number and The Hamilton Mint Hallmark.

FREE DISPLAY ALBUM & SPECIAL BONUS "DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE"

Subscribers will receive a handsome presentation album, custom designed to house the entire collection. You will also receive, at no cost, a special bonus, a deluxe brilliantly illustrated reproduction, suitable for framing, of The Declaration of Independence.

Archive Edition: 24 Kt. Gold on Pure Silver

You may also order these ingots in extravagantly beautiful 24 Kt. gold on .999 fine silver. Only 5,000 sets will be minted, thus making this edition quite rare. Each proof ingot will also be individually serially numbered and hallmarked and each will cost just $18.75.

Great Americans

marks on Whitmore: "I consider it a blessing to have been born in a country that permitted me—someone without wealth—to go to Yale and then pursue the theatrical career I wanted. It was my choice, and I could follow it through. Every American owes something for his citizenship."

A LETTER FROM JOHN WAYNE

Few actors have made more movies dealing with America's legends and history than John Wayne. FAMILY WEEKLY asked Wayne to give us his thoughts as our country moves into this historical era. Here is what he wrote us:

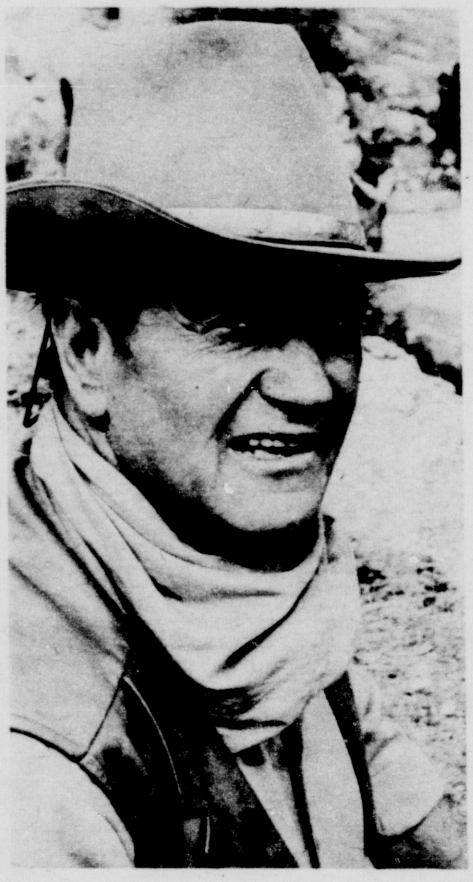

Dear Family Weekly:

My Davy Crockett said it pretty well like this:

"Republic. I like the sound of the word. It means people can live free, talk free. Go or come, buy or sell, be drunk or sober, however they choose.

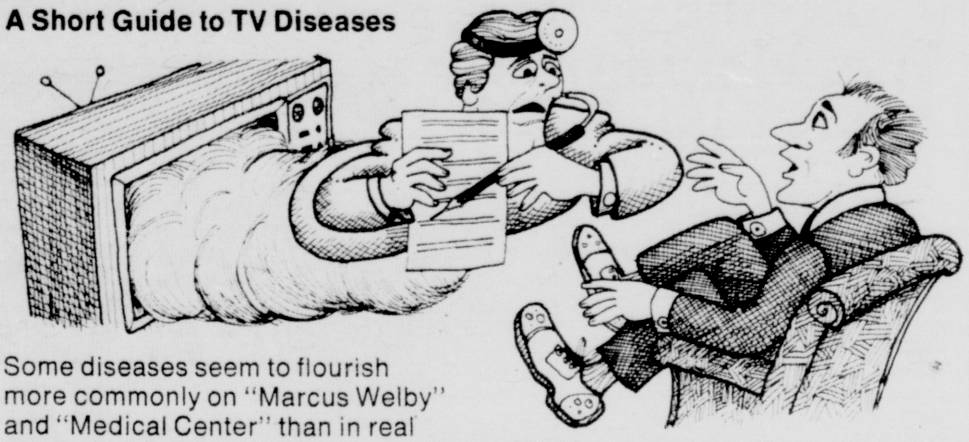

"Some words give you a feeling. Republic is one of those words that make me tight in the throat. The same tightness a man gets when his baby takes his first step, or his first boy shaves and makes his first sound like a man. Some words can give you a feeling that makes your heart warm. Republic is one of those words."

Sincerely,
John Wayne

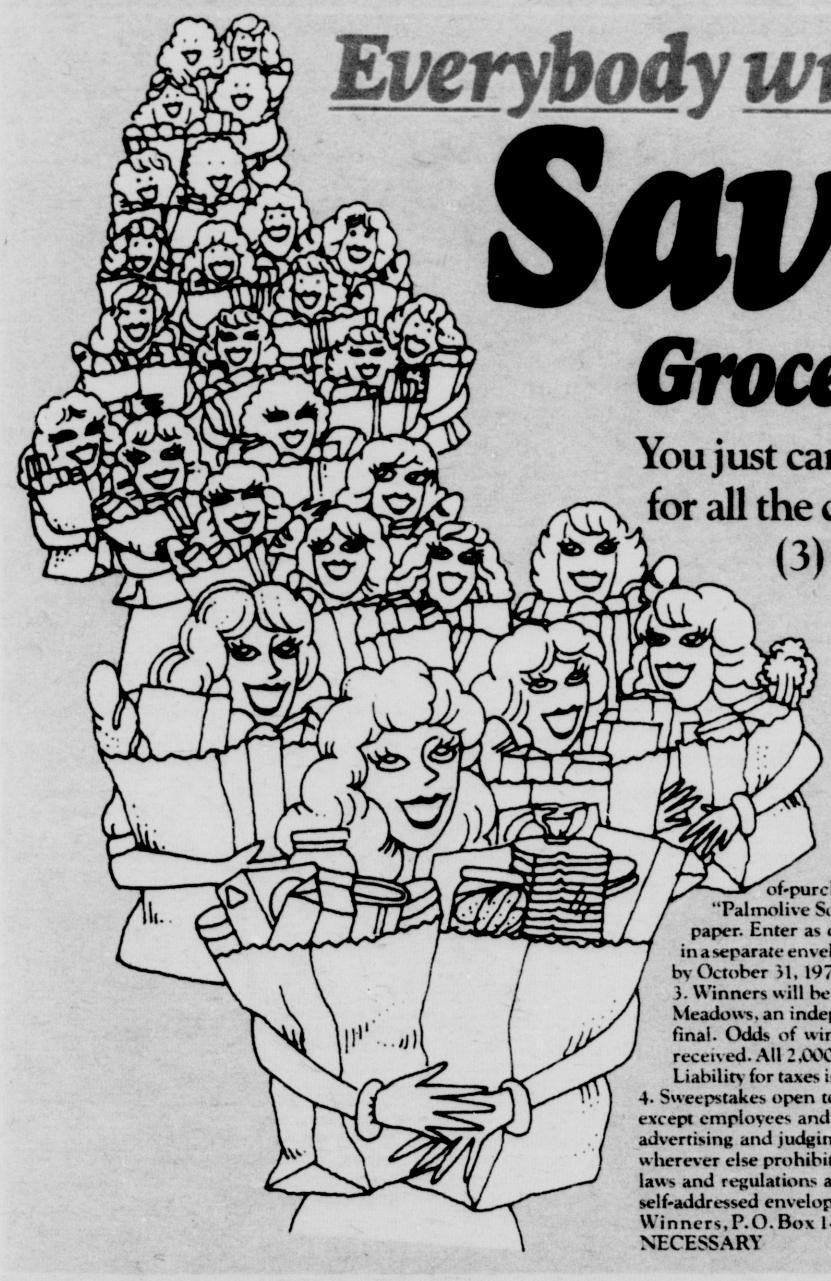

The Doctor Lets You In

A Short Guide to TV Diseases

Some diseases seem to flourish more commonly on "Marcus Welby" and "Medical Center" than in real life. They are the so-called eponymic diseases—diseases named after a person (usually the doctor who discovered the disease or else a famous victim). Here is a guide to some of the more unusual eponymic diseases. Munchausen's Syndrome—malingering to get medical attention, even operations; people who are expert in mimicking conditions will repeatedly seek such attention. Huntington's chorea—a chronic nerve condition with unintentional, compulsive jerking movements; also known as Saint Vitus's dance. Lou Gehrig's disease—amyotrophic lateral sclerosis; muscular wasting and atrophy; a fatal disease. Addison's disease—also called President Kennedy's disease; inadequate function of the adrenal glands, now treated by cortisone-like drugs. Ménière's disease—dizziness, ringing of the ears, unsteadiness due to disease of the inner ear. Gilles de Tourette's disease—a mental condition in which the patient continues to repeat the words told him and explosively uses foul language. Raynaud's disease—circulatory inhibition of fingers and toes and occasionally of ears and nose. Pott's disease—tuberculosis of the spine, with stiffening and pain on movement and eventually paralysis. Paget's disease—a deforming bone disease. Korsakoff's disease—a psychosis due to alcoholism. Sjögren's Syndrome—a relatively newly described disease in which women cannot shed tears due to drying up of tear ducts. Salivary glands and other functions are also affected.—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

"Feminine Itching Was Making My Life Miserable."

"I was constantly worried about my itching problem. I tried so many things, and nothing really helped. Feminine itching was making my life miserable. Then I saw an ad in the newspaper for Vagisil, a new way to help stop feminine itching. I tried it and it really worked."
Mrs. S. T., Richmond, Virginia

If you suffer from external vaginal itching, there is now a creme medication specifically formulated to bring fast, temporary relief. Called Vagisil,™ it's available without a prescription.

Doctor-tested Vagisil is a soft, easy-to-apply medication that helps stop external vaginal itching almost instantly. Yet Vagisil is gentle enough for tender, irritated membranes. Vagisil leaves a cooling, protective, lubricating film to help check bacteria, soothe irritated membranes, and so speed natural healing.

Get Vagisil at all drug counters. Delicately scented. Greaseless. For trial tube, send 25¢ to Vagisil, Box 328 EK, White Plains, New York 10604 Vagisil

VIP MASS TRANSIT
To replace the limousine?

A bus for bosses may soon replace the traditional chauffeur-driven limousine as a means of transporting executives. British Leyland Motors has designed a Business Commuter Bus that offers an executive all the amenities found in a limousine. The bus seats 20 passengers, two secretaries and, of course, the "chauffeur." Eight mini-office units are equipped with telephone, dictaphone and intercom link to a secretary. For those businessmen who prefer not to get right down to business, two color television sets and a lounge-bar are provided. This commuter special won't slow down executive action and it may just be the best way for businessmen to help out the energy crunch.

Great horses are "only human": "When Hollywood was grinding out horse-racing sagas in years gone by, its thoroughbreds were strong as iron, met all competitors head on, never missed a race and prevailed over all adversaries. Seven of the nine Triple Crown winners would have flunked these roles. They had their problems. Sir Barton's feet constantly hurt, causing him to be irascible. Omaha went lame within a few months after he captured the crown. War Admiral sheared off a piece of his forefoot in the Belmont Stakes and was out of action from June to October. Whirlaway hurt his leg at the end of his third year of racing, which rushed his retirement the following spring. The great Count Fleet struck himself in the left fore ankle, which created a splint and abruptly ended his racing career. Assault injured a foot as a yearling, and walked as though he were about to fall down. Citation had tendon trouble, which kept him from racing during his entire fourth year. Gallant Fox and Secretariat (the other two) were retired after their third years, which no doubt saved them from some of the miseries of the trade they might have encountered if they had continued to race." From "The Most Glorious Crown," by Marvin Drager (Scribner's, $4.95).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

A RAKISH LOOK

I stepped upon a rake one day,
The handle hit my eye.
It was a stupid thing to do,
Don't ask me how or why.

But since I got a nasty bruise,
I'm asked by all and sundry.
They think I've had a fight and lost,
Or anyhow they're wundry.

Explaining's bad enough, I swear,
I've soured and grown dyspeptical.
But even worse is knowing all
Who hear me still are skeptical.

Money does make all the difference. If you have two jobs and you're rich, you have diversified interests. If you have two jobs and you're poor, you're moonlighting.
—Rudy Joe Mano

One night I was baby-sitting a four-year-old girl and she was playing "commercials." In her hand was a cylinder-shaped building block for a microphone. Very businesslike she asked me, "How's your love life?" Following along with her game, I responded with, "What's a love life?" With complete innocence, she looked up at me and said, "I think it's your teeth!"

DEAR POLLY — Before starting a long vacation, get a duplicate map of the area you'll be touring. On it trace your route, add your license number and the car's description. Give to a neighbor for relay to highway authorities should there be an emergency calling you home. — BERNICE.

•

DEAR POLLY — Make a shower kit by cutting a piece of old plastic fabric into a strip about 6 inches wide and 3 or 4 feet long. Fold the strip in half. Sew three pieces of plastic on each end to form pockets, then flip this over your shower curtain rod to hold bath accessories.—DEBBIE.
